"Probable Showers" Predicted by Weatherman Fail to Show Up; Will Be Clear Tomorrow

MANY ARRIVE FOR THE FAIR

"SOME FAIR" IS THE WORD

Big Exhibits of Stock and Farm Products and Excellent Racing Card Mark the Exposition

"The biggest opening day the fair has seen," was the descriptive used by Secretary C. S. Van Auker when asked as to attendance at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Thirty-five hundred people had clicked through the turnstiles at that hour and the influx was continuing.

At 3 o'clock the ball game between the Trainmen and the Athletics stood 1 to 1 at the end of the first inning.

The heavy condition of the track caused the announcement this afternoon at 2:30 that the racing card scheduled for the day had been postponed. The 2:09 race and the 2:20 trot, today's races, will be run with the 2:15 trot tomorrow. George Gano will do a mile under saddle tomorrow afternoon.

"Gone to the Interstate Fair"

Locking their doors and deserting their desks, city and county officials and their assistants, business men and factory heads and employees have gone to the fair for La Crosse day. The above inscription everywhere in evidence on doors and windows called attention to the absence of activity in downtown La Crosse today.

"Probable showers," promised by the weatherman for last night failed to show up. While the same prediction is made for tonight, the local forecaster promises clear skies for tomorrow. Incoming trains brought many to the city this morning, and with the usual local following of fair

Look at the Cup

Considerable increase in the unusually keen competition among townships for the premiums for the best exhibits of the respective districts was evinced at the announcement that the La Crosse Bankers' association had offered a silver cup as first premium for the exhibits of the townships. The cup is now on display in E. W. Parker's window.

Police on Job

With several patrolmen and plainclothesmen on duty the police department occupied the fair grounds police station this morning. The grounds will be patrolled diligently every day of the fair.

The last word given out before the races started at 2 o'clock this afternoon was that the race track was in "fairly good shape."

Mud Horse to Win

The "mud horse," the trotter or pacer who likes the mucky going, is bound to take honors today, was an early prediction.

The fair grounds track is not in good condition nor is it what could be called bad. Heavy rains of Sunday soaked it to a mush, and horsemen waited in vain yesterday for an appearance of the sun. The track was worked all day yesterday, and this morning was given a final dressing

EXPERTS DISAGREE CONCERNING AUTO SERVICE TO FAIR

They Can Operate Without Hesitation or a Bond Declares Attorney General Owen

"CAN'T", SAY LOCAL MEN

Higbee and Schlachach Rule That Jitney Regulation Bill Cuts Out Fair Ground Traffic

THE CHIEF IS IN A QUANDARY

Whose Word Shall He Take Is Question That Worries Head of the Department

Take Your Pick

"The jitney law doesn't apply to them at all. Automobiles can operate between the city and the fair grounds without hesitation. They cannot be considered jitneys under the statute," Attorney General Walter C. Owen.

"The operation of the motor vehicle comes within the statute providing there is a fixed starting point and a fixed destination. . . . I am of the opinion that persons operating automobiles on our streets for the indiscriminate carriage of persons to and from the fair grounds for hire must file an indemnity bond and procure a license as provided by the above mentioned law," City Attorney J. E. Higbee and District Attorney Otto M. Schlachach.

In a maelstrom of legal cross-currents, Chief of Police John B. Weber was still tossing uncertainly at sea today on the problem of fair ground auto service. The problem this morning was apparently solved—against the auto drivers—by a joint opinion from City Attorney J. E. Higbee and District Attorney Otto M. Schlachach. But Attorney General Walter C. Owen, in the city for a few hours today, laughed at the construction of the law which would abolish automobile service to the fairs.

"The jitney law doesn't apply to them at all," he told a TRIBUNE representative. "Automobiles can operate between the city and the fair grounds without hesitation."

And there you are.

The chief of police has hoisted the signal of distress. Shall he take the word of the local authorities, whose typewritten opinion lies upon his desk? Or shall he accept the opinion of the state's chosen legal authority, upon whom, next to the courts, lies the burden of interpreting the legislature's intent?

Attorney General Owen had no hesitancy about his opinion. He has given it to many county fairs on the same subject—"fifty" was his fabled description of the number who asked to have the point cleared up.

Are not Jitneys

"The intent of the legislature is clear," he said. "A jitney is expressly described as a motor vehicle furnishing service similar to a street car. It is therefore an automobile which travels over an unvarying route, taking on and discharging passengers at all points along its course. Automobiles carrying passengers to the fair grounds take on and discharge passengers only at the termini of their route. They cannot be considered jitneys under the statute. They can operate at will, without reference to the regulation bill."

"An automobile 'bus carrying passengers from a hotel to a depot or return is not a jitney. The fair ground-service automobile is in the same class."

Must Have Bond Say Local Lights

The city attorney's ruling, which was concurred in by the district attorney after a conference this morning, puts the matter on a different ground, and denies the right of the fair ground autos to operate on the ground that they are not financially responsible in the absence of a bond as required by the jitney regulation bill.

Here is the ruling of the local interpreters:

AMBASSADOR IS DEPRIVED OF HIS POSITION IN U. S.

Dumba Himself Advises the Capital of Recall and Asks for Safe Conduct

WITHDRAWAL IS FINAL

All Possibility of Envoy Being Recalled Only on Leave of Absence Dissipated

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Unconditional recall of Austrian Ambassador Dumba was announced at the state department today. A telegram was received this morning from Dumba at the state department stating that he had been recalled by his government and asking that a safe conduct be secured. He announced that he would leave October 5 from New York. Acting Secretary of State Polk announced that last Saturday American Ambassador Penfield had been officially advised by Austrian Foreign Minister Burián that the Austrian government would recall Dumba as requested and asked Penfield that a safe conduct be secured for the envoy.

Foreign Minister Burián also advised Penfield that, as a matter of course, Dumba's recall would be final.

This removed all possibility of Dumba being recalled only on leave of absence to give an explanation.

Since Saturday the state department has been waiting to hear from Dumba regarding the time of his departure and official notification that he had actually been recalled by Vienna, the notice given Ambassador Penfield being merely that he would be recalled.

Acting Secretary Polk announced today that a safe conduct for Dumba had been secured by the allies' embassies here and would be forwarded shortly to Lenox, Mass.

Until today the state department was uncertain whether the formal notification of Dumba's recall would come from the Austrian government. Ambassador Penfield's report Saturday that he had been assured that Dumba would be withdrawn had given officials confidence that Austria's action would be completely satisfactory.

That the Dumba incident is now regarded as closed was officially announced at the state department. The administration regards his unconditional recall as complete and full satisfaction.

There will probably be no other formal note or action by Austria, or communication with Dumba other than forwarding the safe conduct.

ALLIES' SUCCESSES CONTINUE SAYS PARIS BERLIN CONTRADICTS

Anglo-French Forces Fall Back to Prepare for Another Onslaught the French Claim

TEUTONS FIGHT FOR RAILROAD

Gen. Von Fabeck Unsuccessful in Defending Important Objective of Allies

PARIS, Sept. 28.—Despite the most obstinate resistance the French have made further gains both in the Champagne region and around Arras, it was officially announced this afternoon.

The fighting of the last twenty-four hours on all sectors of the battle front has been attended by heavy losses on both sides. Steady streams of fire are playing across the Champagne and Artois fronts where the Anglo-French offensive continues.

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, Sept. 28.—The greatest battle of the year on the western front is being waged with even more furious attack than characterized the beginning of the Anglo-French onslaught, the war office claimed today.

Having staggered the Kaiser's armies with one mighty smash, the allies drew back and reformed for another blow, it reported. That explained the apparent slackening of the offensive indicated in yesterday afternoon's communiqué. The second stroke was made last night with artillery cannonading and infantry leaping to the attack.

Dispatches received here during the night said the Germans were yielding ground yard by yard in the Champagne, fighting bravely but going down before massed charges of French bayonets. The enemy has made several attempts to stem the advance by flooding the area before their trenches with clouds of asphyxiating gases. High winds swept the vapors away as they left the German trenches. The chalky hills of the Champagne region are throwing up great white clouds of dust under the constant hammering of French and German shells. Dead and wounded are being mangled by a snow white powder, splashed with crimson.

Battle for Railroad

The Germans under General von Fabeck are battling desperately in the Champagne to save the Bazancourt-Argonne railway toward which the Anglo-French armies have been moving since early Saturday. All the French gains are being held and the newly captured positions improved to meet counter attacks.

To the north, the British are reported to be making further progress under the greatest difficulties. The strongest defensive line of the western front reaches from Arras northward to the sea. Against this hard barrier General French is driving with remarkable success.

DRIVE A FAILURE OPINE MILITARY CRITICS OF BERLIN

Belief Is Anglo-French Arms Will Not Be Able to Force German Lines

FIRST RUSH REPORTED STOPPED

Berlin Believes Great Offensive Will Crumble Before End of the Week

BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, L. I., Sept. 28.—The general attack by Anglo-French troops on the western front is already considered a failure by military critics here. It is not believed possible that the Allies can break through the German front.

BERLIN, via The Hague, Sept. 28.—The first rush of the Anglo-French troops in the west has been met and stopped, the war office claimed today. The second rush, it was promised here today, will be dealt with even more effectively.

There is every confidence that what was planned as a great offensive movement will crumble into mere trench warfare before the end of the present week. In spite of the check administered by the Germans in the fighting of Sunday night and early yesterday, the Allies are expected to return to the attack. The opinion prevails here that the onslaughts against the German positions will last for at least a week unless a disaster like that experienced by the British at Neuve Chapelle halts the operations.

Since their first day's assaults the British nor the French have denied the German line. The successes attained by the Allies in the first few hours of fighting was due solely to their long artillery preparation, according to reports reaching here. Several weeks' shell fire had partly demolished the advanced German trenches and it was considered useless to defend them at heavy cost of life. For that reason the Germans fell back in the Champagne and released their grip on a narrow trench front at Loos.

In the second day's fighting no such easy task confronted the French infantry. Their artillery had not blown in the second line trenches and from behind these works the Germans maintained themselves without yielding ground.

In the north, the British were halted before they reached the wire entanglements, thrown back by a hot fire and then pursued to their own trenches. It is officially denied that the enemy made further gains on any sector of the front from Arras north to the sea.

Seize The First Chance To Attend Greatest Fair

The 1915 fair of the La Crosse Interstate Fair association is the greatest fair in the history of this institution.

This is the verdict of farmers, business men and newspaper men who have taken advantage of the opening day to measure the fair upon its merits. Still more important, it is the opinion of judges who are here to make the awards upon the various lines of exhibits.

The fair association has done everything in its power to make the fair a success. It has been liberal in all its provisions and discriminating in its selections. From every angle—agricultural, industrial, mercantile and by standard of amusement—the instruction and entertainment of patrons has been generously provided.

But one thing the association can not do. It can not guarantee the weather.

The weather outlook cannot be determined. The weather bureau holds out strong hopes of a clear day tomorrow. It is passably good, people should hasten to take advantage of it. The first day that is fairly fit may be the only day at all fit for fair visiting. Valuing the fair as a great institution which must live by popular support, the people of La Crosse and vicinity are prepared to attend its sessions. The TRIBUNE strongly urges its readers to seize the first opportunity to do so. If a cloud deters us one day a storm may absolutely prevent us thereafter.

FIFTY KNOWN DEAD IN HORROR BROUGHT ON BY EXPLOSION OF PETROL

This Is Amount Over Customary Federal Taxation Realized by Emergency Levy of 1914

MILLION FOR U. S. FROM HERE

Estimated That Uncle Sam Will Collect Huge Sum in All Federal Imposts by November 23

Ten months of the war in Europe has cost La Crosse and the territory immediately surrounding it $230,603.66.

This is the amount realized over and above customary federal taxation in the La Crosse district by the emergency war tax which went into effect November 23, 1914. With the war tax, Uncle Sam's revenues have been swelled by $631,907.43 from the La Crosse district, and it is expected that by the time the war tax has been in effect a year the federal government will have collected a million dollars from La Crosse and its environs.

The figures and the estimate are vouched for by Deputy Revenue Collectors Nicholas Lehrbach and Theodore J. Ritter.

The district covered by the local revenue collectors includes the counties of La Crosse, Vernon, Monroe, Juneau, Adams, Trempealeau and Buffalo.

The sum of $543,457.50 has been paid by brewery owners in this district, and the greater part of this sum comes from the city of La Crosse. "War" tax collected on wines and cordials has amounted to $3,155.45; on proprietary goods, $8,022.05; on documentary stamps, $21,605.19. The special tax on beer in the district during the ten months has been $181,152.50.

City Is Put Under Martial Law as Ruins Are Searched for Victims

INJURED DIE IN HOSPITALS

Many Bodies Are Burned or Mangled Beyond Recognition in Holocaust

ARDMORE, Okla., Sept. 28.—Fifty persons are known to be dead, more than 200 injured and property damage to the extent of $500,000 caused from an explosion of a carload of gasoline yesterday afternoon. The blast was set off by a spark from a workman's hammer.

Two workmen were repairing a tank car in the Santa Fe railroad yards. The car contained 250 barrels of gasoline. One of the workmen struck the car abow with a hammer. A spark resulted and ignited the fumes from a leak in the car. There was a terrific explosion followed by many lesser ones.

Street Becomes Furnace

The Ardmore railroad station, used jointly by the Santa Fe, Frisco and Rock Island lines, was demolished. The Rick Island freight shed and scores of other buildings were set afire by the flying liquid. The flames spread rapidly until nearly all of Main street appeared to be a furnace. The pall of smoke created prevented effective rescue work. Many of the fires were not controlled until late last night.

The city was under martial law today. Scores of workers are digging in smoldering ruins for bodies, and rescuing those imprisoned in wrecked buildings. Forty bodies had been recovered early today. The hospitals were filled with injured and private homes were caring for scores. Physicians from Wilson and Mariette were aiding.

Many Die in Hospitals

Five of the injured died in local hospitals. Searchers are still digging in the ruins of a pool hall for six bodies supposed to be buried there. Seven bodies were recovered from that place last night. The known injured still is estimated at 200, although it is believed there are scores of persons with minor injuries whose cases have not been reported.

Many of the dead and injured were removed to their homes by members of their families and it was impossible early today to make an accurate estimate of the toll. Comparatively few of the bodies recovered have been identified as many are burned and mangled beyond recognition. Fifteen of the bodies are those of negroes.

Many Buildings Destroyed

In addition to the railroad station the buildings of Swift & Company, Pennington Wholesale Grocery company, Whittington hotel, Maddin & Company, dry goods, and Dewitt Cigar company, were destroyed.

The plants of the Daily Ardmore and the Statesman were badly damaged. Not a building on Main street escaped damage, either from the explosion or the fires that followed.

The list of dead includes:

Henry Sims, Santa Fe flagman, burned to death.

Milton Taylor, employe Dawson Produce company, head blown off.

E. J. Cox, fireman, brick plant.

C. A. Gould, 50, poultry dealer, killed while seated in wagon.

Ira Woods, employe refinery company, working on tank car, blown to pieces.

Charles R. Smith, 45, former policeman, killed by falling wall.

M. E. Atkins, 55, transfer man, killed by falling wall.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 28.—The Yale game this year may be played at New Haven, instead of

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How the Silly Man Went to Sea in a Bathtub.

The Old Porpoise Had No Mercy on Him.

ONCE upon a time a silly man went to sea in a bathtub, daddy began. He had no ears except his arms, and he waved them around his head till choppy waves seized his silly boat and bore it to sea.

The sea creatures had the greatest fun with him. When the clumsy bathtub almost tipped over seagulls came and perched on its tiny sides to balance it. They flapped their wings in the silly man's face and tickled his ears with their tail feathers. When they flew away and the silly tub almost pitched into the trough of huge waves a big, fat old porpoise came along and bumped his nose into one end and steered it almost a mile. This seemed very obliging of him. But really he kicked up so much spray that he almost drowned the silly man, and he pushed so hard that his speed almost tipped the tub over.

"Did the silly man wish he was home?" asked Jack.

"Rather. But the old porpoise had no mercy on him and ran the silly bathtub right on to a purple island, where red seaweeds anchored it for six days.

"He was afraid of the purple island, which looked very wild to him. The choppy waves beat against his silly boat, which he didn't dare get out of, he was so sick at his stomach. He waved his arms wildly, but they made poor paddles. So fast he stuck till a king wave dumped him out of the silly tub."

"What did the choppy waves do to his empty tub?" asked Jack.

"They chopped and they chopped till they got it off the purple sand and bore it away off to the deep sea. Then the silly man got up on to his feet."

"What did he see?" cried the kiddies.

"Oh, the wildest things—pink trees growing upside down on yellow hills and green people digging in purple ground and blue dogs barking at red cats—everything daisy and queer. 'What are you digging for?' the silly man asked.

"The green people all gave a cackle and turned yellow somersaults. 'Ha ha! We dig for black gold!' they giggled. At this the silly man woke up. He had a very greedy nature, and the idea of gold made him want to be king of the purple island. It was a brave move for a silly man. He stretched himself to his full height, waved his silly arms in the air and yelled: 'Get to work, all of you! I am king of this island! If I haven't a ton of gold by sunset not a man of all of you escapes alive!' The purple people all set to work, and black gold fairly rolled out of the rich purple earth. The silly man flagged a ship to come and take his black gold to market, and now he is king of millionaires all over the world, which shows," daddy finished, "that sometimes it pays to go to sea in a bathtub."

And the merry race for Jim Gilmore's towel goes on. Today the Pittsides are leading the Sloufeds by one point.

When Sailors Wore Petticoats.

Very few people realize that there was a day when petticoats were worn by soldiers and sailors on board ships of war. In the days before the royal marines were regularly established as a separate corps the foot regiments of the line used to take it in turns to serve as marines on shipboard. Petticoats were quite commonly worn in the navy in Nelson's time, having been in vogue there since the days of Queen Elizabeth, and our soldiers, being suddenly called upon to do the work of sailors, naturally adopted their dress, finding it, no doubt, far handier and more convenient than their own tight-fitting, frogged and braided uniforms.

Penn Family Claims Liquidated.
The claims of the Penn family to Pennsylvania were extinguished at the time of the revolution. The commonwealth paid Penn's heirs to relinquish their proprietorship.

CLEARING THE COAST

BY FAITH ROBINSON

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Mrs. Lawrence read over the note again with a little smile of understanding.

"Poor old boy," she said. "And did you want him to come so much."

"Who, Anne?"

"Fennimore Diggs."

There came a sudden movement from the hammock. Bab threw her book across the veranda and sat bolt upright, eyes sparkling, color rising in her vivid, changeable, young face. "When did he come back?"

"Oh, lately, I believe," her sister answered with a sigh. "Do you feel like having a storm on the spot over it, Bab?"

Bab sat irresolute and mute for the moment. It was early morning, just after breakfast. The green willow table stood between them still with its tray of quaint Nuremberg ware. Down at the end of the drive the waves rolled in, blue and foamed. It had been just a year since Fennimore had been there, and he had said he was going away forever.

"I wish the world were not round," she exclaimed, passionately. "They never go away forever. They just go round and come back again. They ought to tumble off the edge."

"My dear Bab," said Mrs. Lawrence firmly, and in her very best elder sister style, "I don't see why you should feel anything at all over Fenn's return. He's nothing at all to you. You threw him over without the least provocation."

"That's a nice thing to say; a nice, loyal thing, Anne, when you know the whole circumstances. He didn't even deny that he had visited at the Raymond's the same time she was there."

"They were only tacitly engaged, and it was four years ago when he came out of college. Any girl with any charm at all and tact can make college boys propose to her. They simply beg you to encourage them, and she really was very pretty, Bab."

"I hate her," Bab declared with dignity to the adjacent atmosphere. "I had no idea that you would invite him either while I was staying here. But if you really want him so much, Anne, I shall go straight over to Olive and stay with her till your house party is over."

And all Anne's coaxing availed not. She would go. Anne might do as she pleased about writing to Fennimore and telling him the coast was clear. She piled a couple of suit cases, a touselled Griffin and herself into the car, and departed the day before the arrival of guests.

It was a run of twelve miles over to Lyndhurst, and Olive welcomed her gladly, sympathetically. They five been chums at Bryn Mawr together, and close friends even after Olive's marriage to Fennimore's best friend, Murray Warner. Lyndhurst was secluded among the pines. Murray telephoned from town he would not be down until Sunday, and Olive said they would just relax and rest and talk over old times.

She knew the whole affair over Fennimore; had even known the girl—Marion Wallace.

"And, dear, she's married a perfect old mummy with oodles of cash and five grown children. So if she had cared for Fenn, she could have had him when you broke the engagement."

"If Fenn had wanted her," Bab corrected, tearfully. "I never felt really sure, Olive; only appearances were against him. He needn't have gone there while she was a guest and we were engaged. He might have known how it would make me feel."

"Fenn hasn't an ounce of intuition," said Olive, musingly. "He probably never thought of her at all. Why won't you see him now?"

"I'm afraid I'd be a little idiot and forgive him the minute he asked me."

"Maybe he wouldn't ask you, goosie."

Bab flushed, her dark eyes wide and indignant.

"Yes, he would too. He never gives up."

Sunday morning she slept until 7. Olive never believed in breakfast trays. She could hear her down on the veranda talking to somebody, and the car was standing outside the garage, so she knew that Murray was home. Dressed in a pink chiffon morning negligee, with a pink lace cap, laced edged, she stepped down stairs and out on the veranda without warning before Fennimore, drinking his second cup of coffee leisurely with Olive.

"I want to speak to Murray just a minute, please," Olive said hurriedly.

"He's in the study," Bab said.

"How could you go there when you knew she was there?" she said. "After—after you had been engaged to her."

"I never loved her."

"You must have asked her to marry you. You must have kissed her—often. And you always call her Marion."

"Bab, listen to me. Stop that crying. He held her hands closely. 'A boy of twenty does foolish things. Let's thank God I didn't marry her. We'd have been wretched and in the court long ago. I want you for life, sweetheart, do you hear? You sent me away a year ago and I went, like a chump, but I won't go this time. Will you stop or must I call Olive?'"

"She married an old mummy with five children," Bab told him contentedly a few minutes later. "Aren't you glad, Fenn?"

"Delighted," answered Fenn fervently.

MOTHER GIVES TEN SONS TO COUNTRY

Five of Irish Woman's Sons Are Dead and Others Are Wounded or Prisoners

BY WILBUR S. FORREST
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
LONDON, Sept. 10.—(By Mail).—The mother's record in this war is held by Mrs. Mary Furry, of Loughrea, County Galway, Ireland.

She has given ten sons to the British army. Five are dead in France. One lies in a hospital recovering from wounds. One is a prisoner in Germany. One remains fighting and another is nursing a right arm shattered by a bullet.

This is not all of Mrs. Furry's fighting family. She has a daughter, Mrs. Mary Cossey, Rumford, Eng. Mrs. Cossey's husband is one of Rumford's 2,000 fighting men at the front. Several weeks ago, Mrs. Cossey supported her large family of small children with the aid of two brothers-in-law. Now they have gone to war and she is struggling on alone.

What Mrs. Furry and Mrs. Mary Cossey have suffered in England's greatest crisis is the story of hundreds of homes of the working classes in the British Isles. A similar story can be told in a smaller way from the mansions of British aristocracy and from the "castles" of the middle classes. But it does not leave the sting of poverty that confronts Mrs. Furry, of County Galway and her sisters of the lower classes. She will suffer until her body is planted in Irish soil and with her, thousands of other women whose husbands have left the spade and shovel.

If conscription comes in Great Britain it will not find the husbands, brothers and sons of the Mary Furrys and Mary Cosseys among the "slackers."

Laboring Element Scarce
The laboring element is becoming gradually the scarcest element in Britain. Cities, towns and villages alike have emptied their houses and streets. These men are today in the majority in Northern France, the Dardanelles and other theaters of war. The upper and middle classes are in the hopeless numerical minority.

There is one obscure little street in Walworth, a suburb of South London, that tells the tale. This street is in the heart of the "working" locality. It is called "Trafalgar street" and is simply two rows of 150 small brick houses and shops built closely together. The war office has distributed cards of honor for every family that sends a man to the army. There are 195 cards of honor in the windows of these little shops and houses. Children play with cocked hats and wooden guns in the narrow street. About half of them will never see their fathers again. They will go into the factories their fathers left as soon as their arms are strong enough.

War Coments Classes
The war has brought all British classes together—in the trenches. It has brought all classes at home down to the same plane—during the war. But what is to become of the Mrs. Furrys and Mrs. Cosseys after the war, is a question that is hard to answer.

Famous Flower Market.
Rio de Janeiro is noted for its flower market, which is but a short distance from the point where every train in the city passes. This market is kept entirely by men in European clothes—Portuguese-speaking individuals who seem to have inherited the Portuguese love of flowers. The most magnificent dahlias I have ever seen were in the shops of Sao Paulo, Brazil.—Exchange.

riedly, setting her cup down. "Bab, dear, will you pour for me?"

Bab took her seat in ominous silence. Then slowly, almost perforce, she raised her lashes and met Fenn's eyes full of suppressed enjoyment of the situation.

"You did this on purpose," she said haughtily.

"I did not. I didn't know you were here."

"I left Anne's so she might have you at her house party."

"Most sweet and thoughtful of you. I came here so that you might stay with Anne without fear of my company."

Silence. Bab poured herself a cup of coffee.

Bab's eyebrows raised slightly.

"Is this necessary?"

"Very. I only have two minutes, and you'll escape me. You may even make a getaway in the car before I can stop you. Bab, do you really want to escape from me?"

Bab hesitated. The old wooing charm of his voice swept over her again. She closed her eyes to keep from looking at him. And slowly the tears came.

"I never loved her."

"You must have asked her to marry you. You must have kissed her—often. And you always call her Marion."

"Bab, listen to me. Stop that crying. He held her hands closely. 'A boy of twenty does foolish things. Let's thank God I didn't marry her. We'd have been wretched and in the court long ago. "She married an old mummy with five children," Bab told him contentedly a few minutes later. "Aren't you glad, Fenn?"

"Delighted," answered Fenn fervently.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 28.—

William R. Lyons and Mary Henderson presenting themselves to be married by Court Commissioner Bates, said not a word. Neither did Bates, who sat down at a typewriter and typed the wedding ceremony. Spaces were left for the bride and groom, who filled in their parts of the ceremony. Then Bates wrote at the bottom of the peculiar document, "I pronounce you man and wife." THE TRIBUNE'S FAITH IN LA CROSSE

In purchasing the excellent building at Fifth and Jay streets which has housed the TRIBUNE for many years the TRIBUNE company gives evidence of its faith in La Crosse and in South Fifth street. Many citizens qualified to speak with authority have referred to our purchase as a "good bargain." No doubt it is an excellent bargain, but to us the bargain lies more in future possibilities than in present values.

The fact is that Fifth street is the coming big street. The population bulks largest in the southern suburbs; they will reach the market center over Fifth street. Churches, Y. M. C. A. and parks check business growth upon Main street. South of Pearl, Fourth and Third streets fail to sustain the snappy freshness of a thrifty mercantile section. On the other hand Fifth street has been coming fast. North of Main are the Holway and Law garages, La Crosse and Elks clubs, Colman company, Open Exhaust, Hutton Art store,
New Process store, the Hall & Grover restaurant, Imperial Candy Store, flower store and F. H. Reiman's ladies' ready-to-wear store—all within a block. South of Main we have the E. R. Barron company, City Book store, Eagle hotel, Runckel's drug store, H. M. Sieger Fish market, La Crosse Telephone company, La Crosse Theater, Theater Candy store, Kienabs' flowers, Oswald gown shop, Baker-Niebuhr, Tribune, Marinello company—all within a fraction more than a block, and we'll throw in two buffets for good measure.

We make it that in a city with every residence and store occupied and business and families begging for quarters, expanding business must have an outlet, and that South Fifth street, being the line of least resist-ence and offering the most attractive locations, will furnish the outlet for the stretching giant of trade.

Optimism, even though young and buoyant as is ours, may not venture to hope that this new evidence of permanency will still the eleven-year-old and precocious rumor that The TRIBUNE, some dark night, will "fold its tents like the Arab and succumbently steal away," for the "wish" that "is father of the thought" is reluctant to perish, but henceforth it must be admitted that ours is a difficult task to fold.

We thank the citizens and the substantial business interests of La Crosse for the genuine pleasure they exhibit over our latest investment.
Their approval is a great inspiration to us to lend further and greater service to the city and its adjacent territory. It is a splendid city and a splendid section, and it is with deep gratification that we experience the sensation of being rooted to its soil like its great trees—heart of the heart, soul of the soul of the community we have chosen and which we love to believe has chosen us.

THE VERSATILE "PORKER"

La Crosse hunters may be interested in new possibilities of the pig.
The beast is really good for something besides ham, bacon, sausage and head cheese. A Mississippi man living near Natchez, Ashland Shields by name, claims to have a "bird hog" which he uses like a dog to hunt quail.

"The hog holds a covey perfectly," says Mr. Shields, "and never flushes a bird. When he locates a covey his tail uncurls and becomes perfectly rigid, and he lifts his left hind foot, making a perfect point."

His education, the owner explains, was acquired by long association with hunting dogs. The hog, being naturally intelligent and adaptable, gained the canine habits and outlook.

The story opens up many possibilities. If hogs are so bright and capable, why shouldn't they be used for other domestic purposes? Why, for instance, shouldn't they be trained as beasts of burden? A hog, as everybody knows who has ever tried to hold one, is nearly as strong as a horse, and has ten times as much will power. Just harness him and turn his volition into useful channels, and he'll earn his keep while he's getting ready for the butcher.

THE EMOTIONS OF MR. JAMES

The expatriation of Henry James, the American novelist who recently became a British subject, seems to have been caused by disappointment over the American war policy. He can't understand why we should be so lukewarm toward England, and by consequence, as it seems to him, so friendly to Germany. So he has gone over completely to that dear England, whose emotions he can and does understand.

Since the news came of Mr. James' desertion, his American admirers have been trying to get his viewpoint from the author's recent writings, which is supposed to portray the actual emotions aroused in the James bosom by the great conflict.

"There was the savor, the desireratum, the force and quantity that we have been talking of—a savor immense and extraordinary, in relation to which the maddening that I have called subjective came directly from the fact that it is not, like the sav-ors to which I just paid tribute,
"dished," served, administered after a fashion of precious things in general, isn't perhaps in any degree the result of what passes in other societies for preparation, it grows wild, and I had doubtless partaken of it crude—with the marvellous effect of its not disagreeing with me."

So, there you have it! Do you get him?

In the flower of her youth even a widow has her weeds.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

"God Pity the Children Who Dwell in the Slums"

(Dedicated to the memory of the late Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.)
From dawn until twilight the poor little feet
Are wearily tramping the hot dusty street.
Regardless of danger, unheeding the dust
Begging for bread, if only a crust.
Father and mother the victims of rum,
God pity the children, who dwell in
the slum.

From dark until daylight. Oh where do they rest.
No father's strong arm, no mother's warm breast;
Angels of Heaven your loving watch keep O'er the poor little wanderers' sleep.
Innocent victims of squalor and rum.
God pity the children who dwell in
the slum.

O'er all our fair cities grand mansions arise,
Their columns of marble point up to the skies,
There millionaires' children and beauty and health
Are revelling amid the gay pleasures of wealth.

They never know hunger or suffer with cold;
Their wants all supplied from coffers of gold.

From your beautiful tables, oh scatter the crumbs
And feed the poor children who dwell in the slums.
—Fannie E. Pool, Hobart, Oklahoma.

Offered an Appropriate Hymn
A special preacher about to ascend the pulpit in a country church, was asked if he would like any special hymn to be sung to agree with his sermon.

"No, no," he replied; "as a matter of fact, I hardly ever know what I'm going to say until I am in the pulpit."

"Oh, well, in that case," said the vicar, "we had better have the hymn, 'For Those at Sea.'"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Mother Hates Falsehoods
"Now, Willy," said the mother,
"you told me a falsehood. Do you know what happens to little boys who tell falsehoods?"

"No, ma'am," replied Willy sheepishly.
"Why," continued the mother, "a big black man with only one eye in the center of his forehead comes and flies with him up to the moon and makes him pick sticks for the balance of his life. Now, you will never tell a falsehood again, will you? It is awfully wicked!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

True Fighters
"The Black Watch are fighting so well in France that even the Germans praise them. Wonderful fighters, the Irish!"

The speaker was W. Bourke Cochran. He continued:

"When I think of the valor of the Black Watch regiment I recall the story of Pat McCann."

"Pat came home one night with a split lip; a broken nose and a split lip; a front tooth was gone as well.

Devoted to His Happiness

Mother Jones said to a reporter at one of the industrial relations' commission's hearings in Washington:

"The employers' argument in that case looked very altruistic on the surface. It was like the young wife in the new dress at the shore."

she slipped on her dinner jacket,
"you look nice in that new dress, love,

About His Gait

He was the slowest boy on earth and had been sacked at three places in two weeks, so his parents had apprenticed him to a naturalist.

But even he found him slow. It took him two hours to give the canaries their seed, three to stick a pin through a dead butterfly and four to pick a convolulus. The only point about him was he was willing.

"And what," he asked, having spent a whole afternoon changing the goldfishes' water, "shall I do now, sir?"

The naturalist ran his fingers through his locks.

"Well, Robert," he replied, at length, "I think you might take the tortoise out for a run."

Prayed for the Landlord

I recall an incident or two in connection with that sermon. In the course of conducting the service, desiring to pray for the country, I said:

"Bless our land, Lord, dismay, but few noticed the double possibility of the petition. I remember an old Dutch elder approaching me, at the close of the service, and saying:

"Dot's goot; you have still one more year at the seminary?" and when I answered affirmatively, he said:

"Dot's goot; I hope you will improve a great deal."—Christian Her-

KAZAN
By James Oliver Curwood
Author of The Danger Trail, The Honor of The Big Snows, Philip Steele, Etc.
Copyright 1914, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

When he reached the shadows he looked back. Gray Wolf was following him. She was only a few yards behind. And now she came up to him, a little timidly, and she, too, looked back to the dark blotch of life out on the lake. And as she stood there close beside him, Kazan sniffed at something in the air that was not the scent of blood, nor the perfume of the balsam and spruce. It was a thing that seemed to come to him from the clear stars, the cloudless moon, the strange and beautiful quiet of the night itself. And its presence seemed to be a part of Gray Wolf.

He looked at her, and he found Gray Wolf's eyes alert and questioning. She was young—so young that she seemed scarcely to have passed out of puppyhood. Her body was strong and slim and beautifully shaped. In the moonlight the hair under her throat and along her back shone sleek and soft. She whined at the red staring light in Kazan's eyes, and it was not a puppy's whimper.
Kazan moved toward her, and stood with his head over her back, facing the pack. He felt her trembling against his chest. He looked at the moon and the stars again, the mystery of Gray Wolf and of the night throbbing in his blood.

Not much of his life had been spent at the posts. Most of it had been on the trail—in the traces—and the spirit of the mating season had only stirred him from afar. But it was very near now. Gray Wolf lifted her head. Her soft muzzle touched the wound on his neck, and in the gentleness of that touch, in the low sound in her throat, Kazan felt and heard again that wonderful something that had come with the caress of the woman's hand and the sound of her voice.

He turned, whining, his back bristling, his head high and defiant of the wilderness which he faced.
Gray Wolf trotted close at his side as they entered into the gloom of the forest.

CHAPTER V.
The Fight in the Snow.

They found shelter that night under thick balsam, and when they lay down on the soft carpet of needles which the snow had not covered, Gray Wolf snuggled her warm body close to Kazan and licked his wounds. The day broke with a velvety fall of snow, so white and thick that they could not see a dozen leaps ahead of them in the open. It was quite warm, and so still that the whole world seemed filled with only the flutter and whisper of the snowflakes.
Through this day Kazan and Gray Wolf traveled side by side. Time and again he turned his head back to the ridge over which he had come, and Gray Wolf could not understand the strange note that trembled in his throat.

In the afternoon they returned to what was left of the caribou doe on the lake. In the edge of the forest Gray Wolf hung back. She did not yet know the meaning of poison-bait, deadfalls and traps, but the instinct of numberless generations was in her veins, and it told her there was danger in visiting a second time a thing that had grown cold in death.

Kazan had seen masters work about carcasses that the wolves had left. He had seen them conceal traps cleverly, and roll little capsules of strychnine in the fat of the entrails, and once he had put a foreleg in a trap, and had experienced its sting and pain and deadly grip. But he did not have Gray Wolf's fear. He urged her to accompany him to the white hummocks on the ice, and at last she went with him and sank back restlessly on her haunches, while he dug out the bones and pieces of flesh that the snow had kept from freezing.

But she would not eat, and at last Kazan went and sat on his haunches at her side, and with her looked at what he had dug out from under the snow. He sniffed the air. He could not smell danger, but Gray Wolf told him that it might be there.

She told him many other things in the days and nights that followed.
The third night Kazan himself gathered the hunt-pack and led in the chase. Three times that month, he led the moon left the skies, he led the chase, and each time there was a kill. But as the snows began to grow softer under his feet he found a greater and greater companionship in Gray Wolf, and they hunted alone, living on the big white rabbits. In all the world he had loved, but two things, the girl with the shining hair and the hands that had caressed him —and Gray Wolf.

He did not leave the big plain, and often he took his mate to the top of the ridge, and he would try to tell her what he had left back there.
With the dark nights the call of the woman became so strong upon him that he was filled with a longing to go back, and take Gray Wolf with him.

Something happened very soon after that. They were crossing the open plain one day when up on the face of the ridge Kazan saw something that made his heart stand still.
A man, with a dog-sledge and team, was coming down into their world.
The wind had not warned them, and suddenly Kazan saw something glisten in the man's hands. He knew what it was. It was the thing that spat fire and thunder, and killed.

He gave his warning to Gray Wolf, and they were off like the wind, side by side. And then came the sound—and Kazan's hatred of men burst forth in a snarl as he leaped. There was a queer humming over their heads. The sound from behind came again, and this time Gray Wolf gave a yelp of pain, and rolled over and over in the snow. She was on her feet again in an instant, and Kazan dropped behind her, and ran there until they reached the shelter of the timber. Gray Wolf lay down, and began licking the wound in her shoulder.
Kazan faced the ridge. The man was taking up into their trail. He stopped where Gray Wolf had fallen, and examined the snow. Then he came on.

Kazan urged Gray Wolf to her feet, and they made for the thick swamp close to the lake. All that day they kept in the face of the wind, and when Gray Wolf lay down Kazan stole back over their trail, watching and sniffing the air.

For days after that Gray Wolf ran lame, and when once they came upon the remains of an old camp, Kazan's teeth were bared in snarling hatred of the man-scent that had been left behind. Growing in him there was a desire for vengeance—vengeance for his own hurts, and for Gray Wolf's. He tried to nose out the man-trail under the cover of fresh snow, and Gray Wolf circled around him anxiously, and tried to lure him deeper into the forest. At last he fol-

Three days later the new moon struck a trail. It was fresh—so fresh

FORWARD PASS IS LOOKED ON WITH FAVOR IN EAST

Since Memorable Defeat of Army by Notre Dame in 1913 Special Tossing Grows in Popularity

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Keen students of football believe that the much maligned forward pass will come into its own this season, and that more of the open style game will be exhibited than in years. If they are right, it marks the capitulation of a raft of eastern critics and particularly eastern coaches, who, heretofore, have gazed down with rather lofty disdain on that play.

The east for years has looked askance at the forward pass. It has been regarded as a last ditch resort—to be used only in the last half or quarter in a final desperate attempt to pull a game out of the fire. It was too dangerous, they contended, and it never would work against a really formidable defense.

The first big interscholastic combat in 1913 gave 'em a jolt. Little Notre Dame, with a rattling good football team and no reputation, came east to meet Uncle Sam's army aggregation at West Point. What happened is history now. The Hoosiers simply buried the soldiers under an avalanche of skillful passing, executed by little Gus Dorais and his mates. The Army was squelched, 35 to 13. The east gasped. This wasn't football, at least not as she was played in the east. However, it didn't take the Army long to get "hep" to the situation, and in the annual Army-Navy scrap that same year, the Soldiers won hands down. The victory was directly attributable to clever passing. Other eastern coaches, however, have been slow in following suit.

There still seems to be a wide diversity of opinion about the merits of the spiral tossing. Its opponents say that it is too dangerous, that under present rules loss more often results than gain. They also rise to remark that it is too quick—that the whole aspect of a game can be changed in less than a minute, and for that reason they liken it to stock market speculation—you're "a millionaire one minute and a pauper the next."

Be that as it may, it is generally conceded that the forward pass adds a lot to the game from the spectator's viewpoint. Two teams, both good on defense, vainly bucking at each other's stonewall lines, and resorting to futile end runs, doesn't appeal to the populace as does the quick flight of the oval with half a dozen boys ready to hop on the neck of the fellow who receives it. Too, there is always a probability that someone will leap high in the air, grab the ball and make the spectacular run through a jagged field that never fails to bring the stands to their feet. The opponents of the pass obtain their argument in cases like this, that it is too dangerous. Its supporters come back with the argument that when a team is developed in skillful passing as was the Notre Dame eleven in 1913, this danger is reduced to an unimportant minimum. Therefore the whole question simmers down to a question of developing skill in passing and while the pass may be bad for one team it may be the saviour of another.

The younger school of players that has come up since 1912 and 1913 are better drilled in passing the ball and getting away with it after the catch than the boys of the old school. So, if the forward pass isn't already here it's coming strong, and in the opinion of most coaches it won't be long until it will be the biggest feature of a team's offense.

ROME SURPRISED AT POPE'S ATTACK ON CONSERVATISM

Many Changes Are Made in Sacred College and in Various Papal Offices

BY ALICE ROHE (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ROME, Aug. 27.—(By Mail).—All Rome, not only the Vatican circles but various shades of the White and Black party—is discussing Pope Benedict XV's latest decisive step against bigotry or more politely ultra conservatism.

As a result an eminent cardinal has been scheduled for promotion to the position of cancelliere, quite in accordance with the Vatican political proverb "Promoveatur ut amoveatur." Which in plain English means "Let him be promoted so he may be cleared out of our way."

At any rate Cardinal Cagiano de Azevedo credited with being one of the most liberal members of the Sacred college will be no more head of the Congregation of Clerics and Regulars. For his insistence that the clerics and all connected with the Vatican should not read the newspapers issued by the Roman Publishing society has brought him in direct opposition to Pope Benedict XV. The order that no clerics should read even the Corriere d'Italia, Rome's semi-official clerical paper, and that other daily newspapers published in various Italian cities and of such a Black complexion that their clerical sympathies were above question, caused Pope Benedict XV to take a hand in the matter. Cardinal de Azevedo even though cognizant of the Pope's liberal ideas and his desire that newspapers be permitted the clergy fell back upon the technical authority invested in his office and gave forth the definite order. Thereupon the Pope whose first step upon ascending the Papal throne was to bring into accord the two elements of modernity and liberalism—graciously slated the cardinal for promotion to the position of cancelliere. This act followed an open one of Cardinal Azevedo, who, several days ago issued a circular in which he prohibited the reading of the Roman morning papers, denouncing especially one morning Catholic paper. He even condemned one which the Pope had approved.

SINGING CHAPLAIN SINGS TO MEN OF A GREATER ITALY

ROME, Aug. 25.—(By Mail).—The singing chaplain of Kingdom Come they called him up in the blood drenched valley of the Isonzo. For when the Austrian bullets were shrieking past and the shrapnel was tearing human lives into shreds and screams were making a writhing hell of that mountain paradise, the little chaplain of Castellano was calling to the men who were fighting to think of the Greater Kingdom of Italy and to the men who were falling to think of the still Greater Kingdom to come.

In between battles the little priest from Castellano, who was one of the first to offer his services as an army chaplain, used to sing as the bersagliers and the other soldiers had never heard singing. Sometimes his eyes grew dim as he thought of his parish in Castellano and his singing school founded in honor of the great Vatican music master, Perosi, where he taught the boys of Castellano to sing the beautiful church music. Pietro Giannuzzi, lieutenant chaplain of the regiment left behind him one of the accomplished ambitions of his life, a real singing school, when he marched away for the war. But when he saw the stars upon his arm he said he had done a bigger thing, he had seen a great bond woven between the country he loved and the church he worshipped.

Giannuzzi was one of those brave priests who had suffered long when dissensions between church and state made the duty of Italian clergy obscure. When he marched to war he typified the spirit of religious Italy, bound to the church but bound to the Patria by blood ties.

All the soldiers loved this brave little chaplain who was always there to give the saving rites to the soldiers who fell.

The first Sunday Giannuzzi celebrated mass on the battlefield and on "redeemed" Italian soil, before one of the portable army altars supplied Italy by the Pope, when he saw the Italian soldiers gather round worshipping the church and state in one, as he said, his prayer had been answered. Then he hurried away to help some poor fellow cross the divide into Kingdom Come.

"Don't be afraid of Austrian bullets—think of Kingdom Come," he cried while the officers endeavored to dissuade him from taking so many chances.

But the army chaplain whose thoughts are of his country and of his religion, finds his place beside the men who are falling. And Giannuzzi was always near the front.

"They wouldn't kill the priest," gasped a young soldier from Tivoli, his lung pierced by an Austrian bullet. The chaplain was bending over him and the last rites of the church were being given the dying boy when a bullet flying true and certain struck him. He died there on the battlefield with the sacred words of the church on his lips—the first Italian army chaplain to fall.

"KILKENNY"

Fiske O'Hara, under the direction of Augustus Pilon, Jr., will present his new play, "Kilkenny," at the La Crosse theater tonight. The story of "Kilkenny" is laid in Kilkenny in 1810 and is in three acts. David Conway is the guardian of Moira Carroll, and is anxious to marry his ward to Maurice Levine, a man of wealth but a profligate. Conway has become involved, through speculation, in the Mexican Gold Mine company. When that bubble, one of the many of that age, bursts, he is facing ruin. He has deceived his ward as to her true age to delay making an accounting of the fortune left her by her father. From 1803 to 1819 there existed in Kilkenny a company of amateurs, who gave performances for charity two weeks each year in October, during the "Kilkenny Carnival." Richard Desmond was the leading man and Moira Carroll the leading lady of this company. Playing many love scenes together, they naturally fell in love with each other. Conway forbids Moira to appear at the theater the following night, the last of the season, asserting she must obey him as he is still her guardian and she is not of age. Richard discovers that Moira is a few months over twenty-one, and her own mistress. An attempt to abduct her is foiled and Richard tells Conway he will marry Moira with or without his consent, that he knows she is of age and that he will demand an accounting of his guardianship. "JAPLAND"

"Japland," one of the largest traveling organizations, employing the joint services of John W. Vogel's Big Minstrels in its entirety, also a complete cast for opera, a girl chorus of twenty, concert band and double symphony orchestra, will be seen at the La Crosse theater Wednesday and Thursday, September 29 and 30. The book deals with the world's tour of a famous grand opera company which encounters opposition at Tokio with an American minstrel. An informal reception in their honor is held in the tea garden of the Mikado, the band and orchestra of Vogel's Big Minstrels furnishing the music for the occasion. A grand double performance in the form of an out-of-doors cabaret is the result of the meeting, the artists of both combinations endeavoring to outdo the other that the mikado and his suite be entertained in royal American fashion.

"TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE"

It is impossible to say how many people have read "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," the delightful story which John Fox, Jr., wrote around the lives of the primitive mountain folk of the Virginia Hills. The publishers admit that they sold more than a million copies of the book and as three times that number, perhaps four times, must have borrowed it from the public libraries, it is not overstepping the boundary of truth to say that 3,000,000 readers have followed June from her cabin in the hills to the lonely pine in which she believes the spirit of her sister dwells to watch over her while she stays in the Gap.

The fact that the production is to appear in the La Crosse theater October 1 and 2, Friday and Saturday, with a Saturday matinee, should interest every local theater goer.

COFFEE

The Misses Walker and Miss Gertrude Heydon entertained this afternoon at a delightful four o'clock coffee. Thirty-five guests were present. Small tables were placed about the room from which the guests were served. The decorations were salvia, daisies and other fall flowers. A pleasant surprise was the presence of Mrs. W. R. Chapman of Minneapolis, a sister of the Misses Walker.

A BRIDGE PARTY

This evening the Misses Walker and Heydon will be hostesses at a bridge party of seven tables.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB

The Twentieth Century convened for its regular meeting yesterday at the home of Mrs. C. W. Lewis, 222 South Tenth street. The hostesses were Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. J. N. Moncreiff. The greater portion of the time of the members yesterday was taken up in making final plans for the convention of the State Federation of Women's clubs which is to be held here Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. The sessions of the convention will be held at the Congregational church, with the exception of the two evening sessions, one of which will be held at the La Crosse Theater and the other at the high school.

Following the serving of refreshments by the hostesses, the study of the opera was taken up by Mrs. George Schweizer. Several selections from two of Mozart's operas, Don Giovanni and Sedulo, were given on the Victrola.

There will be no meeting of the club next week.

WARSAW RUSSIA'S PRINCIPAL CENTER

Polish Capital Is the Commercial Capital of Russia Owing to Close Relation with Teutons

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—The great importance of Warsaw as a commercial center is not only due to the fact that Warsaw is the capital of Poland and, with a population of over a million, the third biggest city of the empire, but to the fact that the Polish capital is one of the most important centers of the international Russian merchandise exchange and at the same time one of the most developed industrial cities of the country, says a dispatch to the Vossische Zeitung.

Warsaw owes its importance in Russian foreign trade partly to its favorable geographical location, the city being especially near to Germany as well as to Austria-Hungary. The latter two countries play a very important part in the import and export trade with Russia, and because of that a very considerable part of the trade with Russia goes via Warsaw. The result is that a considerable number of the most important firms of interior Russia, as well as of other countries, have established branches in Warsaw to distribute goods in Poland or forward them either abroad or to interior points in Russia.

Warsaw thus is in some ways an antechamber for Russia's foreign trade, a circumstance which assures the city its predominant importance in international trade.

Warsaw's position as an industrial city is almost as important for the commercial conditions of Russia in general and of Poland in particular.

Although the seat of the highly developed Polish textile industry is Lodz, the center of the flourishing Polish mining industry, Sosnowice and Dombrowa-Gornicza, but Warsaw profits from the importance of these industrial centers of Poland. Moreover, Warsaw possesses extensive textile mills of its own. All other Polish industries are centered in Warsaw, to the leather, paint and chemical and milling and sugar industries. The Polish metallurgical industry has its center in Warsaw.

The fact that Polish industry, which is partly highly developed, is dependent on Warsaw and that, on the other hand, the most important domestic and foreign firms are represented in Warsaw by branches of their own has made Warsaw a fertile field for banks.

REDMEN ATTEND FAIR

MANDAN, N. D., Sept. 28.—Through leniency on the part of superintendents of the Standing Rock reservation, Indians are permitted to attend and participate in the Missouri Slope State fair, being held here this week. In recent years, the reservation administration, presumably acting upon a same general amusement, forbid the Indians attending the fairs. Superintendent Covey, however, indicated that he believed the red man would gain by attending the white man's fair, and he admonished the Sioux, to investigate agricultural exhibits. Twenty-five hundred red men are here today, many bringing their squaws and families. A big beef barbecue is planned for tomorrow.

PRESIDENT VOTES IN PRIMARY

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 28.—President Wilson came "back home" here today for a few hours in order to participate in the New Jersey primary election. The president will return to Washington this afternoon, in order to take part in the Grand Army reunion.

The "Know How" of Cookery is the result of long experience and study. For years, expert cooks have been converting the inner meats of choice Indian Corn into delicious, golden-brown crisps—Post Toasties.

A constant endeavor to make Toasties better has produced the

which have a new flavour and form—a true corn flavour and tender crispness unknown to "corn flakes" of the past.

The new process rises tiny pearl-like "puffs" on each flake—a distinguishing feature; also imparts substantial form—the new Toasties don't mush down when cream or milk is added.

They come factory-fresh in wax-sealed packages—as crisp and appetizing as when they leave the ovens—and that's mighty good!

FIGHTING NEAR RIGA INTENSE

Germans Get New Supplies of Ammunition and Heavy Bombardment Is Made

LONDON, Sept. 28.—No official confirmation has come either from Petrograd or Vienna of a report that the Russians have recaptured Brody, in north-east Galicia, and are about to recapture Kovel, southeast of Brest-Litovsk.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 28.—The fighting around Dvinsk and in the region southeast of Riga is now becoming more violent. The Germans evidently have received the supplies of ammunition for which they were waiting and are bombarding Russian positions all along the Dvina.

The czar's troops, however, are more than holding their own, and besides the 1,000 prisoners mentioned in last night's communique, have made other large captures. From the Dvinsk region to Pinsk, stubborn fighting is going on with no important changes in the situation.

The Austrians have been reinforced in both the Volhynian region and in Galicia and are on the offensive. The Russians have been forced to retire from Novo Alexinec, but have captured more than 1,000 Austrian prisoners.

rushed up his reserves and called for reinforcements. Throughout yesterday his troops made repeated efforts to get a new grip on their positions and start a counter offensive against French hosts. The British downed each separate attempt, maintaining themselves in their newly captured works and improved their hold on the territory before Lens by capturing additional trench sections.

The French losses in the first three days of the fighting are understood to have been surprisingly small in view of the fact that the French everywhere were on the offensive. This was because German trenches had been so badly wrecked by concentrated artillery fire that the enemy could offer no effectual resistance.

Fought in Storm
Wounded officers arriving here reported that several of the attacks of the first day of the battle were fought in a driving rain that drenched the men to the skin. To add to their discomfort a raw wind was blowing from the Vosges.

Military critics here are particularly elated over the allies' successes because the men showed no ill-effects from a year of comparative inaction in the trenches.

The Temps gives warning that too much must not be expected of the new offensive movement of the allies.

"We believe that a general offensive movement is about to materialize," said the Temps, "and the new phase of the war has begun auspiciously. It is obvious that the Germans will at once reinforce threatened points, but to do this they must weaken others. This will draw new offensive movements from the allies at points now seemingly inactive."

Gain Near Souchez
By steady onslaughts throughout last night the French gained ground east and south of Souchez, approaching the hills held by the Germans in those regions.

French troops stormed the strongly fortified German second line trenches at several points in the Champagne region. Slight progress was made toward La Justice, north of Massiges and a few miles west of Ville-A-Tourne. Further west a French detachment is approaching Hill Number 185 north of the Wacques farm.

At other sectors of the Champagne front the French inflicted heavy losses on the enemy, though they were unable in some instances to pierce the strong German wire defenses.

SCHOOL HEALTH TOPIC OF CITY HEALTH OVERSEER

Parents' and Teachers' Association of Normal Listens to Dr. Furstman at First Session

At the opening meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' association of the State Normal school last evening Dr. J. M. Furstman, city health commissioner, discussed public health problems as they are affected by the schools.

Much interest was manifested in the new doctrine dealing with methods of dissemination, and in the announcement that fumigation as it has been practiced has been relegated to a position of relatively small importance.

A colloquy between Dr. Furstman and Prof. W. H. Sanders, head of the department of education, resulted in a definite understanding as to methods of co-operation between the health department and the state normal school.

A petition drawn by a committee of which H. J. Hirschheimer is chairman, putting the subject of fire drills up to the faculty, went over for consultation with the faculty, on motion of Professor Sanders.

Miss Selma Larson favored the company with a piano selection rendered with excellent feeling, and Mrs. Homer E. Cotton won applause with her violin. Her selections were two Russian pieces: Valse Triste by Sibelius, and Orientale by Caesar Cui. Prof. F. E. Nurse was introduced and on behalf of L. P. Benetz, superintendent of the city schools, and of himself, appealed for support of classes in conversational French to be established by these two educators.

eral inquiries as to whether or not, during the period of the interstate fair, owners of automobiles may operate their automobiles upon the streets of the city of La Crosse for carriage of passengers to and from the fair grounds for hire, without having filed an indemnity bond with the railroad commission of Wisconsin, and procured a special carrier's license for such automobile, in accord with the provisions of chapter 546 of the laws of 1915, I will say:

"It is my opinion that the purpose of this law is primarily to protect the public, not only such part of the public as may ride in the motor vehicle so operated, but that greater portion using the streets and highways, who might be endangered by the reckless operation of automobiles, and be, under ordinary circumstances, without a remedy because the operator is not financially responsible."

What is a Jitney?
"Under the statute, whether or not an indemnity bond must be filed and a license secured from the railroad commission seems to be determined by the inquiry as to whether the motor vehicle is operated upon the public streets for the carriage of passengers for hire and affording a means of local street transportation by indiscriminately accepting and discharging such persons as may offer themselves for transportation along the course on which such motor vehicle is operated or may be running. I do not think that the automobile must be operated on schedule as street cars are supposed to be operated or that the automobile must invariably travel the same route. The operation of the motor vehicle comes within the statute providing there is a fixed starting point and a fixed destination, and even deviation from the usual route or change in the starting and stopping place does not relieve from the requirements of the statute."

"I asked the attorney general for his decision some days ago. On Saturday, in reply, I was advised that the attorney general's office had submitted the proposition to the railroad commission. Not receiving any information from the railroad commission, I telephoned them yesterday and was advised that it was not prepared to make a definite ruling."

"I am of the opinion that persons operating automobiles on our streets for the indiscriminate carriage of persons to and from the fair grounds for hire must file an indemnity bond and procure a license as provided by the above mentioned law."

"I am authorized by Mr. Schlaach, district attorney of La Crosse county, to say that he concurs in the foregoing ruling."

"Yours truly,
J. E. HIGBEE,
City Attorney."

Mrs. Robertson, killed in depot, John Collins, killed by falling wall. Four unidentified white men, Unidentified Indian.

Fifteen unidentified negroes. Witnesses were found today who declared there were two big explosions. This was borne out by the fact that there was a large quantity of dynamite stored in the demolition freight shed. A second detonation, following immediately after the first is believed to have resulted from the ignition of the dynamite.

developed today that there was but one workman employed in repairing the tank car in the Santa Fe railroad yards, when a spark from his hammer ignited 250 barrels of gasoline and resulted in an explosion as terrific as an equal quantity of dynamite. The workman was Ira Woods, employed by a refinery company. Bits of his body were found many yards from the scene of the explosion. The workman who was supposed to have been helping Woods left the car for a few minutes and escaped injury.

Scores of girls were working in the dry goods store of Maddin & Company and in the Lewitt Cigar company's plants. Several of them were injured but were hurried to their homes before their names could be learned. A systematic search is being made of the ruins of these two places, but no bodies have been found up to noon.

The effect produced by the explosion was that of a veritable earthquake. Wooden building collapsed, brick walls crumbled and telephone poles were snapped off short. The shock is said to have lasted nearly forty seconds and was probably prolonged by lesser explosions from quantities of gasoline sent flying through the air a considerable distance in nearby towns where they were rushed after the arrival of relief trains from Gainesville, Texas, and Oklahoma City. It is probable that an accurate list of the injured will never be compiled.

CANNONADING HEARD OFF SWEDISH COAST

MEXICANS GATHER OPPOSITE PROGRESO

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 28.—Five hundred Mexicans are massing along the Rio Grande opposite Progreso, Texas, it was reported here this afternoon. The movement is so open it is believed to be a feint to lure American soldiers to that point while others cross the river farther to the south.

Two troops of cavalry and a company of infantry are now stationed at Progreso, guarding the crossing. It is believed if the Mexicans make an attempt to cross, it will be at Galveston ranch, at which point the river is easily fordable at this time. The soldiers are being rushed to the ranch.

THREE AMERICANS DIE TO ESTABLISH ORDER ON ISLAND

Haitien Congress Expected to Ratify Proposed Treaty Establishing Protectorate for Ten Years

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Three Americans killed and a score wounded was the total casualty list up to today of United States peace efforts in Haiti. About 100 Haitians have been killed and twice as many wounded, it is estimated, since the United States landed marines and bluejackets two months ago.

Reports today from Admiral Caperton were more reassuring. Sniping is continuing, but the Cacos, or rebels, were reported to be submitting to disarmament about Cape Haitien except a few small bands under insurgent chiefs. In the north, however, a considerable force was said to be forming.

That the Cacos movement has not yet become a serious rebellion against the new Haitian government was asserted by navy officials. Admiral Caperton has 2,000 marines and bluejackets at large with martial law in force at all large cities, is taking drastic steps to reopen railway lines and get supplies to famine-stricken interior cities.

The Haitien congress in session today was expected to ratify the proposed treaty establishing an American protectorate for ten years. Navy paymasters are already in charge of a dozen customs houses.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels said efforts to disarm the Cacos have been largely responsible for the clashes with the marines. Native chiefs and political leaders, some unfriendly to the new Haitian government, have been sent to the principal Caco chieftains, in an effort to prevent further fighting.

Sergeant John Platt of Detroit, Mich., was the marine killed in Haiti on Sunday.

Formal Proceedings of G. A. R. Open in Washington; Nurses of War Attend

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Friendships of fifty years were renewed today at the National Grand Army of the Republic encampment. Reunions of comrades of historic battlefields—and "comrades" included women, too, the nurses of Civil war times—made the "official program" pale into comparative insignificance.

The formal proceedings of the forty-ninth encampment began today. The business meetings of the various organizations affiliated with the Grand Army developed largely into personal experience meetings.

Thrilling escapades of Andersonville and Libby prisons were recounted at the Association of Civil War Prisoners' meeting.

William T. Stokes Blows Out Brains with Shotgun in Attic of His Home

SPARTA, Wis., Sept. 28.—(Special.)—A nervous disorder which has afflicted him for several months is believed to have been the cause of the suicide here this morning of William T. Stokes, 50, a well known retired farmer. Stokes took his life with a shotgun, the trigger of which he pushed down with a fishing rod while leaning with his head over the muzzle of the gun.

The tragedy took place in the attic of the Stokes home about 7 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Stokes was preparing breakfast when she heard the shot.

TREASURER ATTACKS MINNEAPOLIS BANK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—John Burke, treasurer of the United States, today admitted he had assailed the administration of the Minneapolis federal reserve bank, charging the bank with failure to properly acquaint the northwestern farmers with its facilities for discounting their commercial paper, thereby enabling a combination of national bankers and grain operators to depress the price of wheat from $1.40 to 79 cents a bushel by refusing reasonable discount rates.

KAISER REPORTED SOUNDING RULERS ON IDEAS OF WAR

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The Exchange Telegraph's Amsterdam correspondent this afternoon reported the Kaiser is now sounding all federated rulers in Europe to obtain their ideas on the war and the prospects of peace. This he reported explains the German chancellor's visit this week to the king of Saxony at Dresden.

LOAN PROPOSALS SUCCESSFUL SAY AGENTS OF ALLIES

Announcement of Terms Expected Tonight After Meeting with Chicago Financiers

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—The half billion dollar loan to the entente allies is settled. There remains only the working out of a few minor details. The complete terms will be announced tonight at 8 o'clock.

This was announcement made today by the Anglo-French financial commission which arrived here this morning to discuss plans with western financiers. Tonight's announcement will be a formal announcement from Baron Reading, lord chief justice of England, and chairman of the commission. It will be made public simultaneously in New York and Chicago.

Plain-clothes men literally swarmed in and about the La Salle street depot today when the four finance commissioners arrived here today.

The foreign financiers arrived at 9:45 and after an impromptu greeting at the station the loan commission was escorted to their hotel. Among those who met them at the train were James B. Forgan, J. Ogden Armour, John B. Spoor, and Samuel Insull, head of the Commonwealth Edison company.

STORES LOCKED AS CITY HELPS CELEBRATE DAY

with the drag and while this afternoon it is "heavy" fast going is expected from horses who take to the mud.

The 2:09 pace this afternoon was scheduled to be one of the week's best racing numbers. The field is a brilliant one. Liberty Patch, son of the world's fastest pacer, is matched against such horses as Franklin Pierce, owned by W. S. Pike of Des Moines, and Rob Roy, the "once-was" of W. B. Dyer, Lancaster, Wis., bred out of Oh So. And there are some "also rans" that may figure in the money.

High Treasure, a La Crosse horse owned by Attorney Clark L. Hood, will scrap for honors in the 2:20 trot this afternoon with a field of ten horses. Direct Patch, another son of the famous Dan, will trot.

Best Stock Exhibit in Years
The best cattle, sheep and hog exhibit shown at the La Crosse Interstate fair in years drew considerable share of notice by fair visitors today. The exhibit is one of the best shown in the state of Wisconsin this year. Many of the larger fairs of the state this year barred cattle from outside Wisconsin on account of the foot and mouth disease, prevalent some months ago. Secretary C. S. Van Auker, however, put up the bars only against districts in which the disease has shown up recently.

Judges in the different branches of the livestock show will soon be busy distributing the colored ribbons, and judging from the display shown today, the blues will be in great dispute.

The exhibit of horses this year, aside from the racing type, which is outdoing years past, will be one of the big attractions of the fair. Information was given out by the fair association office on the grounds that nearly every horse stall had been reserved. The majority of horses on exhibition are situated in stalls at the southern extremity of the grounds.

Exposition Building
A saunter through the exposition building, always the haven of a goodly measure of the fair visitors, is a distinct surprise. Holders of booths there have been busy decorating for days. Local and foreign concerns, vendors of articles dear to the heart of the home-maker, hold sway in the central hall, which forms a Maltese cross in the middle of the structure. Displays of cakes, pies, jellies, candies and what-not, the work of La Crosse county women, which will be judged during the week, take up various spots about the building, and a large space is reserved for the domestic department's showing of china, sewing articles, and dressmaking, and a horde of other similar things.

Not least in the exposition building is the display of the La Crosse County School of Agriculture of Onalaska, ruled over by Professor T. H. Campion, head of the school. Mr. Campion is on hand, and will be all week, to show the farm lads and lassies why they ought to take a school course in farming.

"Look there now," says Mr. Campion, and nods his head toward the exhibit of the town of Farmington, in which the biggest sunflower extant is shown, "that's going some. But there's Hamilton, you'd have to travel some to beat that."

Cups for Town Displays
Special prizes are being given to the best collective township displays, and La Crosse banks have donated a loving cup which will be given to the township winning the contest. The cup will be contested for annually.

Strolling out of the northern end of the farm display department, the poultry show building stares one in the face, and a brand new world of beauty is entered with the cackling of the hens, and crowing of the roosters—and bantering of the bantams. Ducks of the Indian Runner variety, chickens with hair instead of feathers, and all other kinds of domestic fowls are numerous in the show. The exhibits abound with

Patch Stables Attract

Traveling through the poultry show, the race stables are next on the program, and few pass up the chance to visit with the high-bred animals in the paddock. The "Dan Patch" stables of W. M. Savage, owner of Dan Patch, George Gano, and Minor Heir, is one of the big centers of attraction.

"That's George Gano?" the once-a-year track fan questions, and Murry Anderson himself, takes the hand of the visitor with a brotherly air and perhaps leads the world's champion saddle pacer outside his stall for inspection. The sons and daughters of the famous Dan are looked at with awe by many. Clark L. Hood's horses come in for a great deal of "once-overing" and the Pike stables, sheltering Franklin Pierce, are never passed by.

And Here's That Midway

A swing back through the rear of the grandstand and the now pop-eyed sight-seer is face to face with the "midway," of which he only got a glimpse on his hurried trip from the Exposition building following Professor Campion.

"Papa, I want to ride on the merry-go-round," says the youngster. His sister sees some pop-corn roasting at a near-by stand, and the family troubles have commenced.

The Baby Camp

The youngest charges have, in many instances, been entirely abolished for the hour, and many a mother's heart is made light by the thoughtfulness of Dr. Furstman's plan of caring for little Willie and his sister and their still littler brothers and sisters, while mother and father do the fair.

Miss Marie Peterson, with a corps of capable assistants, is in charge of the children's rest room, situated near the association offices. She will keep your children, feed them carefully, even amuse them, and return them to you safe and sound.

And so with the children safely behind, the "midway" is ready for a goin' over.

The Capital City Amusement company of St. Paul, a carnival company, holds the center of the "midway" stage. The company has a motor-drome, ferris wheel, merry-go-round, and an abundance of other attractions. Both sides of the entertainment space are lined with concessions, due greatly to the fact that Secretary Van Auker and Frank Maine, his assistant spent two or three weeks in visiting fairs all over the state to find the best attractions possible.

Before the first pay attraction is reached, the implement tent, almost as large as that occupied by the automobile men, claims attention for several minutes. The farmers make the tent their headquarters, and scores of firms are showing their wares there. One of the chief among them is a display of the La Crosse Flow company.

Good Free Attractions

For free attractions in front of the grandstand this year the fair association is offering Reed's troupe of trained bull terriers, and the Abou Ben Hamid troupe of Arabian tumblers, one of the best acts on any fair circuit. The free acts are put on between the heats of the races.

RECIPES OF OUR PIONEER MOTHERS

For the home treatment of disease were wonderfully dependable. True, they knew nothing of drugs, but owed their success to the roots, herbs and barks of the field. It is interesting to note that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the most successful remedy for female ailments we have, was originally prepared for home use from one of these recipes. Its fame has now spread from shore to shore, and thousands of American women now well and strong claim they owe their health and happiness to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

OLDER MEN OF M ARE OPPOSED TO WIRELESS CORPS

Meeting of Militia Last Night Develops Difference of Opinion in Ranks

Semi-annual Muster of the Company and of Hospital Corps Is Conducted Here

Veterans of Company M are not enthusiastically for the transformation of the familiar infantry organization into a radio corps. The proffer of Adjutant General Orlando B. Holway to locate the mounted signalling corps here was discussed at a meeting of the company last night, and a difference of opinion, with a desire to go slow, developed among the men. As a general thing, the younger men of the company proved to be in favor of the shift. The older men counsel hesitation.

Dislike a Change

The veterans base their disinclination for the change on their associations with the company in its present form and the strangeness of the work to be performed under the new conditions. The discussion had no official significance, said Captain F. H. Fowler this morning, although he intimated that if the company wants the change the transformation can be effected. He said the company felt the best course would be to learn more about the work to be done by the radio corps, and not to render a decision until some assurance could be had that suitable quarters would be provided.

At the meeting eight men expressed a desire to shoot the regular course for the merit medal, and it was tentatively decided to hold the competition from October 18 to 31. An outside officer will be brought to the city to supervise the shoot. The annual financial reports was made, showing the company to be in excellent condition.

Semi-Annual Muster

The session was the occasion of the semi-annual muster, held for the purpose of ascertaining the condition of the company, by calling the roll. At present the company comprises seventy men and three officers.

The members of the hospital corps met last night in the corps room over the Bijou theater for muster. Following roll call, Lieut. R. H. Gray explained various passages of a pamphlet issued by the army health department, relative to the prevention of typhoid fever by vaccination in the army, the general rules of sanitation.

CLOUDBURST VISITS GALENA AND IOWA IS STORM SUFFERER

GALENA, Ill., Sept. 28.—Galena was covered with water from two to ten feet deep yesterday as the result of a cloudburst north of here Saturday.

The property damage to Galena business houses and to farm lands will reach thousands of dollars. Not a railroad train has moved since early yesterday morning.

The Illinois Central and Northwestern railroads lost thousands of feet of track by landslides and washouts, and the Northwestern will be tied up several days.

Iowa Is Hit

DUBUQUE, Col., Sept. 28.—With dozens of landslides, numerous bridges damaged and five miles of track washed out between Dubuque and Farley, Iowa, the Great Northern is detouring all trains over the Illinois Central as far as Dyersville. The latter road had numerous landslides and a few washouts, but managed to get trains running at noon Sunday. This damage was caused by floods in the Maquoketa and Catfish Creek valleys following a fall of 4.76 inches of rain in fifteen hours ending at 7 o'clock Sunday morning. Catfish Creek rose thirty feet in four hours, but the rise in the Maquoketa was not so great.

CAPITAL EXPECTS BIG DEVELOPMENTS. INTERNATIONALLY

Dumba Case Will Be Further Aired by Arrival of Documents Concerning Archibald

AUSTRIAN REPLY EXPECTED

British Charge d'Affaires Calls to Secure Safe Conduct for Dumba

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Important developments in dispute with Germany and Austria impended today. Arrival of the first sealed embassy mail pouch in a week from London brought several diplomatic affairs to a head. In the pouch, carried by the White Star liner Cymric, were the additional documents taken from Captain James F. J. Archibald, Austrian Ambassador Dumba's messenger, and also the evidence regarding the sinking of the Allan liner Hesperian.

The state department was also awaiting Austria's second note protesting against American munition sales, made public today at Vienna. This dispute, officials indicated would not become serious. It was believed the United States reply would be brief and point out that this government cannot agree with Austria's contentions.

After study of the additional Archibald papers, it was officially stated today that Captain Archibald will be given an opportunity to explain his action. He is expected here early this week. Possible action against Captain Von Papen, German military attaché; Austrian Consul General Nuber of New York, and Editor William Warm of a New York Hungarian newspaper, was also considered today. The papers will be turned over to the department of justice.

Austria's response to this government's request for recall of Austrian Ambassador Duma is awaited hourly. Postponement of Dumba's sailing on the Holland liner Rotterdam tomorrow was expected if Austria should further delay action.

British Charge d'Affaires Barclay called at the state department this afternoon to ask concerning a safe conduct for Dumba. He was informed by Acting Secretary Polk that the Austrian government had not yet recalled the ambassador, or at least, that the fact has not been communicated to the United States government, if the action has been taken.

EVERYBODY HAS HIGH HOLIDAY BUT FOOTBALLERS

Horne Takes His Warriors Out to Grovel in the Dust While Rooters Go to Fair

Today was a holiday at the high school for everyone except the football squad. School ended at 12:20 this afternoon, and all the students flocked out to help celebrate La Crosse day at the interstate fair—all except Horne's warriors. Their lot was to eat a light lunch that they might not slow themselves up for the practice which began at 2:30. The practice was slated to last until 5:30.

The full eight periods of the high school day were run off today by the expedient of starting at 8 o'clock in the morning and clipping a little off each section of the day. The policy will be continued straight through fair week.

Grape-Nuts food is splendid for brain workers, and ideal for school children. Being partially pre-digested, it is quickly absorbed by the system—going directly to the up-building of sinew, brain and nerves without overloading the stomach.

TAKE A SHOT OF THIS AND DEFY TYPHOID ON YOUR HUNTING OUTING

Mr. Hunter, if you are planning a trip this fall which will take you into a district where you know nothing about the water-supply, read this:

Just a little squirt of serum into your arm three times, ten days apart, and Dr. J. M. Furstman, city health commissioner, will guarantee that you won't have typhoid fever for the next four years at least. The health department has on hand a number of units of the new anti-typhoid vaccine which has eliminated typhoid from the United States army. It is to be given to physicians of the city free of charge on their application, and arrangements have been made with the state health authorities to have the vaccine available from now on.

As indicative of the efficacy of the serum, Dr. Furstman told a reporter that Col. Gorgas' report on the health of the United States army in 1913 showed that among the 90,762 enlisted men in all branches of the army there were but four cases of typhoid. Two of them were "bookies" not yet inoculated with the anti-typhoid vaccine; one had been vaccinated four years before and the virtue of the treatment was exhausted; and the fourth had had only the first part of the treatment. The vaccine is an absolute preventive of typhoid for four years from the time of inoculation, Dr. Furstman said.

The vaccine is a clear liquid. A few drops are injected under the skin of the arm with a hypodermic. Ten days later a second injection is made, and a third at the end of another ten-day period. That's all there is to the treatment. It hurts about as much as a pin-prick, Dr. Furstman says, and there is no swelling or pain in the arm as in smallpox vaccination. A few hours of indisposition sometimes follows, but not enough to incapacitate one for work, the health commissioner said.

WINONA, Minn., Sept. 28.—Bishop Patrick H. Heffron will help pay for legal talent to defend Father Lesches, the priest who attempted to kill him because the bishop declined to give the weakened priest a parish.

This became evident today following the notice served by the Winona diocese of the Roman Catholic church of which Bishop Heffron is the head, that the diocese would help pay for the best legal talent to defend the demented priest. Immediately following the shooting Bishop Heffron walked several hundred feet to plead with the demented priest to calm himself.

SUGAR TARIFF IS SUBJECT OF STUDY BY THE PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The advisability of retaining the present tariff on sugar is being seriously considered by President Wilson. This was definitely learned today.

While the president has not fully determined on the sugar tariff plan, it is believed to be extremely probable.

It was also reported today that the administration is considering further slight tariff changes to provide additional revenue by increasing duties on liquors, and also possibly an extension of the income tax to smaller incomes.

An investigation of the sugar importations and revenue derived during the last few years is being made by the treasury for the president. It was learned today. Facts and figures regarding the sugar schedule for 1912, 1914, and the present year are being compiled by customs officials. A statement whether retaining duty on sugar would solve the revenue situation will also be presented to the White house by Secretary McAdoo.

SOAP IS BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsed coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), is cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an emulsion of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsed coconut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

GREEK AND BULGAR RESERVISTS IN U. S. CALLED TO COLORS

All Between Ages of 24 and 43 Now in This Country Are Ordered Home to Army

FIVE GREEKS HERE INCLUDED

Whether They Will Return to Fight They Have Not Decided; Call Held Part of War Bluffing

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Greece and Bulgaria called for their reservists in the United States today.

Announcement that all Greeks in the United States between the ages of 24 and 43 had been called to the colors by order of the Athens government was followed almost immediately by a similar announcement by the Bulgarian legation and the game of international bluff in the Balkans seemed to be nearing a show-down.

Neither legation had any reason to offer for the call for reservists, beyond the fact that both armies had been mobilized. The mobilization of either army, it was said, automatically called for the home going of all reservists in foreign countries.

Bulgaria, it was confidently predicted, will not enter the conflict, or will not become unduly belligerent until all Bulgarian reservists have reached their companies. The Greek and entente allies' naval forces in the Mediterranean can easily prevent Bulgarian reinforcements from America reaching home. For this reason the call by Greece is considered the more important.

Five men in La Crosse are reservists affected by the call to the colors issued today by Greek diplomatic authorities. They had not decided whether or not to return when interviewed by a Tribune reporter. The five are: William Nikolas, George Zumes, Nick Athos, Thomas Palamedis and John Romes.

AUTUMNAL WEATHER DRIVES GODDESSES BACK TO GOTHAM

SOUTH WOODSTOCK, Conn., Sept. 28.—This isn't the town it used to be before the cold spell came and drove Mrs. Florence Fleming Noyes' forty chiffon-clad goddesses away.

All summer automobiles toured into town to watch the bare-legged maneuvers of Mrs. Noyes' class of classy, classic dancers, and the South Woodstock stores sold a lot of cooling drinks. Some of the tourists who didn't bring their wives along even scaled the fence and watched the classic dancers bathe in Mrs. Noyes' brook in their chiffon bathing suits.

But the September cold snap raised goose flesh on the fair limbs of the September Morns. Mrs. Noyes took 'em all back to New York.

Son of Oil King Makes It Plain That He Is at the Head of Rockefeller Interests

DENVER, Col., Sept. 28.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., arrived in Denver today for conferences with his officials and perhaps with a committee of union miners also. During the coming week Rockefeller was expected to make plain, first, that Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., and not his father, the oil king, is now the active head of the Rockefeller interests.

Second, the policies of the son are not those of the father. A new "paternalistic" era in the conduct of these interests is to be begun.

Third, this new era will not provide for union recognition, though it will conclude reforms sought through unionism.

Fourth, the new head of the Rockefeller interests will play a greater personal part in the actual conduct of affairs than his father did, a role begun by his present trip.

HIGH SCHEDULE IS ALTERED TO AVOID CONFLICT

There is no conflict in the schedule of the high and normal schools. The schedule of the high school has been altered, that Madison high will play here Nov. 25. Thanksgiving instead of on November 13, on which the normal plays River Falls here. Efforts were made to arrange the game for the thirteenth, in which case Madison could have changed to the sixth. Sparta declined to change their schedule. A change with St. Paul would have done no good since Madison could not play on the twentieth. Therefore, in order to play the game Madison agreed to play on Thanksgiving day. Tomah Indians will be played at Tomah on November 13. October 9 will probably be an open date, for although several schools have been heard from, the team needs a rest before their exhaustive plunge into the big games. The complete schedule: October 2, Tomah at home. October 9, open. October 16, Winona at Winona. October 23, Eau Claire at home. October 30, Chippewa Falls at Chippewa Falls. November 6, Sparta at Sparta. November 13, Tomah Indians at Tomah. November 20, St. Paul (Central) at home. November 25, Madison at home. The game on Thanksgiving will give the business men and others who are interested in the team and who are unable to attend games on Saturday an opportunity to see the high school team in action. It is possible that the game will be played in the morning in order to give the team a "chance" at their Thanksgiving dinner. Cohn Wrenches Knee The first accident of the season occurred last night when Marshal Cohn

twisted his knee severely. The accident, while not serious, will probably keep him out of the game for the rest of the season. GRANT BURNED NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Harry Grant, twice winner of the Vanderbilt cup, who was to drive Carl Fisher's Maxwell in the first race for the Astor cup here next Saturday, probably will be scarred for life as a result of his car catching fire on one of the high banks during one speed trials late yesterday. At the hospital today, it was said Grant will recover, although he is horribly burned.

NORMAL TEAMS TO HOLD SCRIMMAGE AS FAIR FEATURE

Sputh Will Pick Scrubs to Oppose First Team on Normal Field Thursday

Football will vie with baseball as the chief attraction at the fair this week, for on Thursday, it was learned today, the normal warriors will furnish the amusement, two teams hooking up in an exhibition contest. Coach Sputh has been awaiting the arrival of a new supply of shoes before conducting regular scrimmages, so there is a possibility that the game Thursday will be the first real workout for Sputh's aggregation. The seconds promise Strum's men a tough fight inasmuch as neither eleven has worked together in scrimmage as yet. Sputh's choice of a first team presents an apparently unbeatable lot if the individual stars are able to cooperate and maintain their past reputations. Strum is ready at any time at half to rip up his opponents as of yore. Grausenick will use his weight to advantage in punching the line and in him as an open field runner local artists have met their match in the past. Alex Feinberg can be relied upon for his share of work through the line and it remains to be seen whether Tom Skemp can furnish the goods in action at his new place at quarter. In the line Taylor has been given first choice at passing the ball with Marcou and La Fromboise, both experienced men, at guards, Wachter and Jackson are there with the weight and fight at tackles to put up a strong defensive, and next to them at ends Bruha and Holthaus have been given first choice. Besides these men there are Ryan and Meinert to be used either in the backfield or at end. The men were given a rest this afternoon to take in the fair. Lots of men who preach charity wait for other men to practice it.

LOSER KNOCKS OUT REFEREE

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 28.—The finish of last night's fight between Patsy Brannigan of Pittsburgh and Al Schubert, a local boy, was more exciting than the bout itself. At the end of fifteen rounds, the referee, a local man, gave the decision to Schubert, and Brannigan laid a haymaker on his jaw. Spectators had to pry him off the referee.

BOSTON FAVORED

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—First intimation of how the sporting fraternity views the chances of the Phillies and Red Sox in the coming combat for the world's title, came today, when odds of 6 to 5 were offered on the Boston club to win.

"Considering the state of the country and that the body was interred Thursday makes it impossible to remove the body to the United States; there are no embalmers here." The message was in answer to the telegram sent several days ago by Mr. Esch.

HOW TO HEAL SKIN-DISEASES

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes and similar itching, burning skin troubles. At any reliable druggist's get a jar of resolin ointment and a cake of resolin soap. These will not cost a bit more than seventy-five cents. With the resolin soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resolin ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.

A HINT FOR SHAVERS

If you want a refreshing shave, with a thick, creamy lather, try a resolin shaving stick. It contains the soothing, healing resolin medication which makes it especially welcome to men with tender faces.

SPECIAL CARRIES VETERANS TO LAST G. A. R. GATHERING

Several Hundred on Train Which Takes Northwest Contingent to Washington

Several hundred of the thirty thousand veterans of the civil war, who will attend the last annual encampment of the G. A. R. now in session at Washington, D. C., went through the north side early Sunday morning in a special train of twelve cars. The veterans on the train were members of the G. A. R. from Minnesota and North Dakota. None of the veterans of La Crosse will attend, it was said this morning, with the exception of Rockwell E. Osborne, who, although a resident of Minneapolis, belongs to the local G. A. R. He had signified his intent of going to the encampment, and it is presumed that he was on board the special when it went through the city.

Arriving at Chicago, the special train will be attached as one section of National Commander Palmer's special train. In the party on the train was William La Due of Hastings, said to be the eldest G. A. R. man in the northwest. He is 95 years of age.

The encampment begins today and continues until October 3. President Wilson will attend the formal reception for the host of veterans.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—As the folds of a big American flag unfurled high above Camp Matthew G. Emery today, Theodore W. Noyes, president of the Oldest Inhabitants' association, spoke a welcome to 20,000 civil war veterans who have arrived for the fiftieth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

This brief ceremony attended by thousands of blue clad old men standing silent, caps off to the flag, in the chill morning air before the steps of Camp Emery's main entrance was really the informal opening of the fiftieth reunion which opens officially tomorrow.

President Wilson today signed an executive order closing all governmental departments Wednesday in order that employees might witness the big parade in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the grand peace.

"Whys" of Moves in European War

BY J. W. T. MASON
(Written for the United Press.)
NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The most important victory the allies have won along the western front since the battle of the Marne is still in process of development. Until the result of the fighting of the next few days becomes known, it cannot be said, however, whether the successes are only sporadic, or whether the allies are seriously developing a major offensive.

The allies cannot know as yet themselves, how far they may be able to push back the Germans. The determining factor will be the casualties and neither the British nor the French have announced their losses in the present engagements. But, whether or not the Teutons prevent the allies from further advancing, the victories already gained must have a legitimately encouraging effect in Great Britain and France. The German line has been proven not to be impregnable and although it does not follow the Germans can be forced back into their own country, it ought to prevent the Teutons from wandering far afield in other hostile directions.

This, in all probability, will be the most important effect of the British and French victories. It is now unquestionable that the Germans have over-estimated their power of resistance in the west. They have been compelled to give ground because of the large withdrawals of men from France and Belgium for the Russian campaign. The capture of Warsaw, and other eastern successes have been worth the German losses of this end in the west; but a few more such losses will cut the German western lines of communications and no victories in Russia would pay for such an outcome as that.

It is probable, therefore, that the Teutons will be compelled to send back to the west many of the regiments now in Russia. Petrograd, in fact, may have been saved by the sudden military activity in France and Belgium. Furthermore, the Anglo-French victories must have a cautionary effect on Bulgaria. Indeed, it is possible Bulgaria will now wholly reconsider her attitude. If the allies break through the German lines in the west Bulgaria would find she must shift for herself in the Balkans and should that happen, Bulgaria's entrance into the war with the Teutons would prove to have been her death warrant.

TICK CATCHES JACK RABBIT

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 28.—Coke county's proud position as the jack rabbit center of the universe is threatened by the cattle tick. Reports reaching here state that ticks have attacked the rabbits and that the latter are dying in great numbers.

A move will be started in that county, no doubt, for tick eradication. The residents simply can't afford to have the jack rabbit crop decreased. Since there is much complaint from surrounding counties against depredations of jack rabbits on all kinds of crops, it is believed an effort will be made to obtain a supply of Coke county's rabbit ticks for distribution among these less desirable cottonlands.

Case Called in Circuit Court at Whitehall Today and Smith Is Released on $5,000 Bond

The trial of E. C. Smith, "J. Rufus Wallingford," of Arcadia, Trempealeau county, was called in circuit court at Whitehall, on Monday and postponed over the term. Smith's bonds were fixed at $5,000 and he was released. He is charged with swindling the Zeller brothers, farmers of Arcadia, of $40,000, all the money they had.

Attorney R. S. Cowie, counsel for the Zeller brothers, arrived from Chicago today, where he started conspiracy cases in United States court against the owners of the American Insurance company of Illinois, alleged worthless stock of which Smith sold to the Trempealeau county men. New York Stocks

Westinghouse gained 1/2, American Locomotive 1 1/4, and Studebaker 3/4.

ITALIAN EXPERT PRAISES GERMAN CONDUCT OF WAR

HAMBURG, Sept. 28.—The well known military staff writer of the Milan della Sera, General Gatti, recently published in that paper a review of Germany's achievements during the first year of war, says a dispatch to the Hamburger Fremdenblatt, which quotes him in part as follows:

"On his entrance into the war Germany introduced a new element. While its opponents at the commencement of the war had equipped only the army, in Germany the whole nation had been prepared. He makes a mistake who thinks that the military spirit of only a part of Germany has gained the upper hand over the rest of Germany that is of a different disposition and has subjected this part to the yoke. No people can be forced to any sort of slavery for the space of forty years. This is no slavery when at a single call all the millions of Germans respond as they actually have responded with one voice answering cry."

"He who battles most passionately today for the fatherland is the Bavarian. All Germany is a single homogeneous army camp. Discipline and obedience have rooted themselves into the German soul, respect for order of rank, confidence in their leaders, the feeling of solidarity. The Germans are governed by the necessity of subordination in life. Their civil life is formed upon the same principle as the military. The former can therefore be submerged in the latter at a moment's notice."

"Germany could not conquer immediately. It could not because it had supposed that it would be obliged to overthrow one or two enemies. When it saw that all the nations of Europe (even Italy's neutrality at that time was at least equivalent to a very strong feeling of opposition) were enemies it acknowledged no discouragement. For a moment it took counsel with itself. It halted its advance into France, gave up the idea of a decisive battle in the west and hastened to the battlefields in the east. The Russian invasion seemed to it unbearable."

LOAN SEEKERS TO SEE BANKERS OF THE WINDY CITY

Allies' Commissioners Come to Virtual Agreement with New York Bankers Concerning Big Loan

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The Anglo-French financial commission and eastern bankers have reached a virtual agreement on the details of the proposed half billion dollar credit loan to Great Britain and France.

Having come to terms with eastern bankers, four of the Anglo-French financial commissioners planned to leave for Chicago at 2:25 this afternoon to confer with western financiers in the interest of the $500,000,000 loan.

New York bankers believe personal contact between the foreign commissioners and western bankers will pave the way for a more cordial reception of the loan outside of New York.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Practically every big bank in Chicago was represented by its president at a conference called to plan the reception here tomorrow of the Anglo-French financial commission which came to this country to borrow a billion dollars.

SHOOTING THOUGHT WORK OF OPPONENTS

WALSLEBURG, Col., Sept. 28.—A "political murder" was the cry raised today by friends of Robert Mitchell, democratic county chairman, shot dead last night when he surprised a burglar searching his house.

While the intruder escaped with a gold watch, it was claimed that the burglar probably sought evidence Mitchell was supposed to have concealed in his home. He was the main reliance of United States District Attorney Ledrow of Denver, who was conducting an investigation in alleged election frauds in Huerfano county at the instigation of the Washington government.

MILWAUKEE PAIR FOUND SLAIN IN BURNED COTTAGE

Bullet Hole in Tree and Tobacco Wrapper May Lead to Arrest of the Slayer

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 28.—Out from a mass of theories arising from the third day's investigation of the mysterious death of Capt. and Mrs. Robert W. Mueller at Puckaway lake Friday night, and whose bodies were brought to Milwaukee Sunday night, the authorities are concentrating their interest on two clues—a package of chewing tobacco and a bullet mark through the trees.

The wrapping of a 5 cent package of fine cut tobacco was found only a few feet from the spot where blood clots and Mrs. Mueller's glasses were located. Neither Capt. Mueller nor any of his recent guests used that kind of tobacco.

Capt. Mueller, who was teller in the First National bank for forty years, and his wife were found with their bodies burned to a crisp in the obscure voting booth which served them as a residence at Puckaway lake, fifteen miles from Princeton, Wis., and three miles from Marquette.

The bodies were so badly burned that it was impossible to tell whether or not there had been violence before the fire was started. But the tragedy was the result of no accident. This was the statement of District Attorney J. L. Kelley of Princeton, who conducted an exhaustive examination of the tragedy Saturday afternoon and night.

The definite facts established by Mr. Kelley in his examination, clearly establish it was murder, but the only clue is the finding of blood spots on a paper about twenty rods from the cottage. Nose glasses, of the type worn by Mrs. Mueller, were found lying on the ground close to the spot where the blood was discovered.

LATIN INTERESTS LIE WITH GERMANY

Vasquez de Mella, Celebrated Spaniard, Declares Germany Fights for Freedom of Sea

ITALY'S MISTAKE IN WAR

England Was Always the Invader and Lurking Enemy of Mediterranean Nations

FRANKFORT, Sept. 15.—According to a dispatch from Madrid to the Frankfurter Zeitung, the famous Spanish orator, Vasquez de Mella, recently made an address in Madrid in which he declared that only absolute neutrality could be of advantage to the Spanish government and that, moreover, the sympathies of the Spanish nation could be only for the central powers.

"There are a number of people among at least two of the Latin races who believe that the war is being fought out between France and

Germany," he said. "In point of fact, however, the war is being fought between Germany and England. If Russia should conclude peace the war against England and France would continue. If France should conclude peace the war against England and Russia would continue. If France and Russia should conclude peace the war against England would continue. But if England—which is the banker of the other two—should make peace with Germany the war would cease.

Mistakes of Italy

"On the day of reckoning it will prove to be one of the greatest mistakes of the French and Italian policy that Delcasse and Salandra did not understand what was to the interests of the Latin race. It is a mistake on the part of Italy to make a question out of the possession of land which never belonged to her. The Trentino was never Italian, for it has belonged to Austria since the fourteenth century, and, if the 800,000 Italians are used as a pretext, then the same claim could be laid to Constantinople and Algiers, which are also largely inhabited by Italians. Besides this, the Italians of the Trentino have mixed to a great extent with the Slavic race.

"Italy had the greatest interest in the existence of a great Austrian monarchy. If one day Austria were to vanish Italy would find herself face to face with a mighty Slavic empire on the Adriatic coast which would have forced the Dardanelles and settled in Constantinople and would be the foremost power in the eastern Mediterranean.

French Interests Opposed to England

"And France? France, England's enemy since the Hundred Years' war, since the Napoleonic wars, since Fashoda, has not fortified Calais and Dunkirk against Germany, but against England, and protected the coasts of Normandy against the English Islands Guernsey and Jersey. Her interests are opposed to those of England. Germany will always be first of all a continental power and only secondly a naval power. And as for us, the Latins, who possess the sacred right to demand for ourselves the freedom of the sea, against whom should we direct our claim if not against a trespasser who has seized it and made it his own?"

"Did the Germanic eagles build their nests on the rocks of Gibraltar? Was it the German eagles that settled on Malta, on Cyprus, in Alexandria and in Suez? No; it is England, the English leopards. It was for the nations which call themselves Latin to lay claim to the Latin sea. And the invader of this sea, who has made these nations vassals, oppresses them and places his foot on their brow, is not Germany. It is England.

"And a historical survey shows that England has been for centuries

the lurking enemy of the Mediterranean nations."

In concluding his speech Senor de Mella spoke of Emperor Wilhelm. "I hail him with respect and love, not only as the personification of order, but as the executor of the will of Philip II, and of Napoleon and because he is fighting against England for the cause of the Latin race—a cause in which this race has not learned how to defend itself."

BETTER TILLAGE RESULT OF PLOWING

Developing skill of hand and eye and more perfect accord between driver and team will be featured in the two plowing matches to be held in Wisconsin this month. At North Lake, Waukesha county, on September 24-25, a plowing contest and farmers' picnic will be held under the auspices of a local committee co-operating with the department of agricultural engineering of the University of Wisconsin. On September 28, Medford, Taylor county, will hold a plowing contest. County Representative R. A. Kolk, assisting in its supervision. The fostering of community spirit and friendly competition are among the objects sought and the prizes in every case will be of secondary importance.

STATE SERUM PLANT PROTECTS HOG CROP

Wisconsin is winning in its fight against hog cholera. The campaign first started when the legislature of 1913 provided for the erection of a small serum plant at the agricultural experiment station. Ever since its establishment the little laboratory has been running full force and, not infrequently, over time to supply the demands of the farmers of the state.

All orders are now being filled as soon as received. In addition to the daily output a reserve of 20,000 doses is being kept on hand to meet a sudden demand. Since protected herds are the only dividends asked the serum is sold at cost of production.

While the outbreak that has lasted for about four years is somewhat abating, those in charge of the serum plant are urging farmers to keep close watch of their sections and to vaccinate if the disease appears in neighboring herds.

A bulletin, "Hog Cholera Questions and Answers," published by the experiment station, Madison, will aid farmers in the prevention and control of the disease.

BRYAN SEES FORD ON PEACE PROJECT

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 15.—William Jennings Bryan made a flying trip to Detroit last night and conferred privately with Henry Ford regarding the latter's $10,000,000 peace plan, it was learned today.

The former secretary of state requested the interview yesterday by telegraph. Ford met his guest at the railroad station and the two went to the Detroit Athletic club, where they were closeted together for about an hour. Immediately after the conference Bryan departed for the east.

E. G. Liebold, Ford's secretary, who was present at the conference, stated today that no definite plans were reached as to the method of conducting the $10,000,000 peace campaign. Bryan and Ford discussed the movement only in general terms, Liebold said.

SUFFRAGISTS WOULD FORCE AMENDMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—With the campaign for national suffrage launched at the opening session, the first woman's suffragists' political convention resumed its business meeting this afternoon in the Illinois building at the Panama-Pacific exposition. The 750 delegates from all sections of the country unanimously approved plans to force the next congress to adopt the national woman suffrage amendment.

Mrs. William Kent, wife of the California congressman; Miss Anne Martin of Nevada, and Sarah Bard Field of Oregon were scheduled to speak this afternoon. Mrs. Lucius Cuthbert, a voter from Denver, presided. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, the New York society and suffragist leader, was to be the principal hostess at a ball for the delegates in the California building tonight.

WOULD PROVIDE EDUCATION FOR ARMY AND NAVY

Hoosier Says Soldiers and Sailors Should Be Trained in Peace in Useful Lines

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 15.—This nation is in a perilous position because of the European war; we must prepare for effective defense; but a standing army of adequate proportions is un-American. After summing up the situation thus, John A. Lapp, in a statement issued today, suggested the application of vocational education to the army and navy as the solution.

Lapp, as a member of President Wilson's commission on vocational education, drew up the bill that will be presented to congress. He is the author of Indiana's vocational law, which has been a model for other states.

Vocational education and national defense should go hand in hand, said Lapp. In that way only he said, can the nation maintain an adequate standing army without tremendous waste of human energy and without providing a menace to our democratic ideals.

"We want men trained for war but whose thoughts are of peace," said Lapp. "Why not couple up the two and while making men efficient for defensive war make them also efficient productive workers? Let us have a million men in training all the time for effective defense, but let that million be trained all the time for useful employment. Let every camp and battleship become a school where a few hours each day can be spent in preparing for the arts of peace."

Lapp said the army and navy offered opportunities for vocational training in hundreds of different lines to meet the needs of the army and navy. There is no reason, he said, why the army and navy should not do a large part of the work needed for their support.

"Around every army post the government should own large tracts of land for cultivation where the sciences of agriculture, forestry and animal husbandry in all their phases would be taught and from which the troops could be supported," said Lapp.

Lapp suggested that arrangements could be made to give the carpenter, plumber or machinist who joins the army supplementary education along these lines so that he would become a better carpenter, plumber or machinist.

To get the broadest benefits from such a scheme, different periods of enlistment would be necessary, he said.

said. Enlistments for from four years down to six months could be allowed, and vocational training in lines requiring greater or less training could be provided as the case might be.

Lapp declared that the six-month enlistment term would be an effective cure for unemployment because it would offer both a job and schooling.

"Undoubtedly this nation is in a perilous position," said the educator. "We are the only world power not engaged in conflict. As a great neutral we have become the object of envy and hate by all the warring countries, and this will increase as we wax fatter from world trade at the expense of our oldtime rivals."

Lapp called attention to the fact this nation always has had for large bodies of men with training for war and said he believed the scheme outlined would give no ground for such fear.

TO PROTECT THE MIRROR

Are you ever puzzled to know what to do with your hand mirror when you pack your bag for a trip? A very wise thing to do is to make a bag for the mirror. Use linen for outer bag, and embroider this in white or in colors. For the inside make a cotton flannel lining, and between the flannel put several layers of cotton padding. Baste this lining to the linen. Provide the top of the bag with a casing and ribbon, and you will have a convenient and very practical bag for your mirror. Remember that safety first is a necessary precaution when a mirror is to be packed for a long journey.

Acute Articular Rheumatism

The exact cause of rheumatism is unknown, though it is generally believed to be due to an excess of uric acid in the blood. It may be also said with equal truth that no remedy has been found which is a specific in all cases. In fact the literature of rheumatism shows that there are but few drugs which have not been given a trial. In the hands of one observer we find that a certain drug has been used with the utmost satisfaction; others have found the same remedy to be a great disappointment. All physicians however agree that every method of treatment is aided by the administration of some remedy to relieve the pain and quiet the nervous system and Dr. W. S. Schultze expresses the opinion of thousands of practitioners when he says that Anti-Kamini Tablets should be given preference over all other remedies for the relief of the pain in all forms of rheumatism. These tablets can be purchased in any quantity. They are also unsurpassed in headaches, neuralgia and all pain. Ask for A-K Tablets.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Little Mouse That Caught The Cat.

"YOU have heard a-plenty about cats that have caught mice," said daddy, "but you haven't heard about the mouse that caught a cat."

"A little mouse once lived in the cellar of a farmhouse, and he was one of the most mischievous little mice you ever heard of. He was a bright little mouse, too, which I will proceed to show you, and his alert brain served to keep him out of a great deal of trouble."

"In this same farmhouse with the little mouse lived a cruel and hungry cat named Malty. The children had christened her that because she was a Maltese pussy and very lovely, as those cats are. And she especially loved mice for her breakfasts or lunches or dinners or any between whiles."

"Now the little mouse of which I am telling you had no name, of course, but just for the purposes of our story we will give him one. We will call him Impy, and I think you will decide that the name fits him."

"Impy just lived to torment that pussy that was so hungry for mice, and I do think that he secured revenge for a great many of his mouse relatives that Malty caught."

"Now in that farmhouse were a number of great big rats as well as mice, and Malty was just as hard on them as on the mice. Between the rats and the mice she killed and those which were caught in traps by the farmer's people and given to her she grew fat."

"Impy had Malty almost crazy with rage sometimes. The cat would be dozing in the cellar or maybe up in the garret, and up Impy would come through a hole not an inch from her nose and squeak. She would open her yellow eyes, and he would make a face at her or wrinkle his little pointed nose in the most aggravating way. She would pounce at him like lightning, but, quick as thought, he would jump away."

"At last one day she thought she had him. She found him in the middle of the cellar, far away from a hole and ran toward him. She could run faster than he, and he squeaked with fright. But he had an idea. He ran right to ward a great big rat trap, extra size, and dodged when he reached the door. Malty couldn't stop and ran head on into that trap and got wedged in it, while Impy laughed a mousey laugh."

"Malty meowed and yowled, and the family came to release her. She tried very hard after that to catch the mouse that had caught her, but she never did. Impy lived a long time and never missed an opportunity to pester big fat Malty."

ers of stylish footwear. The new styles are irresistible in their appeal.

Need Many Pairs

Twenty pairs of shoes in a woman's wardrobe is not at all extraordinary and practically everyone has six or eight pairs of dainty shoes where one or two formerly sufficed.

There are buttoned shoes of various shades, matching the various tailored suits and formal gowns; there are boots and slippers in combination colors, and dancing slippers in various shades. There is sport footwear and boudoir footwear. Silk stockings are being put out to match the dainty slippers and boots.

The perfectly shaped buttoned boot is the thing nowadays, although there are many freaks in the shoe line. Chief among these is the Cossack boot, which has practically no shape around the ankle. Some laced boots are being worn, but these are never as dressy as the buttoned shoes. The taste of the buttoned shoe is never questioned, and probably its rights will never be infringed upon.

Thin Soles and Sharp Toes

Thinner soles and long, pointed toes continue to be favorites for street wear; dancing shoes have turned soles and turned French or Spanish heels. Black kid is the favorite material for dancing footwear, although patent leather is being worn to some extent.

Many distinguished dancing boots, of all black, have large white pearl buttons.

Some of the colors for buttoned shoes with gaiter tops are; haze green, soldat blue, field gray, forest fawn, and metal brown. Many fashion makers are placing patent leather strips up the entire back or front of the boot this season.

Moulded to Foot

The very prettiest thing going is this year's dancing slipper. The thing seems a part of the wearer, herself, and not like something that is put on and taken off. Guiltless of ornamentation, in the way of bows, buckles or ribbons, the beauty of the slipper is greatly enhanced by its unbroken lines. The only ornament which fashion now allows the slipper is a single button, of black or pearl. This adds to the daintiness and smallness of the foot, too.

The place this year for the laced shoe—the high-topped heavy laced boot—is sporting wear, and it is taking the place of the lower oxford, which held sway some time ago. Gay stockings are being added to the high boot for sport wear—and this is for men and women alike.

Cloth Tops Again

Dress boots are being manufactured of patent leather with close fitting cloth tops. The aim is to combine slenderness with simple severity of smart lines.

ARTISTIC NOVELTY FREQUENT IN MANY HOME DECORATIONS

Lamps and Mirrors of Great Beauty Are Available, and American Vases Are Satisfying

The art displayed in novelties in the American home is an expression of the ideals of the home itself. "Art is expression," it has been said. It is the skill of handicraft, and by this skill, you can best express an ideal.

One should not buy something to place in the home unless that article expresses in itself the ideal of that home—the sentiments of its occupants. Every novelty, no matter how small or how large, should have a definite place in the home and should express something.

Lamps Must Harmonize The value of side illumination has come gradually into the American home. To have here and there a lamp adds to the cheerfulness of any room. One should use care in not allowing these lamps, nor the colors of their decorations, to clash. Let the shades be of varying tones of one or two neutral colors.

A carved wood-base lamp, with an alabaster globe lined with red Venetian glass is an unusually attractive one.

Fitting in with the black-and-white idea for interior decorations is an electric creation with a black and white china base canopied with a black and white silk shade.

Admiring yourself in a mirror is a real delight when one possesses a circular mirror mounted in a wooden frame, which may be had in any color to carry out the decorative scheme of the room. Unless a black cord is used, the cord and tassel with which the mirror is hung should be of the same color as the frame.

American Vases Good The style of vases in the home is undergoing somewhat of a change. American manufacturers are doing their utmost to make up for the lack of European importations, and some of their creations show that art in America can take the place, in many instances, of what was considered the inimitable art of the European, now forsaking his potter's table for the trench and the gun.

Flowered Desks Among the unique ideas originating this season in America is the flowered writing desk and small table, which is taking the place of the pure white, unadorned table and desk. White desks with thin gold lines are very popular.

Door-stops imitating the ones used many years ago in England tempt many to buy them for use as book-ends and they are wonderfully ornamental. They may also be found as novel receptacles for flowers.

SCALLOPED INITIALS

If you have tired of embroidering Old English letters or scrip letters, you have now an opportunity to vary the monotony. The newest pillow cases are exhibiting scalloped initials. You may be inclined to think that the uneven lines are not effective, but there you are wrong. The buttonholed scallops, when beautifully done, add materially to the general appearance. The idea can be applied to sheets, tablecloths and napkins, if one desires.

WILL IT DO IT?

When a customer calls your number and gets a "busy" report, your competitor profits. A "busy" report means that your telephone equipment is not sufficient. Better have one or more individual lines.

The modern housewife does over half of her shopping by telephone. If your telephone equipment is lacking, she will not waste time trying to get a "busy" line. She will call the line that will enable her to get the service she wants.

AMERICAN MEDICAL METHODS WORK WONDERS BATTLING TYPHUS AMONG THE SERBS

BY HENRY WOOD
(Copyright, 1915, by the United Press. Copyrighted in Great Britain.)

NISH, Serbia, Aug. 4.—(By mail).—From 100,000 cases of typhus to 600 and from a maximum mortality of 70 per cent to one of 20—all within the space of three months is the record of the American Red Cross and Rockefeller Institute Sanitary mission sent here to save the Serbian nation from the epidemic that was threatening its actual existence.

By September 1, Serbia will be entirely free of the plague. The full story of the most remarkable humanitarian task ever undertaken by the United States was today told for the first time in an interview granted to the United Press by Dr. Richard P. Strong, professor of tropical diseases at Harvard university, and head of the American mission. The interview took place in the little third class railway car, which fitted out with beds in one part and a shower bath in the other, and with a flat car attached behind for carrying his automobile and another car in front for the members of his immediate staff, has been practically the only home Dr. Strong has known in Serbia. Almost every night of the three months campaign has been spent by him aboard the car hurrying from one end of Serbia to the other in the fight against the deadly plague.

"The typhus epidemic in Serbia," stated Dr. Strong, "began last January in the vicinity of Vallievo, following the Austrian invasion of the month before, and spread with such rapidity that it became the greatest epidemic of that disease recorded in modern medical annals. The epidemic reached its height in the middle of April just as the American mission arrived. New cases then numbered 1,000 daily, but it must be remembered that these were the figures only of the victims who came to the military hospitals. Serbia had not been able even to keep statistics of the victims among the civil population and so the above figures give as a matter of fact, no accurate idea of the extent of the epidemic.

In fact, few figures of any kind are to be had, but presumably the total deaths from the epidemic have been about 100,000 and the number of victims down with the disease at the time we took charge was very likely of equal magnitude.

"As such an epidemic of typhus never before had occurred in the history of modern medicine, I freely confess that it was with no little concern we first arrived here. A quick survey of the situation convinced me, however, that with effective organization the plague could be wiped out in four months. I am still confident that when the four months are entirely past, the last of the 600 cases still remaining will have disappeared.

"Following the preliminary organization of a national sanitary board, something Serbia had not had, and the division of the country into sanitary districts, we at once went after the practical end of the work—namely the chasing down and extermination of the house from whose bite alone the disease is transmitted.

"As the quickest means of reaching the greatest number of the stricken population in the shortest possible time, we had two refrigerated cars placed at our disposal. In one of these was installed an apparatus for the disinfecting of clothing by heavy steam pressure and its immediate drying afterwards. In the second car was fitted the necessary appliances for a disinfecting bath of the victims.

"With the arrival of the car at each town, a tent was at once pitched by the side of the railroad in which the population could undress. They then entered the first car where they left their clothing for disinfection and passed immediately into the second car for the disinfection of their bodies. Only ten minutes were required for the joint operation at the end of which time each person was given back his clothing, dried and ready to put on.

with the absolute assurance that not a single louse or nit remained.

"Our average speed was 500 to 600 cases a day and in the three and a half months we have had the cars in operation we figure that a total of not less than 600,000 persons have been reached in this manner.

Railway Service Limited

"Unfortunately, railway communication in Serbia is very limited and the reaching of the population in the interior presented a different problem. Individual sanitary missions were therefore sent to each important town traveling in military automobiles or carriages, and frequently having their supplies carried in ox carts. Disinfecting and bathing plants were then established in each big center of population and the same process of extermination carried on.

"Where the Serbian government had funds at its disposal these plants were erected at its expense, but where it did not we paid for them ourselves. A total of fifty-three plants were thus installed by us and they constitute a permanent part of Serbia's equipment for fighting a similar situation should it ever come again.

"The next most important phase of the work was our sanitary assault of the military hospitals. These from the start had been the most prolific centers for the spreading of the disease. They were at all times congested to the limit with wounded and sick soldiers, whose infected clothing quickly spread the disease to almost every inmate.

"In attacking the hospitals we took with us portable bath tubs and had at our disposition the Austrian prisoners to give the sick and wounded their disinfecting baths. While they were doing this we put their clothing and bedding through the steam process and then wound up by disinfecting the entire building with sulphur and often even whitewashing the walls. Of the 113 military hospitals in Serbia, fully 100 passed through this sanitary regeneration at our hands.

"Still another most important phase of the work was the visiting of every house almost in the entire kingdom and separating the diseased from the well. The quarantining of the infected persons was something which the local authorities had not been able to undertake, but under our direction it was quickly and thoroughly carried out.

"While we were hard at work on this extermination of typhus we also had our eyes constantly on the look-out for cholera and typhoid. None of the former was found, but the latter was abundant. Against this, and against the former too, we therefore prepared in our own laboratories which we had established in the old Turkish town of Uskub, a combined serum against cholera, typhoid and paratyphoid. This was prepared in such a manner that two injections were sufficient and thus it was possible to administer it to both the army and the civil population with a maximum of labor. For this task of vaccination we had our own vaccinating car which covered all the territory that could be reached by rail, and we also furnished the serum to the French surgeons here who undertook its administration in the army.

"In connection with this laboratory work, we started from the very first on a search for the typhus germ but up to the present moment complete success has not crowned our efforts. The organism discovered by Dr. Plotz at Mt. Sinai hospital, New York, has not yet been found here by us, but with the aid of cultures which he has placed at our disposition, complete success may yet crown this end of the work. It is being actively pushed by Dr. Zinsser of Columbia and Dr. Sellards of Harvard.

"One of the most happy features of the whole work was the manner in which we ourselves, after the terrible experiences of the Serbian and American Red Cross units kept free from the disease. Not one of the fifty-four men comprising our mission fell a victim. But naturally we had at our disposition all of the latest possible preventives. Every doctor assigned to hard work amongst the victims wore a vermin proof suit, rubber gloves and adhesive bands above the wrists and ankles. We have not been able to demonstrate that the disease is contagious and in fact there seems no reason to believe that it is transmitted otherwise than by the bite of infected vermin.

"In Montenegro we were most fortunate in being able to check the epidemic before it could become general. Dr. Grinnell of Harvard, who was assigned to that territory, arrived when the disease had only got into the towns. These were quickly quarantined and the plague stamped out at once.

"Thus by the middle of August I think I will be able to guarantee that typhus will be a thing of the past in Serbia. Not only that, but we would be greatly disappointed if it ever came again. But still even in this latter case, Serbia now has at its disposition all of the facilities for speedily combatting any outbreak.

"Naturally our success was only possible through the most hearty cooperation of every man composing the mission, and this has been one of the two bright spots of the entire task. There was not a man who ever shirked or even objected to any task assigned him no matter how disagreeable or even how dangerous it might be.

"The other bright spot which stands out most vividly was the unfailing kindness of Sir Thomas Lip-

SAILOR'S LIFE IS FULL OF THRILLS

Young Englishman Less Than Twenty-one Years of Age Has Many Escapes

BY WILBUR S. FORREST
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
LONDON, Sept. 3.—(By mail).—The type of men that are becoming national heroes in England's greatest war is exemplified today in the story of the adventurous career of Midshipman George L. Drewry of London, who has been decorated with the Victoria Cross for valor at the Dardanelles.

Not yet of age, Drewry's brief twenty years have been packed with thrills that rival the most romantic heroes of Marryat's tales of the sea. He has sailed the world around, had thrilling rescues from watery graves and has been shipwrecked on a desert isle, but no finer story of heroism has been told during the war than his conduct while disembarking troops from the steamship River Clyde off Gallipoli peninsula.

The young midshipman was placed in charge of a flat boat at 5 a. m., on the memorable day of the landing of the British expeditionary force against the Turks. From the side of the River Clyde the vessel which was later run ashore to facilitate the landing of soldiers from a hole cut out in its plates, he steered straight toward Cape Helles in the face of a furious fire, to beach his craft where, with others, it would act as a landing stage for the soldiers. Behind him came the River Clyde. As the transport crunched its bow on the sandy shore, Drewry's lighter hit the beach at her port bow. Jumping ashore with a hauser he secured the small craft and went to the aid of Captain Unwin who by this time had jumped into the water in an effort to place another lighter. Both, despite machine gun and shrapnel, escaped death by inches, but were unable at once to accomplish their task. Drewry leaped aboard the lighter and then into the water again to assist a wounded soldier. He then threw away his revolver, coat and hat and went back to the aid of the captain. Shortly afterward a bit of shrapnel struck the youth on the head knocking him down. He was carried aboard the River Clyde, his wound dressed, and he immediately rushed back to the aid of Captain Unwin. With a rope in his teeth he swam to other lighters and fastened them to the grounded craft. Twice he executed this feat under sniping fire until rescued completely exhausted.

The story of Drewry's gallantry at the Dardanelles drew the story of his other adventures from his father and mother in London today. He left school at the age of 15, joined the mercantile marine and was apprenticed aboard the Indian Empire, a large London sailing ship. An incident of his first year at sea was a fall from a high mast into the sea. He was rescued with difficulty. This incident was nothing compared to the adventure which befell him later.

While sailing around Cape Horn in the Indian Empire a storm arose and the vessel was wrecked on a desert island. A heavy sea literally washed the crew into a shallow bay which was filled with seaweed. Swimming and crawling over the vegetable mass, the crew succeeded in reaching shore. For fourteen days they sustained existence on edible roots and shell fish and managed to hold out until rescued by a Chilean man-of-war.

After this in 1912, the youthful adventurer returned to England and was given an officer's berth on a merchant liner. Since then he has traveled all over the world, and happened to be in Port Said in July, 1913, when he joined the Royal Naval Reserve as a midshipman. In August, 1914, he was appointed to H. M. S. Egmont, guardship at Malta and later to the torpedo gunboat Hussar. Afterward he was transferred to the Transport River Clyde.

He will be 21 years of age in November.

SOLDIER STRIPPED

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(By mail).—A soldier correspondent writing from the firing line in Northern France tells how a Canadian officer escaped from the enemy in his "altogether."

"I was returning from a deserted village near—" he writes, "when to my astonishment I saw, leisurely strolling along ahead, a man entirely naked."

"We exchanged greetings and he told his story. He had been captured by the Germans, stripped of his clothing and placed under guard. Finding his guards he had regained our lines. I loaned him my waterproof and gave him a cigar that he asked for and he coolly continued his journey. I have since had the waterproof returned with a letter of thanks. He was a high Canadian officer.

ton to the members of the mission. Not only did he cheer us up with words at every moment when cheer was most needed, but his unending efforts to furnish the members of the mission with little odds and ends for their material comfort gave evidence of a kindly consideration of others such as I have never before met.

"As a result of our four months' work here, I think I can safely say that Serbia is a regenerated nation from a sanitary point of view and the effects of this I feel certain will be reflected in her national life and development for years to come."

ENGLISHMAN JOINS WAR FROM ARCTIC

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(By mail).—How the news of the big war penetrated to the Arctic circle and rooted out an Englishman who has just now returned to fight, was told here today.

Henry James, a subaltern, was 200 miles north of Edmonton when one day an Indian passed his camp and volunteered the information that a big war was on.

"That's all right," James answered, "Mexico and the United States are at it."

The Indian, however, insisted that it was a bigger fight.

James later struck camp and journeyed to the nearest trading post where he learned that England had been at war for months. He immediately returned to Canada and sailed for England.

A SCRIM BED SET

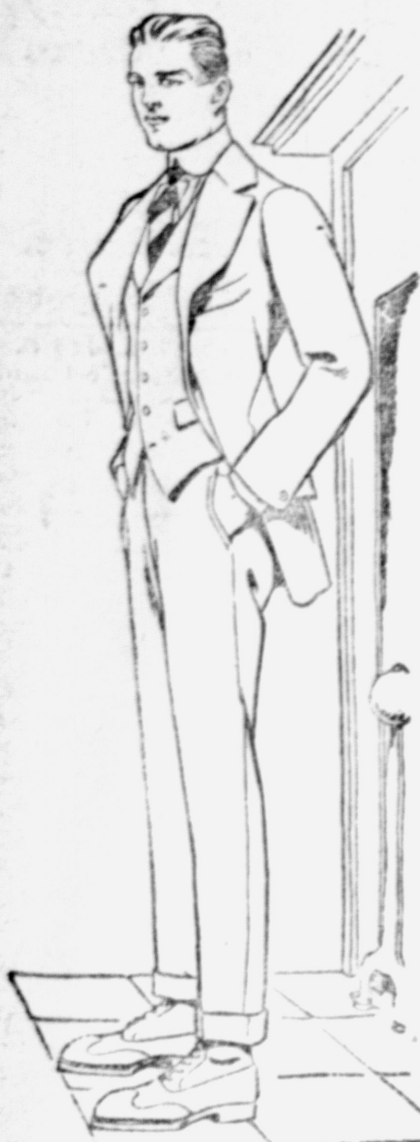

Most attractive bed sets can be fashioned from scrim, either white or cream. They add a dainty touch of color to the bedroom and are very cool in appearance. A flat piece of scrim is used for the top of the bed, and within two inches from the edge a border of cretonne, is added. It is here that the color note is introduced. The combination of black and white is very stunning for these sets; but if a bedroom is inclined to be dark, it is advisable to use orange, blue or old rose for the border. A graceful ruffle of scrim having a border of cretonne near the bottom adorns each side of the bed.

To throw at the bottom of the bed, make two or three odd-shaped pillows of the bordered scrim. If desired, the same material can be used for the curtains of the room.

PUBLIC DEBATE

Mr. A. M. Brayton,
Editor "Tribune,"
La Crosse, Wis.

My Dear Mr. Brayton:

Cognizant as I am of your intentions, under any and all circumstances, to be absolutely fair, I beg to correct two wrong impressions which manifest themselves in your otherwise sane editorial in your issue of Sept. 11, having reference to an appropriation for account of the Ship-

First, Mr. Mahoney is not an attorney for this company. For several years he has handled a number of court cases for us, which were especially assigned to him by our legal department, but he does not appear on our payroll as an employee, neither is he provided with annual or trip transportation, and is not authorized to represent this company in any matter not especially assigned to him, and I beg to assure you that he has had no instructions to take any action whatever in connection with the Shippers' association.

Second, your assumption that Mr. Mahoney was unconsciously doing what his client (the C. M. & St. P. Ry. Co.) would wish him to do, is not in accordance with the facts. It would be extremely bad policy for this company to assume to dictate to the manufacturers and jobbers of this city in relation to the formation and conduct of any sort of an organization for their own protection, and I assure you that no action whatever has been taken by this company to discourage the organization and maintenance of the Shippers' association. On the contrary, Mr. West, manager of this organization, will, I think, bear me out in the statement that I have personally been of some assistance to him, having loaned him for an indefinite period a very valuable file of cancelled tariffs, and have at different times offered suggestions bearing on the perfecting of the organization along safe and sane lines.

In closing, I wish to convey to you and the shipping public the fact that this company is always ready and willing to meet the Shippers' association, or any other association or any individual half way in the tremendous task of the equitable and fair adjustment of rates as between the various distributing points, a task which I am sure you fully realize is no small one.

Yours truly,
C. L. V. CRAFT.

PREMIER TRIES TO HEAL DIFFERENCES

PETROGRAD, Sept. 15.—Premier Gorkykin conferred today with a number of cabinet members and leaders of the duma on his return from the czar's headquarters, in an effort to reconcile differences still existing between the two groups. A formal cabinet session is to follow this conference.

The prime minister, it is understood, brought to today's conference the final word from Czar Nicholas on the duma's demands for more active participation in the conduct of the war. The czar, it is understood, is disposed to make some further slight concessions, but believes that the war office should not be hindered by interference by members of the duma unfamiliar with military affairs.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 15.—Mother Goose has made her appearance as a suffragist. "Mary, Mary, quite contrary.
How do you arguments grow?
A few facts perverted, old notions asserted.
And little fibs all in a row."

And then this:
"Little Miss Horner,
Sat in the corner
Making a suffrage speech.
"Her logic and brain,"
Said the women, "are plain."
But the man said, "Ain't she a peach?"

GOTHAM SWELTERS THREE DIE OF HEAT

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—New York sweltered today in the hottest September in thirty-eight years. The thermometer at 8 o'clock registered 78 degrees and the weather bureau stated the humidity was at 94— with no indications of going down. Instead, it was said, it would steadily rise until midafternoon. Coming on the fog end of an excessively hot summer, the heat of the last two days has all but prostrated the city. Last night fire escapades, roofs and even the streets and sidewalks were congested with thinly clad persons who fought against the heat and mosquitoes. Police records last night showed that three persons had died from heat and there had been scores of prostrations.

FREEZE OR ROAST SAYS WEATHERMAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—"Take your choice of sizzling in Washington, D. C., or freezing in Western Wyoming for the next seventy-two hours," said Uncle Sam's weatherman today.

Canton, N. Y., broiled in eighty degrees while a vacant spot in Wyoming was congealed at 28 degrees about 8 o'clock today.

Our hot spot, generally speaking today, was the Ohio Valley and eastern and southern states.

In the Mississippi valley, the lake region and the plains states, it was almost cool.

From the Rockies to the west coast it was positively cool.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Brisk winds caused a let-up today in the heat wave of the last three days which has caused Chicago to swelter. The temperature hovered around the 70 mark all day.

STATE FAIR RULE TO SWELL STOCK EXHIBITS FOR US

Cattle Show at Inter-state Fair Will Eclipse Anything of Former Years Because of Milwaukee Bar

HUNT IS ON FOR MIDWAY SHOWS

Van Auken and Main on Tour of Fairs to Get Reliable Attractions of Best Kind

As a result of the Wisconsin State Fair association having barred all cattle outside Wisconsin from exhibiting at the state fair at Milwaukee this year, the La Crosse Inter-State fair, to be held from September 23 to October 1, will probably show the largest number and greatest variety of stock in its history. The Milwaukee association is barring outside cattle from the fair to prevent any possible recurrence of the foot and mouth epidemic which swept the country several months ago and which caused federal quarantine.

Off For Midway Tour
Mr. Van Auken and his assistant, F. T. Main, left La Crosse on noon trains yesterday. Mr. Van Auken going to the Milwaukee fair and Mr. Main to the Columbia county fair at Portage. They will meet in Milwaukee and return together. The object of their trip is to secure the latest and best in midway attractions, and no pains will be spared in an endeavor to make this feature of the 1915 fair the best in the history of the association.

"Although plans have not thoroughly shaped themselves as yet," said Mr. Van Auken before he left, "things look promising from all angles. We shall have several big features which are bound to draw large attendance, and with good weather during the week no fair of the past will come up to the exposition the last of this month."

Many Popular Cattle Men Due
Concerning the prospects for one of the biggest cattle exhibits in the fair's history, Mr. Van Auken said many Minnesota exhibitors were flocking to all small Wisconsin fairs.

"Many Minnesota, Illinois, and North and South Dakota cattle men," said Mr. Van Auken, "want the marks awarded their stock at Wisconsin fairs. They prefer the big state fair, but now that it is barred to them, but are coming to the smaller fairs. The entry list is growing to large proportions."

According to Mr. Van Auken a splendid racing card will be staged here this fall.

Two races; a 2:20 trot and 2:09 pace, for purses of $500 each have been arranged for the opening day.

Purses of $500 and $600 will be given the following day to winners of a pace and a trot. Thursday, September 30, one of the biggest days of the fair will bring three races; a trot, and two paces. Purses of $600, $500, and $400 will be awarded winners. Friday, October 1, the last day of the fair will bring a pace and a trot for purses of $500 and $400.

Famous Pacer Coming
A big free feature on the race track this year will be George Gano, the world-famous pacer, who can make 2:10 1-4 under saddle. George Gano lowered his record at Madison recently by one minute. To a sulky, he can travel the mile in 2:02. Murry Anderson, well known jockey will be up. The horse will be ridden under the saddle only one day, but will be driven to the "bike" each day of the fair. He will be exhibited daily before the grandstand. Two other features to be shown in front of the grandstand daily are Reeds' trained dogs, performing marvelous antics on the platform and in the air, and Abou Ben Hamid's troupe of Arabian stars of the east.

DOCK BEGUN AT MUSKOGON

MUSKOGON, Mich.—Work is now under way here on a dock 1,700 feet in length and 800 feet in width, which will be constructed with all railroad facilities, storehouses and refrigerator plants, extending out into Muskegon lake, says the Detroit Free Press.

KINDS OF RHEUMATISM

In popular language the word rheumatism is a term that covers a multitude of ills of which pain is the chief symptom.

Articular rheumatism, inflammatory rheumatism and rheumatic fever are all names for the same disease. Muscular rheumatism affects the muscles and does not spread from one spot to another like inflammatory rheumatism. Lumbago is a form of muscular rheumatism.

Some people have rheumatism every winter especially those people who inherit a rheumatic tendency. They will continue to have recurring attacks until the blood is built up to a strength sufficient to overcome the rheumatic poison. External applications and drugs that simply relieve the pain are useless. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood and really correct the trouble.

With the poisons in the blood there is a continual combat between the health forces and the disease. When the rheumatic poison prevails the blood gets thin rapidly. When the blood is made rich and red by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the poisons are destroyed and expelled.

The free booklet "Building Up the Blood" tells the whole story and the diet book "What to Eat" will be sent on request by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

If a woman nags her husband it's up to him to supply her with plenty of cause. One woman can be very fond of another—if they are a hundred miles apart.

LONDON WILL BE READY FOR THE ZEPPELINS WHEN THEY COME AGAIN

LONDON, Sept. 15.—London will be ready when the Zepelins come again. Full details have not been made public, but it was learned today that the entire system of defending the capital from sky attacks will be radically changed as the result of an important conference held last night.

"It will be a lucky Zepelin that succeeds in passing the city outskirts," was the significant statement made by one aeronautical expert after the conference adjourned.

Several aviation experts. It is known, urged the government before the recent Zepelin attacks to adopt the same system by which Paris has been made immune from dirigible bombardments. They advocated a nightly air patrol along the east coast to prevent the airships from reaching London or any other large city. They pointed out that a sky battle above London might result in frightful casualties should one of the huge Zepelin dreadnoughts be brought tumbling down into a crowded street, spouting fire. The last raid on London provoked that despite warnings from the newspapers people insisted on "taking in" the air spectacle, regardless of danger.

The appointment of Admiral Sir Percy Scott, England's greatest authority on naval gunnery, to take charge of the defenses of London against Zepelin raids, is only one of the features of the new "anti-Zepelin" program. Other measures were kept secret for the same reason the admiralty withholds information of its methods of meeting the German submarine campaign.

The Daily News today reported that the commander of the last Zepelin that visited London dropped a heavy blade bone from a horse or ox, on which was a sketch of a Zepelin dropping a bomb on the head of Sir Edward Grey, British foreign secretary. Attached to the bone was a note reading: "A present to Sir Edward Grey with the compliments of the commander and officers."

The Zepelin souvenir was attached to a parachute and dropped into a field where it was picked up and handed to the authorities.

Story Confirmed That Germans Tried to Cause Strike of Longshoremen on Both Coasts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—President Gompers of the Federation of Labor today confirmed the New York World's story headed "Germans Offer $1,000,000 for 'Longshoremen's Strike and Riots on Docks in United States,'" by saying he had "known these facts for some time."

Gompers forecasted further sensational developments in the same connection, hinting that the public will be "astounded at the great temptation" American leaders "resisted."

Worked on Both Coasts
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—The intimation that German money was used in a fruitless attempt to bring about a strike of longshoremen and thus tie up all shipping on the Atlantic and Pacific, principally to prevent munition shipments reaching the allies, was made here today by John Keen, vice president of the Longshoremen's union.

In opposition to certain influences that were strongly pro-German.

"This was in evidence at Seattle, where, I am of the opinion, German money was being given to men and the members of the executive committees to prevent the signing of the new agreement, thus to cause a strike tying up the shipping on the Pacific and Atlantic."

"The men were promised big strike benefits, and unquestionably the offer came from German agents. When President O'Connor of the union was here recently he said German agents made a direct offer to him if he would aid in calling a strike. German agents worked among the men in San Francisco, but all their efforts failed."

PICK SEED NOW TO AVOID BLIGHT

Farmers wishing to avoid a recurrence of potato blight in their fields during 1916 should make it a point to select seed stock only from crops grown on land that has been free from blight and rot this year.

Such careful selection of seed stock is the only salvation in sight, according to R. E. Vaughan of the Agricultural Experiment station of the University of Wisconsin. While preventive measures, such as the application of Bordeaux mixture to plants in late summer, may often check the blight, it is far wiser and safer to begin careful seed selection at digging time. Disease-free seed represents the "ounce of prevention" so universally recognized as superior to a "pound of cure."

EIGHT GAMES ARE SET UP FOR THE FAN THIS SEASON

Between High and Normal Gridiron Follower Will Get Plenty of Entertainment

THE GAMES ARE HEADLINERS

High Opens Season Oct. 2 and Normal Closes with Minny Aggies November 21

Eight big juicy football games at home this year!

That must be the thought of every football fan of the city who has studied the schedules of the high and the normal schools of La Crosse. And the best phase of the whole thing is that only two of the games are played on the same date—the Normal game with River Falls and the high school game with Madison, November 13.

But there is every indication that attendance at neither of the games will fall off because of the conflict. River Falls for years has been a heavy rival of La Crosse and athletic contests with the northerners have always drawn capacity crowds. It is needless to speak of the rivalry existing between the high school and Madison. Madison two years ago defeated La Crosse by five touchdowns here. Last year La Crosse defeated the Capital City men at home by four touchdowns and it is safe to say that the rubber will be played off this year. The game is expected to be one of the star athletic attractions of the year.

High Opens Season

The high school will open the gridiron season, playing Tomah, October 2, two weeks from Saturday. Coach Horne and his cohorts have a mighty respect for the Monroe county team and are working hard and long for the opening contest.

On October 9 the Normal school plays the Maroons of Winona, a team made up of a number of former college and academy men who have made a name for themselves in independent athletic circles, not only in football, but in basketball and baseball.

Normal players will also furnish amusement for the afternoon of October 16, meeting St. Mary's college of Winona here. The Gophers are reputed as being of real football calibre and a mighty tussle is anticipated.

High school comes back into the sun October 22 with a game with Eau Claire, immortal rivals of La Crosse. Eau Claire for years has shared with La Crosse the honor of furnishing more football stars to the University of Wisconsin than any other city in the country.

Two Weeks of Inaction

Then comes a space of sorrow for the Saturday afternoon fan. For two weeks the teams are away. High school plays at Chippewa Falls and at Sparta on October 30 and November 6 and normal meets Dubuque, German college and Stevens Point on the respective dates.

Followers of the teams must be content with awaiting results on the week-end. Chippewa Falls and Sparta for the high school. 'Nuf sed! Here, on the thirteenth of November (the number altogether meaningless) are the two home games on the same day.

High school plays its last scheduled game of the year at home, November 20, St. Paul Central high coming here for an invasion of Badger territory. It is that school which last fall recognized the claims of the Red and Black for state honors, at-

A. Mucks Nearly Beamed Scorer In First Competition

They tell a good story about the athletic debut of Arlie Mucks of the University of Wisconsin, the new national champion at throwing the discus and putting the shot," writes Howard Valentine in the New York Globe. "I was at a high school meet, and among the bunch of novices who came out to toss the Greek saucer was our hero, Arlie. One of the measurers who had been watching the boys practice judged that the best of them would toss about 100 feet, so he took up his post about that distance from the circle, to note exactly where each throw fell. He was dead right—for a time. The first boy tossed eighty-six feet. Then came another with eighty-nine, and finally one superb effort of 96 1/2 feet. Up came Mucks, the big fat boy. He looked so bulky that the official joined in the laugh that greeted Mucks' stepping into the circle, and moved a bit closer to 'spot' a baby effort. Mucks didn't know how to make the turn in the circle 'according to Hoyle,' but he got around somehow and laced every ounce of his burly form into the swing of his arm. The measurer saw the discus coming a mile a minute, and fell in a heap to avoid being 'beamed' by the flying saucer. He needn't have, though, for Mucks' throw went clean over his head, striking the ground 134 feet from the circle. It was thus that Arlie made his debut as a discus thrower."

HIGHS GET FIRST SIGNAL PRACTICE

Zeisler and Reget Change Off at Quarterback; Reget, Spettel and Lyden in the Back Field

After a week of stiff preliminary work, Coach Horne lined up the high school first squad for its first signal practice last night. R. Zeisler and H. Reget changed off at the quarterback position, with Captain Reget at right half, Spettel at full and Lyden and Layman alternating at left half. Runge held down the center, Hackner, Bott and Schubert had the call for the guard positions, and the two heavy veterans, Enders and Blatter, were at tackles. Kulczynski and Roelzig at end positions were the other members of the team, which seemed sufficiently heavy in the line and light, although fast, in the backfield.

The second and third teams were also given signals last night. These teams, composed largely of new men, are developing very fast with "Firecracker" Puckett as coach, and should give the first team a stiff brush in the first scrimmage Thursday night.

The American league pennant race will be clarified by Saturday, so that a bewildered fandom can know whether to make reservations in Boston or Detroit. The Tigers jump to Beantown tonight.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

BY HAL SHERIDAN
(Written for the United Press.)

Gabby Cravath stuck his bludgeon in the path of his twenty-second homer yesterday, tying the modern record of Frank Schulte. Of course the Phillies won.

Yesterday's defeat by the Cardinals stuck just about the last pin into the Brooklyn pennant bubble. The Phils have a five game lead now.

Charley Herzog's Reds are in fifth place today, just one point behind the fourth place Cardinals. Herzog climbed to those dizzy heights over the prostrate form of his old boss, J. McGraw.

Dick Rudolph kept the Braves in the hunt by chucking a superior brand of ball, and cleaning the bases with a four-pley wallop at Chicago.

A holiday should be declared in St. Louis—the Browns took an entire series. It was, however, from the Athletics.

Tyrus Cobb's war club drove in the two runs that were necessary to give the Tigers a victory over the Yanks.

Something ought to be said about the Giants. All right, here it is: Requesant in Pace!

NEW GRIDIRON FOR RANDALL BY 1916

Committee on Plans Takes Final Action and Work on Varsity Field Will Begin at Once

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 15.—That Wisconsin will play its football games on a new field at Camp Randall in 1916 is the hope of the athletic department. The committee on plans has taken final action and work will begin at once.

The last legislature passed an appropriation of $20,000 for the carrying out of the work, because of the inadequate conditions of the present field. Since the north stand was condemned, the athletic department has been forced to rent circus seats to accommodate the football crowds.

According to present plans the sum voted by the legislature will be enough to get the field sufficiently completed for use by next year, although it will not be in its finished form. The new stadium will be on the west side of Camp Randall with the entrance from Breeze Terrace about half way between University avenue and Monroe street. By locating the new field at this place the most economical use of the limited ground space at Camp Randall will be had. The west stand will be built on the hill and most of the level land will be available for use as fields, with the exception of that used for the east stand. By the adoption of this plan the minimum amount of grading will be required, the maximum amount of level ground will be had for actual field use; and the cost of building stands will be greatly reduced by building them in step-like form on the side of the hill. Thus with the expenditure of this $20,000 the field will be put into form and between one-third and one-half of the west section of the stadium will be completed. The stadium when completed will seat 40,000 or more; and the west section alone will seat about 11,000. The stadium will be of solid concrete construction. In every instance the committee has planned the building so that as each part is finished it will be in its final form and will not have to be changed at any time in the future.

The axis of the gridiron will run north and south thus removing the sun from the eyes of the players. This has been a serious handicap to players on the present field.

KRAUSE DENIES THE CLOTHIERS WILL BE IN CITY SERIES

"There have been no arrangements made for the Clothiers playing in the city championship," said the president of a city club today, after reading in an evening paper last night the "announcement" that such arrangements had been made. The story, he said, was unauthorized by the managers of the Nelsons, Athletes and Trainers, the clubs playing the series for the city title.

He intimated that after the Nelsons-Athletes series the Clothiers may be given games with the winners, the games not to have any bearing on the city title as far as present understandings are concerned.

The Athletes and Nelsons will play Sunday the first game of the final series, postponed from last Sunday.

MATCHES SHATTER JOHNSTON'S NERVES

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 15.—William Johnston, national tennis champion, was on Tuesday ordered by physicians to play no singles, even exhibition, during the tri-state tournament here. His matches with McLoughlin, R. Norris Williams, II, and Carl Behr, on successive days last week, so shattered his nerves that unless he rests now the champion's game may be weakened permanently, they say.

The tournament management hopes Johnston may be recovered sufficiently for a short display on the day of the finals.

GERMAN CONSUMER LEAGUE EFFECTIVE

More Than 40 Per Cent of Population Enrolled in Organization to Effect Economy

GRAIN PRICES FORCED DOWN

Larger Rations for Persons with Physical Disabilities Also Gained by the Work of League

The Manchester Guardian recently published the following article on the Consumers' league of Germany:

It is fashionable to admire and even to envy German "organization," but those who confess to the envy usually save the sore by reflecting that the mass of the Germans are, after all, poor, docile beings, who merely accept the part assigned them in the admirably efficient machinery provided from above.

Not Only Official
This is all very well, but it is salutary to be reminded, too, that the organizing power and organizing will of Germany are not confined to her government, state or municipal, but are at the present moment being exhibited on the gigantic scale without any official intervention whatever and with a practical force which officialdom itself has found it advisable to conciliate.

A study of the popular movement for controlling the price of provisions and especially for securing the precious coming harvest for the consumers, tends to dissipate many illusions. The existence of this popular movement, as distinct from the energetic control exercised by the imperial government, is very imperfectly organized in England. In view both of our own steadily rising prices and of the need for appreciating the full our enemy's resources it is not without practical interest to know what this German popular organization is doing and has done.

The "consumers' defense war committee" was founded in December last and now represents no fewer than 25,000,000 members—40 per cent of the entire population. Austria has a similar committee. The secret of this vast progress is that the committee is a sort of concentration of the heads of some fifty great existing societies—trade unions, professional unions, leagues of cities, benevolent societies, women's societies, "social politics unions" and many more, all with wide ramifications over the whole country, the whole mass of the members of each becoming at a stroke members also of the central body.

Imagine a similar league in England, in which the engineers' and the plumbers' unions, the inns of court, the army of registered physicians, surveyors, architects and the town clerks of all the cities and towns of England took strenuous and harmonious part. Perhaps only one cause could, even in Germany, "organize" ingredients so disparate, the solitary cause for which they are all alike concerned—that of keeping food prices down.

Two Classes Protest
The league, however, though vast, naturally does not embrace the whole population. Two classes interested as consumers, like the rest, in cheap food are still more interested as producers or distributors in seeing that it is not too cheap, and both the "agrarians" and the food merchants raised indignant protests, for the consumers' committee has during the last six months been displaying formidable powers both of argument and of action.

Leaders in Movement
It has in its ranks economists, statisticians, physiologists of the highest status, for these German professors are not content to give a lecture here or write a pamphlet there; they act as generals in chief to this army of embattled consumers, taking the leading part, more particularly in drawing up the reports, of which seventeen have been issued since January.

It was the famous physiologist Zuntz, for instance, who, at the first general congress, brought forward the decisive motion on the central subject of the whole movement—the means of securing the coming harvest to the consumer.

During the same month the German conference of commerce met and passed forcible resolutions against the attempts of the Consumers' league to interfere with the hallowed freedom of trade by maximal prices and the like. The Consumers' league regarded the proffered freedom in a time of scarcity with disdain. In the same month again met the imperial German agrarian council, a more redoubtable body.

Popular demonstrations, mass meetings and resolute threats in the press had compelled them to withdraw early in the year their open opposition to the measures of the Consumers' league. They now sought to get the machine devised for the consumers' benefit into their own control.

We cannot here follow the struggle further. Enough that the League of German Cities issued an energetic protest and with the majority of the reichstag, together with the chancellor, supports the Consumers' league's policy of regulated consumption and maximal prices. This success is largely the result of the energetic educative activity of the league.

MILWAUKEE CAR RATE CASE TO BE OPENED UP AGAIN?

U. S. Supreme Court Order Backing State Board Is Filed but State Board Has Changed Mind

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 15.—(Special.)—The Milwaukee lower fare case, looking to the sale of thirteen street car tickets for fifty cents, which the supreme court of the United States recently decided against the company, may be fought all over again in an effort by the company to rescind the order.

Deputy Attorney General Walter Drew today filed in the state supreme court the mandate of the United States supreme court in this case, that tribunal having affirmed the state court's decision, which in turn affirmed the decision of Judge E. Ray Stevens of the Dane county circuit court, who upheld the order of the railroad commission commanding the company to sell thirteen tickets for fifty cents. Since that time the commission rescinded the order on the ground of inadequate revenues upon which to earn a reasonable return.

This is one of numerous strong arguments the company will present in case it sees fit to reopen the case. It is predicted here that when the records are sent back to the Dane county court for further action, the company will file a new complaint attacking the order on the merits.

SOILS OF COUNTIES ARE EXAMINED

Final detailed soil surveys of six counties in north central Wisconsin are being made this summer by the soil department of the University of Wisconsin in co-operation with the state geological and natural history survey. Eight men have been working during the past season under the direction of A. R. Whitson and W. J. Geib.

A report of the finding, together with certain recommendations will be published some time during the coming year. The counties included in the survey, which supplements a less detailed survey made about ten years ago, are Clark, Marathon, Taylor, Lincoln, Wood and Portage.

THE NEWEST IN DRESS AND ACCESSORIES

The dance frock is an important item in the fall wardrobe of either the young girl or the dancing matron. This year they will be, at least at the beginning of the season, of comparative simplicity, for the smartest of dance garb will be in the form of severely made taffeta frocks, having shoulders and arms softened by tulle or mousseline de soie, but otherwise absolutely devoid of ornament. There is, however, a trend toward the panner, always a charming fashion when interpreted in the bouffant taffeta.

Checks are to be worn during the cool seasons. The checkerboard pattern has assumed a new name for the new season, that of "chessboard" design. Subdued plaids in various color combinations will be combined with plain materials for frocks.

The high collar is becoming insistent. High, boned collars are promised or threatened, depending upon the point of view; but at the present moment the entrenched styles are high and snug-fitting but boneless. Fortunately, there is also a good and smart assortment of flat collars, and some, but very few, separate convertible collars. There are, however, quite a few collars which open at the center front collar line, resembling the batwing collar which was launched in the spring.

Though the days for muffs have not arrived, the days for thinking of them (if one intends to invest in a new set) are at hand. It is to be a fur season of animal effects, that is, fur pieces with accompanying tails and heads to make them appear as realistic as possible. Many of the new neckpieces show double fur, that is, fur on the under side instead of a satin lining, so that the neckwear will, as near as possible, have the effect of real animal skins. Snake scarfs, those that follow the curve of the neck, are the exception to this fashion, being lined with satin or silk.

Fox furs of various kinds are in excellent standing. For girls and young women red and white foxes

will be in great demand. A lovely conservative fox is dyed to a shade of battleship gray. White fox pointed with black is one of the season's novelties that will be much worn by young girls and the younger women. Furriers say that this fad for black and white in furs is an outgrowth of the popularity of that combination during the last two or three seasons. Lynx will also be excellent, and, wonder of wonders, despite its popularity, lynx will be cheaper than for some seasons past.

Beaver, too, is fashionable, and gray krimmer is quite the smartest thing by way of trimming for frocks, suits and coats.

A new veil has about the edges tiny chenille drops in the form of balls.

The sailor is the basic idea for many of the new hats of both large and small sizes. In the shapes which may be termed as "close-fitting," the oblong, boat-shaped turbans and the tricorn are in order. All of these shapes are subject to much modification, depending upon the twitch or turn most becoming to the wearer.

PLUTOGRATS BRED FROM WORLD WAR

Chicago Tribune Shows the Market Value of Thirteen Firms Has Grown by $492,000,000

SCHWAB INTERESTS SKYROCKET

War Orders Have Caused Big Steel Business to Grow 624 Per Cent Since War Started

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—A new crop of millionaire is breeding in the United States, according to a table of stock advances since the European war began, prepared by the Tribune.

According to the tabulation, the market value of listed stocks of thirteen representative companies directly benefited by war orders has increased $492,000,000 since January 1 last.

"This vast increase," the Tribune says, "includes by no means all the important concerns that have benefited by war orders. Scores of larger organizations like Dupont Powder properties are ignored. Hundreds of smaller firms now wallowing in the war prosperity are not incorporated into the tabulation."

The table shows that the Schwab properties, which had a market value of $7,000,000 before the war orders began to pile in, today are given a market value of $49,000,000—an increase of 624 per cent. More millionaires are being bred, it is said, than were bred following the "Steel age" after McKinley's 1896 election.

"And over all," the Tribune's amplification of the table continues, "astride the states like a colossus, shunting a golden stream into his coffers that is poured out from every corner of the land, looms the figure of J. Pierpont Morgan."

"Not millions, but hundreds of millions, it is estimated by stock exchange insiders, will have come to the house of Morgan by the time the last death-dealing shell explodes in hell-entangled Europe. The Rockefeller will be out-distanced."

The Tribune points out that it is not spy plots that cause fear to the captains of industry, but the growing insistence of the workers in the properties that are making such rich profits for a more equal share in those profits.

"How much money," the article says, "Morgan is making out of his job as American minister of munitions to the court of St. James, is the merest conjecture. Some say the amount is so stupendous as to be almost inconceivable."

BRANCH LAB IN NORTH?

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 15.—Within two weeks a member of the state board of health will be sent to northern Wisconsin to investigate the feasibility of establishing the branch laboratory of the state hygienic laboratory, which the last legislature authorized. Superior, Ashland, Eau Claire and Rhinelander are after the institution. Railroad connections and facilities for conducting the laboratory and serving the territory will enter largely into the final location of the plant.

GAYETY IS GONE
FROM WORKS OF
PARIS TAILLEURS

Seriousness and Dignity of French at War Is Expressed in Quiet
Frocks

ONLY TAILORED THINGS IN PARIS
Dancing and Evening Gowns
Are Made by Couturiers
Only for Americans

Paris tailleurs, once the creators of the world's gayest gowns and suits for midday, are today thinking of more than mere style in the making of their product.

There is sentiment in the costumes
of the Parisian maker of women's garments this year—style mellowed by sentiment for half of the nation—the half which is defending the nation against the enemy. In the absence of colors gay, and frivolous lines, which have in the past brought the fame of Paris to the farthest ends of the world, the serious spirit of the whole people is expressed in quiet lines with which garments are being fashioned.

Dignity in Clothes
The present dignity and seriousness of the French are being expressed in fashions which are far removed from the flippant and the gay. Since the joyful in clothes making has been removed, the strictly tailored gown and suit has come into its own.
The fall fashions tend towards the pure tailor made—as far as Paris is concerned at least.

Great French dressmakers are creating lovely frocks, dancing costumes, theater dresses and rich wraps, but these are being made for American importing retailers who are not being made to feel the sadness of the Frenchwoman.

While the American woman can still revel in her Paris gown, on the street, at the theater, or wherever she may have occasion to wear it,
only the tailored costume may be seen in the usual haunts of the ultra-gay in the French capital. The gowns there may still be called "chic", but they express quiet decision.

Expressing this new ideal of quietness is a new redingote, a new creation of Bernard, and Cheruit combine in with a new full-length coat over a skirt to match. Notable are the long lines and the austere grace of the garments. Strange though it may be, Paris is still clinging to the sauce skirt, the fashion which took America by storm about a year ago,
which includes the style of high topped boots from which the high skirt swings clear.

Military Is Hinted
A military suggestion is given with the wearing of the redingote and the long coat, and again the Paris tail-leur tends towards the seriousness of his country.

However, the military suggestion which might easily pervade the gowns
of French dressmakers is being kept within bounds, and from the stage of picturesqueness. The military is evident, though, in the shape of revers,
in pockets and belts, and other parts of the coats. Grouped buttons and braided bound coats also suggest the martial.

Deep yokes on skirts of moderate fullness are being emphasized by Ballot and Beer. This fullness is gracefully restrained in grouped pleats or in gathers emanating from pocket motifs, at least in tailored costumes. The favorite materials for such costumes are serge, gabardine, and red suitings of moiré, and worsted weave. A graceful half yoke running across the front of the skirt has been introduced by Doucet.
Pleats and gathers are being used by Cheruit and others are using an original skirt pattern with flaring gores at the sides and panels at back and front.

Tail Collars on Separate Coat Tail straight collars adorn the new separate coat, which is being usually buttoned at one side, beyond
the line of the double breasted coat.
Again the tail collar brings the military atmosphere. Coverts and dark wool mixtures are being used in their making. Quaker wraps, again in sympathy with the hour, are be-

GERMAN TROOPS ENTERING WARSAW; RUSSIANS LEAVING HASTILY

These pictures were both taken in Warsaw on the same day. The lower photo shows the last Russian battalion leaving the city. The fleeing Russians seized all cattle so as not to leave anything of value to the Germans. Upper photo shows the victorious German infantry marching through the main streets of the Polish capital immediately after their entrance into the city. Note the civilians in the picture. Nearly all of them are Jews, Germans or Poles.

ing manufactured in Paris by one of the leading tailors. Most coats have the waistline, now in favor. Many of the new coats will have close lines over the shoulder, bust and arms and will flare out to good width below
the knee. Large buttons are being used on many of the newest coats.

WAR NEWS OF ONE
YEAR AGO TODAY

German forces in France reported strongly reinforced and have taken up favorable defensive positions. Severe fighting for several days around Soissons.

Maubeuge, reported captured by Germans some days ago, still in Allies' hands.

Russian official sources give Austrian losses since fall of Lemberg as 250,000 killed and wounded, 100,-
000 prisoners and 400 guns.

Emperor William reported at East
Prussian front.

John Redmond calls on all Irish
to support England's cause.

President Wilson, answering the kaiser's note alleging use of dummies, says it would be unwise, premature and inconsistent for a neutral government to pass judgment now.

TRIMMED SKIRTS

It is predicted that trimmed skirts
will be very much in evidence during the coming season. Heretofore pockets have held the honors, but now ruffles of silk, bands of braid, strips of fringe and pieces of fur are strong rivals of the pockets. But pockets still hang on and are twisting themselves into all sorts of shapes in order that they may be acceptable to fastidious women.
"Splashy" designs, embroidered in wool or heavy silk, are also used with good effect to elaborate the skirts of afternoon and evening gowns.

SORGHUM IS GOOD FEED FOR STOCK

Department of Agriculture
Finds Feeding Value Is Ninety Per Cent That
of Corn

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The grain sorghum specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture have found that the feeding value of these sorghums is within 10 per cent of that of corn. If the price of sorghum grains, therefore,
is less than 90 per cent of the price
of corn it is profitable to feed them.
In a large portion of the country the price for sorghum grain is usually much less than this and the grain sorghums, should, therefore, be used far more than at present as a feed
for live stock.

Chemical analysis of sorghum grains compared with that of corn show that the sorghums are distinctly higher in protein content than corn. The carbohydrate content is practically the same. On the other hand, the fat content is much lower than in corn and the fiber content is also somewhat less. The sorghums are eaten readily by stock and poultry of all kinds. Moldy heads or musty and weevil grain will not be relished any more than corn, oats or barley in the same condition.
Since the kernels are hard it is desirable to grind or chop them before feeding.

Another use to which sorghum grains can be profitably put is in the feeding of poultry. At the present time it is probably safe to say that some form of grain sorghum seed constitutes fully 25 per cent of the prepared poultry feed sold in this country and it is probable that the proportion would be still larger if a supply were always available at satisfactory prices. As the poultry industry is steadily increasing it seems probable that this outlet for the sorghum will be even greater in the future than it is now.

WAR ODDITIES

LONDON—Captain Vance Hawker, one of the latest airmen to win the V. C., comes from a family whose crest is the hawk, and whose motto is: "The hawk seeks booty; we seek glory."

LONDON—In a serious scholarly psychological analysis of Charlie Chaplin, an English writer brands
"Charles of the Movies" a "highly emotional actor; not a clown, but an artist; not a comedian, but a genius."

BOX FOR COLLARS

A very good-looking collar box can be made from a pasteboard box measuring nine inches or more square. The lid of the top can be discarded, for it will not be needed.
Cover the bottom of the box with brown linen. Use a piece of brown linen twelve inches wide and one yard long for the rest of the bag. Tack one end of this to a corner of the box and wrap the rest of it smoothly around the four sides, joining the ends neatly and overcasting the upper to the lower piece of material.
Make a neat hem at the top of the bag and at opposite positions on the four sides attach snap fasteners.
A stenciled or embroidered design should be added to the four sides of the box if one has the time to do the work, especially if the box is to be a gift to some dear friend or relative.

Government Has Campaign

Vagaries and Superstitions
Regarding Rearing of Child Assail the Workers

BY WILBUR S. FORREST
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
LONDON, Sept. 2.—(By mail)—
The war is sapping the manhood of the nation; save the babies.

This cry is invading England today and almost for the first time in history the government and municipal authorities are giving the subject earnest attention. The terrible toll of the battlefields, which the casualty lists printed in the newspapers emphasize each day, has begun to make England think about the future of the race.

Medical authorities are giving
"Hints to Mothers" through the press, and systematic investigations of infant life in the slums are bringing forth remarkable revelations.

England's slums are the worst in the world and England's new "baby campaign" has brought this fact home to the government and people.

The medical authorities have just discovered that in Finsbury, the great slum district of London, the birth rate is greater than the average for England and Wales. But why infants
here die at the rate of 118 in 1,- 000 has also been brought to light and corrective measures are being taken.

Among the many obsessions prevailing in this section, as reported by Dr. E. A. Thomas, a municipal investigator, are:

That just before and after childbirth a mother should drink gin;
that maternity nurses are not necessary in case of childbirth; that a baby cannot make enough heat to sleep in a cot by itself; that a baby must not be subjected to fresh air
because it will get sore eyes; that it is unlucky to weigh a baby and dangerous to cut its fingernails; that boiled bread is proper food for infants; that milk bottles should be cleaned with kerosene because "kerosene will clean anything."

These, according to the investigator, are some of the contributing causes of the excessive infant mortality in England's slums, and all of these half-superstitions are kindred to appalling conditions of filth and ignorance. London's slums are dirtier than any others, it is stated, and if an infant lives through the first six months it can live through anything. The fathers of these slum families are laborers, hawkers, beggars, cripples, porters, odd-work men, old men, thieves and the usual raffle. The mothers are charwomen or engaged in like occupations.

But the fathers have largely disappeared from the slums.
They have gone to war. The wives have encouraged them to enlist, in many cases because the government's separation allowance comes to more than the husbands can normally earn. With the money, the majority of the women drink, raise babies to die, or be neglected. Moreover they often pawn the scant few household things for drink.

The notification of births often comes to the authorities in the handwriting of children, apparently dictated by the mother and a committee of relatives. Here is a portion of one of these notifications:

"Present at birth mother and the lady what makes the tea we don't know her address. Say father wasn't present so he don't know about it so please excuse him, but mother knows. It was a still born and not in the according to the regulations please to say if it was not I don't think."

The war is going to make these conditions in the slums of the past,
the authorities say. The race even in the slums must be preserved.

Worth While Quotation.

the finest, hardest, highest art I know

CURIOSITY RATHER THAN TERROR FILLS BRITAINS WHEN ZEPPELINS ATTACK

The British censor has passed for publication the following personal experience of the latest Zeppelin raid over London by William G. Shepherd, United Press Staff correspondent. It is the first story that has yet been thus approved. It is the first story which gives a complete insight into the British public's behavior "under fire." It confirms the announcement by the United Press on Thursday that Wednesday night's air raid was over the heart of London although Shepherd is not permitted to state what theater he attended, nor to identify the section of the city.

—EDITOR'S NOTE.

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1915, by United Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 15.—It is Wednesday night, September the eighth. Above the din of the orchestra there sweeps over the theater a cavernous, bass "boom."

"Zeppelin!" whispers a pretty girl sitting next to a Scotch officer. "No," you hear him whisper. "It's a door banging."

He's lying and knows it. "Zeppelin! Zeppelin!" The whisper runs through the audience. If you knew what was transpiring in the street you'd be out there instead of waiting for the last act to end. Such a scene is being enacted out there as the old town of London in all its rich thousand year history never before beheld.

The curtain goes down. You file out of the theater into a crowded street. Traffic is at a standstill. A million quiet cries make a subdued roar. Seven million people of the biggest city in the world stand gazing into the sky in the darkened streets.

Here is the climax to the Twentieth century!

Zeppelin Floats Above
Among the autumn stars floats a long, gaunt Zeppelin. It is dull yellow—the color of the harvest moon.

The long fingers of searchlights, reaching up from the roofs of the city, are touching all sides of the death messenger with their white tips. Great booming sounds shake the city. They are Zeppelin bombs—falling—killing—burning.

Lesser noises—of shooting—are nearer at hand, the noise of aerial guns sending shrapnel into the sky. "For God's sake! Don't do that!" says one man to another who has just struck a match to light a cigarette.

Whispers, low voices, run all through the streets.

"There's a red light in the sky over there; our house may be burning," exclaims a woman, clutching at a man's coat.

"There are a million houses in London; why ours particularly?" he responds.

A group of men talking French stand gazing up from the street. They are in waiter's clothes and have rushed out from the upper room of one of the most luxurious hotels in the world.

"The devils!" exclaims one, and then—
"We've got it! It can't get away! There's shrapnel all around it!"

"Oh! My Neck!"
"Oh! my neck!" says a pretty girl in evening wraps. "I can't look up a minute more."

All about you are beautifully garbed women and men in evening clothes. "Oh's" and "ah's" long drawn out—exclamations of admiration like the sounds of American crowds watching fire works—greet the brilliantly white flashes of shrapnel.

Suddenly you realize that the biggest city in the world has become the night battlefield on which seven million harmless men, women and children live.

There are more cries.
"Good God! It's staggering!" Shrapnel flashes break near the great airship. But the airship moves on.

What a roar of joy would go up from the millions of this great city if they could suddenly see the yellow object transformed into the flash of one gigantic gas explosion! Little white-gloved hands clap their approval at the Zeppelins near approach to death; white teeth sparkle in smiles; men roar with delight. These men and women, flowers of twentieth century culture, have become elemental. Dirty, bloody, battle-mad soldiers feel this same way

TREAT RYE NOW TO PREVENT SMUT

Smut disease caused much injury to Wisconsin rye this year.

Smut can be largely controlled by treating the seed grain with formaldehyde. This simple and effective way to use formaldehyde is suggested by A. G. Johnson of the University of Wisconsin.

"After cleaning and grading carefully pile the seed on a clean floor or canvas and sprinkle with a solution of formaldehyde, one pint of the commercial 40 per cent formaldehyde to 40 gallons of water, using a gallon to a bushel of seed.

"While sprinkling, shovel over the seed to insure thorough wetting of all the grain. Then cover with canvas or several thicknesses of bags and leave covered for at least two hours. Up to four hours is all right.

"When treatment is completed, the seed should be spread out to dry and raked occasionally to hasten the process. It will then be ready to sow at any convenient time.

It is important (1) that the treated seed should be handled in sacks which have not previously been used for rye or have been soaked two hours in the above formaldehyde solution; and (2) that the seeder, if previously used for rye, should be washed out with formaldehyde solution before using in order to prevent any chance of the smut getting on the seed."

LA CROSSE CLOSES UP SHOP AND TRAVELS TO THE INTER-STATE FAIR

"Probable Showers" Predicted by Weatherman Fail to Show Up; Will Be Clear Tomorrow

MANY ARRIVE FOR THE FAIR

Incoming Trains are Well Filled and Grounds Are Alive with Visitors Early

"SOME FAIR" IS THE WORD

Big Exhibits of Stock and Farm Products and Excellent Racing Card Mark the Exposition

"The biggest opening day the fair has seen," was the descriptive used by Secretary C. S. Van Auker when asked as to attendance at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Thirty-five hundred people had clicked through the turnstiles at that hour and the influx was continuing.

At 3 o'clock the ball game between the Trainers and the Athletics stood 1 to 1 at the end of the first inning.

The heavy condition of the track caused the announcement this afternoon at 2:30 that the racing card scheduled for the day had been postponed. The 2:00 race and the 2:30 trot, today's races, will be run with the 2:15 trot tomorrow. George Gano will do a mile under saddle tomorrow afternoon.

"Gone to the Interstate fair." Locking their doors and deserting their desks, city and county officials and their assistants, business men and factory heads and employees have gone to the fair for La Crosse day. The above inscription everywhere in evidence on doors and windows called attention to the absence of activity in downtown La Crosse today.

"Probable showers," promised by the weatherman for last night failed to show up. While the same prediction is made for tonight, the local forecast promises clear skies for tomorrow. Incoming trains brought many to the city this morning, and with the usual local following of fair

Considerable increase in the unusually keen competition among townships for the premiums for the best exhibits of the respective districts was evinced at the announcement that the La Crosse Bankers' association had offered a silver cup as first premium for the exhibits of the townships. The cup is now on display in E. W. Parker's window.

fans larger than usual, the grounds were alive with fun-seekers early this afternoon. The last "midway" show had been put in place early this morning, all exhibits of livestock and the hundred and one exhibits in the Exposition building had found places on the busy grounds, and Secretary C. S. Van Auker and his assistants leaned back in their chairs for the first rest in forty-eight hours.

Police on Job

With several patrolmen and plain-clothesmen on duty the police department occupied the fair grounds police station this morning. The grounds will be patrolled diligently every day of the fair.

The last word given out before the races started at 2 o'clock this afternoon was that the race track was in "fairly good shape."

Mud Horse to Win

The "mud horse," the trotter or pacer who likes the mucky going, is bound to take honors today, was an early prediction.

The fair grounds track is not in good condition nor is it what could be called bad. Heavy rains of Sunday soaked it to a mush, and horsemen waited in vain yesterday for an appearance of the sun. The track was worked all day yesterday, and this morning was given a final dressing

They Can Operate Without Hesitation or a Bond Declares Attorney General Owen

Higbee and Schlabach Rule That Jitney Regulation Bill Cuts Out Fair Ground Traffic

Take Your Pick

"The jitney law doesn't apply to them at all. Automobiles can operate between the city and the fair grounds without hesitation. They cannot be considered jitneys under the statute," Attorney General Walter C. Owen.

"The operation of the motor vehicle comes within the statute providing there is a fixed starting point and a fixed destination. I am of the opinion that persons operating automobiles on our streets for the indiscriminate carriage of persons to and from the fair grounds for hire must file an indemnity bond and procure a license as provided by the above mentioned law," City Attorney J. E. Higbee and District Attorney Otto M. Schlabach.

In a maelstrom of legal cross-currents, Chief of Police John B. Webster was still tossing uncertainly at sea today on the problem of fair ground auto service. The problem this morning was apparently solved against the auto drivers—by a joint opinion from City Attorney J. E. Higbee and District Attorney Otto M. Schlabach. But Attorney General Walter C. Owen, in the city for a few hours today, laughed at the construction of the law which would abolish automobile service to the fairs.

"The jitney law doesn't apply to them at all," he told a TRIBUNE representative. "Automobiles can operate between the city and the fair grounds without hesitation." And there you are.

The chief of police has hoisted the signal of distress. Shall he take the word of the local authorities, whose typewritten opinion lies upon his desk? Or shall he accept the opinion of the state's chosen legal authority, upon whom, next to the courts, lies the burden of interpreting the legislature's intent?

Attorney General Owen had no hesitancy about his opinion. He has given it to many county fairs on the same subject—"fifty" was his laconic description of the number who asked to have the point cleared up.

"The intent of the legislature is clear," he said. "A jitney is expressly described as a motor vehicle furnishing service similar to a street car. It is therefore an automobile which travels over an unvarying route, taking on and discharging passengers at all points along its course. Automobiles carrying passengers to the fair grounds take on and discharge passengers only at the termini of their route. They cannot be considered jitneys under the statute. They can operate at will, without reference to the regulation bill."

"An automobile bus carrying passengers from a hotel to a depot or return is not a jitney. The fair ground-service automobile is in the same class."

Must Have Bond Say Local Lights

The city attorney's ruling, which was concurred in by the district attorney after a conference this morning, puts the matter on a different ground, and denies the right of the fair ground autos to operate on the ground that they are not financially responsible in the absence of a bond as required by the jitney regulation bill.

Here is the ruling of the local interpreters:

AMBASSADOR IS DEPRIVED OF HIS POSITION IN U. S.

Dumba Himself Advises the Capital of Recall and Asks for Safe Conduct

WITHDRAWAL IS FINAL

All Possibility of Envoy Being Recalled Only on Leave of Absence Dissipated

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Unconditional recall of Austrian Ambassador Dumba was announced at the state department today. A telegram was received this morning from Dumba at the state department stating that he had been recalled by his government and asking that a safe conduct be secured. He announced that he would leave October 3 from New York. Acting Secretary of State Polk announced that last Saturday American Ambassador Penfield had been officially advised by Austrian Foreign Minister Burian that the Austrian government would recall Dumba as requested and asked Penfield that a safe conduct be secured for the envoy.

Foreign Minister Burian also advised Penfield that, as a matter of course, Dumba's recall would be final.

This removed all possibility of Dumba being recalled only on leave of absence to give an explanation. Since Saturday the state department has been waiting to hear from Dumba regarding the notice of his departure and official notification that he had actually been recalled by Vienna, the notice given Ambassador Penfield being merely that he would be recalled.

Acting Secretary Polk announced today that a safe conduct for Dumba had been secured by the allies' embassies here and would be forwarded shortly to Lenox, Mass.

Until today the state department was uncertain whether the formal notification of Dumba's recall would come from the Austrian government direct, Ambassador Penfield or Ambassador Dumba. Penfield's report Saturday that he had been assured that Dumba would be withdrawn had given officials confidence that Austria's action would be completely satisfactory.

That the Dumba incident is now regarded as closed was officially announced at the state department. The administration regards his unconditional recall as complete and full satisfaction.

There will probably be no other formal note or action by Austria, or communication with Dumba other than forwarding the safe conduct.

Anglo-French Forces Fall Back to Prepare for Another Onslaught the French Claim

Gen. Von Fabeck Unsuccessful in Defending Important Objective of Allies

PARIS, Sept. 28.—Despite the most obstinate resistance the French have made further gains both in the Champagne region and around Arras, it was officially announced this afternoon. The fighting of the last twenty-four hours on all sectors of the battle front has been attended by heavy losses on both sides. Steady streams of fire are playing across the Champagne and Artois fronts where the Anglo-French offensive continues.

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS. (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, Sept. 28.—The greatest battle of the year on the western front is being waged with even more furious attack than characterized the beginning of the Anglo-French onslaught, the war office claimed today.

Having staggered the Kaiser's armies with one mighty smash, the allies drew back and reformed for another blow, it reported. That explained the apparent slackening of the offensive indicated in yesterday afternoon's communiqué. The second stroke was made last night with artillery cannonading and infantry leaping to the attack.

Dispatches received here during the night said the Germans were yielding ground yard by yard in the Champagne, fighting bravely but going down before massed charges of French bayonets. The enemy has made several attempts to stem the advance by flooding the area before their trenches with clouds of asphyxiating gases. High winds swept the vapors away as they left the German trenches. The chalky hills of the Champagne region are throwing up great white clouds of dust under the constant hammering of French and German shells. Dead and wounded are being mangled by a snow white powder, spattered with crimson.

Battle for Railroad

The Germans under General von Fabeck are battling desperately in the Champagne to save the Bazancourt-Arras railway toward which the Anglo-French armies have been moving since early Saturday. All the French gains are being held and the newly captured positions improved to meet counter attacks.

To the north, the British are reported to be making further progress under the greatest difficulties. The strongest defensive line of the western front reaches from Arras northward to the sea. Against this hard barrier General Fabeck is driving with remarkable success.

Seize The First Chance To Attend Greatest Fair

The 1915 fair of the La Crosse Interstate Fair association is the greatest fair in the history of this institution. This is the verdict of farmers, business men and newspaper men who have taken advantage of the opening day to measure the fair upon its merits. Still more important, it is the opinion of judges who are here to make the awards upon the various lines of exhibits.

The fair association has done everything in its power to make the fair a success. It has been liberal in all its provisions and discriminating in its selections. From every angle—agricultural, industrial, mercantile and by standard of amusement—the instruction and entertainment of patrons has been generously provided.

But one thing the association can not do. It can not guarantee the weather.

The weather bureau holds out strong hopes of a clear day tomorrow. It is passably good, people should hasten to take advantage of it. The first day that is fairly fit may be the only day at all fit for fair visiting. Valuing the fair as a great institution which must live by popular support, the people of La Crosse and vicinity are prepared to attend its sessions. The TRIBUNE strongly urges its readers to seize the first opportunity to do so. If a cloud deters us one day a storm may absolutely prevent us thereafter.

FLAMES AND RUINS ADD TO DEATH LIST STATION WRECKED

Railroad Sheds and Business Blocks Are Fired or Collapse Burying Scores

ENTIRE STREET BECOMES FURNACE

INJURED DIE IN HOSPITALS

Many Bodies Are Burned or Mangled Beyond Recognition in Holocaust

ARDMORE, Okla., Sept. 28.—Fifty persons are known to be dead, more than 200 injured and property damage to the extent of $500,000 caused from an explosion of a carload of gasoline yesterday afternoon. The blast was set off by a spark from a workman's hammer.

Two workmen were repairing a tank car in the Santa Fe railroad yards. The car contained 250 barrels of gasoline. One of the workmen struck the car blow with a hammer. A spark resulted and ignited the fumes from a leak in the car. There was a terrific explosion followed by many lesser ones.

The Ardmore railroad station, used jointly by the Santa Fe, Frisco and Rock Island lines, was demolished. The Rock Island freight shed and scores of other buildings were set afire by the flying liquid. The flames spread rapidly until nearly all of Main street appeared to be a furnace. The pall of smoke created prevented effective rescue work. Many of the fires were not controlled until late last night.

The city was under martial law today. Scores of workers are digging in smoldering ruins for bodies, and rescuing those imprisoned in wrecked buildings. Forty bodies had been recovered early today. The hospitals were filled with injured and private homes were caring for scores. Physicians from Wilcox and Marietta were aiding.

Five of the injured died in local hospitals. Searchers are still digging in the ruins of a pool hall for six bodies supposed to be buried there. Seven bodies were recovered from the place last night. The known injured still is estimated at 200, although it is believed there are scores of persons with minor injuries whose cases have not been reported.

Many of the dead and injured were removed to their homes by members of their families and it was impossible early today to make an accurate estimate of the toll. Comparatively few of the bodies recovered have been identified as many are burned and mangled beyond recognition. Fifteen of the bodies are those of negroes.

Many Buildings Destroyed

In addition to the railroad station the buildings of Swift & Company, Pennington Wholesale Grocery Company, Whittington hotel, Madden & Company, dry goods, and Dewitt Cigar company, were destroyed.

The plants of the Daily Ardmore and the Statesman were badly damaged. Not a building on Main street escaped damage, either from the explosion or the fires that followed.

The list of dead includes:

Henry Sims, Santa Fe flagman, burned to death.

Milton Taylor, employe Dawson Produce company, head blown off.

E. J. Cox, fireman, brick plant.

C. A. Gould, 50, poultry dealer, killed while seated in wagon.

Ira Woods, employe refinery company, working on tank car, blown to pieces.

Charles R. Smith, 45, former policeman, killed by falling wall.

M. E. Atkins, 55, transfer man, killed by falling wall.

Braston Blase, Santa Fe flagman.

Now that Mr. Cobb has stolen third with that base occupied, anything could happen without creating a ripple on the baseball pool. Even the Clevelanders could win a pennant, without more than passing comment. The White Sox have quit Philadelphia without losing a game this season. They ought to stay there.

Despairing of seeing a big league team this season, Cleveland inveigled the Giants into playing an exhibition game there. "Out of the frying pan into the conflagration," so to speak.

This has been a great year for the Browns and Indians. Both managed to finish out of the cellar. St. Louis and Cleveland should declare a holiday.

When Sailors Were Petticoats.

Very few people realize that there was a day when petticoats were worn by soldiers and sailors on board ships of war. In the days before the royal marines were regularly established as a separate corps the foot regiments of the line used to take it in turns to serve as marines on shipboard. Petticoats were quite commonly worn in the navy in Nelson's time, having been in vogue there since the days of Queen Elizabeth, and our soldiers, being suddenly called upon to do the work of sailors, naturally adopted their dress, finding it, no doubt, far handier and more convenient than their own tight-fitting, frogged and braided uniforms.

CLEARING THE COAST

BY FAITH ROBINSON

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Mrs. Lawrence read over the note again with a little smile of understanding.

"Poor old boy," she said. "And did want him to come so much."

"Who, Anne?"

"Fennimore Diggs."

There came a sudden movement from the hammock. Bab threw her book across the veranda and sat bolt upright, eyes sparkling, color rising in her vivid, changeable, young face.

"When did he come back?"

"Oh, lately, I believe," her sister answered with a sigh. "Do you feel like having a storm on the spot over it, Bab?"

Bab sat irresolute and mute for the moment. It was early morning, just after breakfast. The green willow table stood between them still with its tray of quaint Nuremberg ware.

Down at the end of the drive the waves rolled in, blue and foamy.

It had been just a year since Fennimore had been there, and he had said he was going away forever.

"I wish the world were not round," she exclaimed, passionately. "They never go away forever. They just go round and come back again. They ought to tumble off the edge."

"My dear Bab," said Mrs. Lawrence firmly, and in her very best elder sister style, "I don't see why you should feel anything at all over Fenn's return. He's nothing at all to you. You threw him over without the least provocation."

"That's a nice thing to say; a nice, loyal thing, Anne, when you know the whole circumstances. He didn't even deny that he had visited at the Raymond's the same time she was there."

"They were only tacitly engaged, and it was four years ago when he came out of college. Any girl with any charm at all and tact can make college boys propose to her. They simply beg you to encourage them, and she really was very pretty, Bab."

"I hate her," Bab declared with dignity to the adjacent atmosphere.

"I had no idea that you would invite him either while I was staying here. But if you really want him so much, Anne, I shall go straight over to Olive's and stay with her till your house party is over."

And all Anne's coaxing availed not. She would go. Anne might do as she pleased about writing to Fennimore, and telling him the coast was clear. She piled a couple of suit cases, a tumbled Grifton and herself into the car, and departed the day before the arrival of guests.

It was a run of twelve miles over to Lyndhurst, and Olive welcomed her gladly, sympathetically. They had been chums at Bryn Mawr together, and close friends even after Olive's marriage to Fennimore's best friend, Murray Warner. Lyndhurst was secluded among the pines. Murray telephoned from town he would not be down until Sunday, and Olive said they would just relax and rest and talk over old times.

She knew the whole affair over Fennimore; had even known the girl—Marion Wallace.

"And, dear, she's married a perfect old mummy with oodles of cash and five grown children. So if she had cared for Penn, she could have had him when you broke the engagement."

"If Fenn had wanted her," Bab corrected, tearfully. "I never felt really sure, Olive; only appearances were against him. He needn't have gone there while she was a guest and we were engaged. He might have known how it would make me feel."

"Fenn hasn't an ounce of intuition," said Olive, mustily. "He probably never thought of her at all. Why won't you see him now?"

"I'm afraid I'd be a little idiot and forgive him the minute he asked me."

"Maybe he wouldn't ask you, sootie."

Bab flushed, her dark eyes wide and indignant.

"Yes, he would too. He never gives up."

Sunday morning she slept until 7. Olive never believed in breakfast trays. She could hear her down on the veranda talking to somebody, and the car was standing outside the garage, so she knew that Murray was home. Dressed in a pink chiffon morning negligee, with a pink lace cap, laced edged, she stepped down stairs and out on the veranda without warning before Fennimore, drinking his second cup of coffee leisurely with Olive.

"I want to speak to Murray just a minute, please," Olive said hurriedly, setting her cup down. "Bab, dear, will you pour for me?"

Bab took her seat in ominous silence. Then slowly, almost perforce, she raised her lashes and met Fenn's eyes full of suppressed enjoyment of the situation.

"You did this on purpose," she said haughtily.

"I did not. I didn't know you were here."

"I left Anne's so she might have you at her house party."

"Most sweet and thoughtful of you. I came here so that you might stay with Anne without fear of my company."

Silence. Bab poured herself a cup of coffee.

"You look adorable, Bab. If you had expected me you could not have dressed prettier, dear."

Bab's eyebrows raised slightly.

"Is this necessary?"

"Very. I only have two minutes, and you'll escape me. You may even make a getaway in the car before I can stop you. Bab, do you really want to escape from me?"

Bab hesitated. The old wooing charm of his voice swept over her again. She closed her eyes to keep from looking at him. And slowly the tears came.

"I never loved her."

"You must have asked her to marry you. You must have kissed her—often. And you always call her Marion."

"Bab, listen to me. Stop that crying. He held her hands closely. 'A boy of twenty does foolish things. Let's thank God I didn't marry her. We'd have been wretched and in the court long ago. I want you for life, sweetheart, do you hear? You sent me away a year ago and I went, like a chump, but I won't go this time. Will you stop or must I call Olive?'"

"She married an old mummy with five children," Bab told him contentedly a few minutes later. "Aren't you glad, Fenn?"

"Delighted," answered Fenn fervently.

MOTHER GIVES TEN SONS TO COUNTRY

Five of Irish Woman's Sons Are Dead and Others Are Wounded or Prisoners

BY WILBUR S. FORREST

LONDON, Sept. 10.—(By Mail).—

The mother's record in this war is held by Mrs. Mary Fury, of Loughrea, County Galway, Ireland.

She has given ten sons to the British army. Five are dead in France. One lies in a hospital recovering from wounds. One is a prisoner in Germany. One remains fighting and another is nursing a right arm shattered by a bullet.

This is not all of Mrs. Fury's fighting family. She has a daughter, Mrs. Mary Cossey, Rumford, Eng.

Mrs. Cossey's husband is one of Rumford's 2,000 fighting men at the front. Several weeks ago, Mrs. Cossey supported her large family of small children with the aid of two brothers-in-law. Now they have gone to war and she is struggling on alone.

What Mrs. Fury and Mrs. Mary Cossey have suffered in England's greatest crisis is the story of hundreds of homes of the working classes in the British Isles. A similar story can be told in a smaller way from the mansions of British aristocracy and from the "castles" of the middle classes. But it does not leave the sting of poverty that confronts Mrs. Mary Fury, of County Galway and her sisters of the lower classes. She will suffer until her body is planted in Irish soil and with her, thousands of other women whose husbands have left the spade and shovel.

If conscription comes in Great Britain it will not find the husbands, brothers and sons of the Mary Furies and Mary Cosseys among the "slackers."

Laboring Element Scarce

The laboring element is becoming gradually the scarcest element in Britain. Cities, towns and villages alike have emptied their houses and streets. These men are today in the majority in Northern France, the Dardanelles and other theaters of war. The upper and middle classes are in the hopeless numerical minority.

There is one obscure little street in Walworth, a suburb of South London, that tells the tale. This street is in the heart of the "working" locality. It is called "Trafalgar street" and is simply two rows of 150 small brick houses and shops built closely together. The war office has distributed cards of honor for every family that sends a man to the army. There are 193 cards of honor in the windows of these little shanty houses. Children play with cooked hats and wooden guns in the narrow street. About half of them will never see their fathers again. They will go into the factories their fathers left as soon as their arms are strong enough.

War Cement Classes

The war has brought all British classes together—in the trenches. It has brought all classes at home down to the same plane—during the war. But what is to become of the Mrs. Furies and Mrs. Cosseys after the war, is a question that is hard to answer.

Famous Flower Market.

Rio de Janeiro is noted for its flower market, which is but a short distance from the point where every train in the city passes. This market is kept entirely by men in European clothes—Portuguese-speaking individuals who seem to have inherited the Portuguese love of flowers. The most magnificent dahlias I have ever seen were in the shops of Sao Paulo, Brazil.—Exchange.

WEDDING IS SILENT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 28—

William R. Lyons and Mary Henderson presenting themselves to be married by Court Commissioner Bates, said not a word. Neither did Bates, who sat down at a typewriter and typed the wedding ceremony. Spaces were left for the bride and groom, who filled in their parts of the ceremony. Then Bates wrote at the bottom of the peculiar document, "I pronounce you man and wife." Mr. and Mrs. Lyons are deaf mutes, from Fairbault, Minn.

If a girl is really displeased with a man she seldom tells him so.

Daddy's Bedtime

How the Silly Man Went to Sea in a Bathtub.

"ONCE upon a time a silly man went to sea in a bathtub," daddy began. He had no ears except his arms, and he waved them around his head till choppy waves seized his silly boat and bore it to sea. "The son creatures had the greatest fun with him. When the clumsy bathtub almost tipped over seaweeds came and perched on its tiny sides to balance it. They dipped their wings in the silly man's face and tickled his ears with their tail feathers. When they flew away and the silly tub almost pitched into the trough of huge waves a big, fat old porpoise came along and bumped his nose into one end and steered it almost a mile. This seemed very obliging of him. But really he kicked up so much spray that he almost drowned the silly man, and he pushed so hard that his speed almost tipped the tub over."

"Did the silly man wish he was home?" asked Jack.

"Rather. But the old porpoise had no mercy on him and ran the silly bathtub right on to a purple island, where red seaweeds anchored it for six days."

"He was afraid of the purple island, which looked very wild to him. The choppy waves beat against his silly boat, which he didn't dare get out of, he was so sick at his stomach. He waved his arms wildly, but they made poor paddles. So fast he stuck till a king wave dumped him out of the silly tub."

"What did the choppy waves do to his empty tub?" asked Jack.

"They chopped and they chopped till they got it off the purple sand and bore it away off to the deep sea. Then the silly man got up on to his feet."

"What did he see?" cried the kiddies.

"Oh, the wildest things—pink trees growing upside down on yellow hills and green people digging in purple ground and blue dogs barking at red cats—everything dinky and queer. 'What are you digging for?' the silly man asked."

"The green people all gave a cackle and turned yellow somersaults. 'We dig for black gold,' they giggled. At this the silly man woke up. He had a very greedy nature, and the idea of gold made him want to be king of the purple island. It was a brave move for a silly man. He stretched himself to his full height, waved his silly arms in the air and yelled: 'Get to work, all of you! I am king of this island! If I haven't a ton of gold by sunset not a man of all of you escapes alive!' The purple people all set to work, and black gold fairly rolled out of the rich purple earth. The silly man flagged a ship to come and take his black gold to market, and now he is king of millionaires all over the world, which shows," daddy finished, "that sometimes it pays to go to sea in a bathtub."

"The green people all gave a cackle and turned yellow som

Since Memorable Defeat of Army by Notre Dame in 1913 Special Tossing Grows in Popularity

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Keen students of football believe that the much maligned forward pass will come into its own this season, and that more of the open style game will be exhibited than in years. If they are right, it marks the capitulation of a raft of eastern critics and particularly eastern coaches, who, heretofore, have gazed down with rather lofty disdain on that play.

The east for years has looked askance at the forward pass. It has been regarded as a last ditch resort—to be used only in the last half or quarter in a final desperate attempt to pull a game out of the fire. It was too dangerous, they contended, and it never would work against a really formidable defense.

The first big interscholastic combat in 1913 gave "em a jolt. Little Notre Dame, with a rattling good football team and no reputation, came east to meet Uncle Sam's army aggregation at West Point. What happened is history now. The Hoosiers simply buried the soldiers under an avalanche of skillful passing, executed by little Gus Dorais and his mates. The Army was squelched, 35 to 13. The east gasped. This wasn't football, at least not as she was played in the east. However, it didn't take the Army long to get "hop" to the situation, and in the annual Army-Navy scrap that same year, the Soldiers won hands down. The victory was directly attributable to clever passing. Other eastern coaches, however, have been slow in following suit.

There still seems to be a wide diversity of opinion about the merits of the spiral tossing. Its opponents say that it is too dangerous, that under present rules loss more often results than gain. They also rise to remark that it is too quick—that the whole aspect of a game can be changed in less than a minute, and for that reason they like it to stock market speculation—you're "a millionaire one minute and a pauper the next."

Be that as it may, it is generally conceded that the forward pass adds a lot to the game from the spectator's viewpoint. Two teams, both good on defense, vainly bucking at each other's stonewall lines, and resorting to futile end runs, doesn't appeal to the populace as does the quick flight of the oval with half a dozen boys ready to hop on the neck of the fellow who receives it. Too, there is always a probability that someone will leap high in the air, grab the ball and make the spectacular run through a jagged field that never fails to bring the stands to their feet. The opponents in cases like this, that it is too dangerous. Its supporters come back with the argument that when a team is developed in skillful passing as was the Notre Dame eleven in 1913, this danger is reduced to an unimportant minimum. Therefore the whole question simmers down to a question of developing skill in passing and while the pass may be had for one team it may be the savior of another.

The younger school of players that has come up since 1912 and 1913 are better drilled in passing the ball and getting away with it after the catch than the boys of the old school. So, if the forward pass isn't already here it's coming strong, and in the opinion of most coaches it won't be long until it will be the biggest feature of a team's offense.

ROME SURPRISED AT POPE'S ATTACK ON CONSERVATISM

Many Changes Are Made in Sacred College and in Various Papal Offices

BY ALICE ROHE

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ROME, Aug. 27.—(By Mail.)—All Rome, not only the Vatican circles but various shades of the White and Black party—is discussing Pope Benedict XV's latest decisive step against bigotry or more politely ultra conservatism.

As a result, an eminent cardinal has been scheduled for promotion to the position of cancelliere, quite in accordance with the Vatican political proverb "Promoveatur ut amoveatur." Which in plain English means "Let him be promoted so he may be cleared out of our way."

At any rate Cardinal Cagiano de Azevedo credited with being one of the most illiberal members of the Sacred college will be no more head of the Congregation of Clerics and Regulars. For his insistence that the clerics and all connected with the Vatican should not read the newspapers issued by the Roman Publishing society has brought him in direct opposition to Pope Benedict XV. The order that no clerics should read even the Corriere D'Italia, and that other daily newspapers published in various Italian cities and of such a Black complexion that their clerical sympathies were above question, caused Pope Benedict XV to take a hand in the matter. Cardinal de Azevedo even though cognizant of the Pope's liberal ideas and his desire that newspapers be permitted the clergy felt back upon the technical authority invested in his office and gave forth the definite order. Thereupon the Pope whose first step upon ascending the Papal throne was to bring into accord the two elements of modernity and illiberalism—graciously slated the cardinal for promotion to the position of cancelliere. This act followed an open one of Cardinal Azevedo, who, several days ago issued a circular in which he prohibited the reading of the Roman morning papers, denouncing especially one morning Catholic paper. He even condemned one which the Pope had approved.

SINGING CHAPLAIN SINGS TO MEN OF A GREATER ITALY

BY ALICE ROHE

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ROME, Aug. 25.—(By Mail.)—The singing chaplain of Kingdom come, they called him up. In the blood-drenched valley of the Isouzo. For when the Austrian bullets were shrieking past and the shrapnel was tearing human lives into shreds and bombs were making a writhing hell of that mountain paradise, the little chaplain of Castellano was calling to the men who were fighting to think of the Greater Kingdom of Italy and to the men who were failing to think of the still Greater Kingdom to come.

In between battles the little priest from Castellano, who was one of the first to offer his services as an army chaplain, used to sing as the bersa-alleri and the other soldiers had never heard singing. Sometimes his eyes grew dim as he thought of his parish in Castellano and his singing school founded in honor of the great Italian music master, Perosi, where he taught the boys of Castellano to sing the beautiful church music. Pietro Giannuzzi, lieutenant chaplain of the regiment left behind him one of the accomplished ambitions of his life, a real singing school, when he marched away for the war. But when he saw the stars upon his arm he said he had done a bigger thing, he had seen a great bond between the country he loved and the church he worshipped.

Giannuzzi was one of those brave priests who had suffered long when dissensions between church and state made the duty of Italian clergy obscure. When he marched to war he typified the spirit of religious Italy, bound to the church but bound to the Patria by blood ties.

All the soldiers loved this brave little chaplain who was always there

to give the saving rites to the soldiers who fell.

The first Sunday Giannuzzi celebrated mass on the battlefield and on "redeemed" Italian soil, before one of the portable army altars supplied by the Pope, when he saw the Italian soldiers gather round worshipping the church and state in one, as he said, his prayer had been answered. Then he hurried away to help some poor fellow cross the divide into Kingdom Come.

"Don't be afraid of Austrian bullets—think of Kingdom Come," he cried while the officers endeavored to dissuade him from taking so many chances.

But the army chaplain whose thoughts are of his country and of his religion, finds his place beside the men who are falling. And Giannuzzi was always near the front.

"They wouldn't kill the priest," gasped a young soldier from Tivoli, his lung pierced by an Austrian bullet. The chaplain was bending over him and the last rites of the church were being given the dying boy when a bullet flying true and certain struck him. He died there on the battlefield with the sacred words of the church on his lips—the first Italian army chaplain to fall.

"KILKENNY"

Fiske O'Hara, under the direction of Augustus Pitou, Jr., will present his new play, "Kilkenny," at the La Crosse theater tonight. The story of "Kilkenny" is laid in Kilkenny in 1810 and is in three acts. David Conway is the guardian of Moira Carroll, and is anxious to marry his ward to Maurice Levine, a man of wealth but a profligate. Conway has become involved, through speculation, in the Mexican Gold Mine company. When that bubble, one of the many of that age, bursts, he is facing ruin. He has deceived his ward as to her true age to delay making an accounting of the fortune left her by her father. From 1803 to 1819 there existed in Kilkenny a company of amateurs, who gave performances for charity two weeks each year in October, during the "Kilkenny Carnival." Richard Desmond was the leading man and Moira Carroll the leading lady of this company. Playing many love scenes together, they naturally fell in love with each other. Conway forbids Moira to appear in the theater the following night, the last of the season, asserting she must obey him as he is still her guardian and she is not of age. Richard discovers that Moira is a few months over twenty-one, and her own mistress. An attempt to abduct her is foiled and Richard tells Conway he will marry Moira with or without his consent, and that he will demand an accounting of his guardianship. Con-

WARSAW RUSSIA'S PRINCIPAL CENTER

Polish Capital Is the Commercial Capital of Russia
Owing to Close Relation with Teutons

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—The great importance of Warsaw as a commercial center is not only due to the fact that Warsaw is the capital of Poland and, with a population of over a million, the third biggest city of the empire, but to the fact that the Polish capital is one of the most important centers of the international Russian merchandise exchange and at the same time one of the most developed industrial cities of the country, says a dispatch to the Vossische Zeitung.

Warsaw owes its importance in Russian foreign trade partly to its favorable geographical location, the city being especially near to Germany as well as to Austria-Hungary. The latter two countries play a very important part in the import and export trade with Russia, and because of that a very considerable part of the trade with Russia goes via Warsaw. The result is that a considerable number of the most important firms of interior Russia, as well as of other countries, have established branches in Warsaw to distribute goods in Poland or forward them either abroad or to interior points in Russia.

Warsaw thus is in some ways an antechamber for Russia's foreign trade, a circumstance which assures the city its predominant importance in international trade.

Warsaw's position as an industrial city is almost as important for the commercial conditions of Russia in general and of Poland in particular.

Although the seat of the highly developed Polish textile industry is Lodz, the center of the flourishing Polish mining industry, Sosnowice and Dombrowa-Gornicza, but Warsaw profits from the importance of these industrial centers of Poland. Moreover, Warsaw possesses extensive textile mills of its own. All other Polish industries are centered in Warsaw, to the leather, paint and chemical and milling and sugar industries. The Polish metallurgical industry has its center in Warsaw.

The fact that Polish industry, which is partly highly developed, is dependent on Warsaw and that, on the other hand, the most important domestic and foreign firms are represented in Warsaw by branches of their own has made Warsaw a fertile field for banks.

REDMEN ATTEND FAIR

MANDAN, N. D., Sept. 23.—Through leniency on the part of superintendents of the Standing Rock reservation, Indians are permitted to attend and participate in the Missouri Slope State fair, being held here this week. In recent years, the reservation administration, presumably acting upon a same general amusement, forbid the Indians attending the fair. Superintendent Covey, however, indicated that he believed the red man would gain by attending the white man's fair, and he admonished the Sioux, to investigate agricultural exhibits. Twenty-five hundred red men are here today, many bringing their squaws and families. A big beef barbecue is planned for tomorrow.

which have a new flavour and form—a true corn flavour and tender crispness unknown to "corn flakes" of the past.

The new process rises tiny pearl-like "puffs" on each flake—a distinguishing feature; also imparts substantial form—the new Toasties don't mush down when cream or milk is added.

They come factory-fresh in wax-sealed packages—as crisp and appetizing as when they leave the ovens—and that's mighty good!

LONDON WITHOUT CONFIRMATION OF RUSS SUCCESSES

Reports of Recapture of Brody and of Prospective Victories in Poland Uncredited

FIGHTING NEAR RIGA INTENSE

Germans Get New Supplies of Ammunition and Heavy Bombardment Is Made

LONDON, Sept. 23.—No official confirmation has come either from Petrograd or Vienna of a report that the Russians have recaptured Brody, in north-east Galicia, and are about to recapture Kovel, southeast of Brest-Litovsk.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 23.—The fighting around Dvinsk and in the region southeast of Riga is now becoming more violent. The Germans evidently have received the supplies of ammunition for which they were waiting and are bombarding Russian positions all along the Dvina.

The czar's troops, however, are more than holding their own, and besides the 1,000 prisoners mentioned in last night's communique, have made other large captures. From the Dvinsk region to Pinsk, stubborn fighting is going on with no important changes in the situation. The Austrians have been reinforced in both the Volhynian region and in Galicia and are on the offensive. The Russians have been forced to retreat from Novo Alexinec, but have captured more than 1,000 Austrian prisoners.

Fought up his reserves and called for reinforcements. Throughout yesterday his troops made repeated efforts to get a new grip on their positions and start a counter offensive against French hosts. The British downed each separate attempt, maintained themselves in their newly captured works and improved their hold on the territory before Lens by capturing additional trench sections.

The French losses in the first three days of the fighting are understood to have been surprisingly small in view of the fact that the French everywhere were on the offensive. This was because German trenches had been so badly wrecked by concentrated artillery fire that the enemy could offer no effectual resistance.

Fought in Storm
Wounded officers arriving here reported that several of the attacks of the first day of the battle were fought in a driving rain that drenched the men to the skin. To add to their discomfort a raw wind was blowing from the Vosges.

Military critics here are particularly elated over the allies' successes because the men showed no ill-effects from a year of comparative inaction in the trenches.

The Temps gives warning that too much must not be expected of the new offensive movement of the allies.

"We believe that a general offensive movement is about to materialize," said the Temps. "and the new phase of the war has begun auspiciously. It is obvious that the Germans will at once reinforce threatened points, but to do this they must weaken others. This will draw new offensive movements from the allies at points now seemingly inactive."

Gain Near Souchez
By steady onslaughts throughout last night the French gained ground east and south of Souchez, approaching the hills held by the Germans in those regions.

French troops stormed the strongly fortified German second line trenches at several points in the Champagne region. Slight progress was made toward La Justice, north of Nassages and a few miles west of Ville-A-Tourbe. Further west a French detachment is approaching Hill Number 185 north of the Wacques farm.

At other sectors of the Champagne front the French inflicted heavy losses on the enemy, though they were unable in some instances to pierce the strong German wire defenses.

SCHOOL HEALTH TOPIC OF CITY HEALTH OVERSEER

Parents' and Teachers' Association of Normal Listens to Dr. Furstman at First Session

At the opening meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' association of the State Normal school last evening Dr. J. M. Furstman, city health commissioner, discussed public health problems as they are affected by the schools.

Much interest was manifested in the new doctrine dealing with methods of dissemination, and in the announcement that fumigation as it has been practiced has been relegated to a position of relatively small importance.

A colloquy between Dr. Furstman and Prof. W. H. Sanders, head of the department of education, resulted in a definite understanding as to methods of co-operation between the health department and the state normal school.

A petition drawn by a committee of which H. J. Mirshheimer is chairman, putting the subject of fire drills up to the faculty, was read for consideration with the faculty, on motion of Professor Sanders.

Miss Selma Larson favored the company with a piano selection rendered with excellent feeling, and Mrs. Homer E. Cotton won applause with her violin. Her selections were two Russian pieces: Valse Triste by Silbelius, and Orientale by Caesar Cui.

Prof. F. E. Nurse was introduced and on behalf of L. P. Benzot, superintendent of the city schools, and of himself, appealed for support of classes in conversational French to be established by these two educators.

oral inquiries as to whether or not, during the period of the interstate fair, owners of automobiles may operate their automobiles upon the streets of the city of La Crosse for the purpose of carrying passengers and from the fair grounds for hire, without having filed an indemnity bond with the railroad commission of Wisconsin, and procured a special carrier's license for such automobile, in accordance with the provisions of chapter 516 of the laws of 1915. I will say:

"It is my opinion that the purpose of this law is primarily to protect the public, not only such part of the public as may ride in the motor vehicle so operated, but that greater portion using the streets and highways, who might be endangered by the reckless operation of automobiles, and be, under ordinary circumstances, without a remedy because the operator is not financially responsible.

"Under the statute, whether or not an indemnity bond must be filed and a license secured from the railroad commission seems to be determined by the inquiry as to whether the motor vehicle is operated upon the public streets for the carriage of passengers for hire and affording a means of local street transportation by indiscriminate accepting and discharging such passengers as may offer themselves for transportation along the course on which such motor vehicle is operated or may be running.

"I do not think that the automobile must be operated on schedule as street cars are supposed to be operated or that the automobile must invariably travel the same route. The operation of the motor vehicle comes within the statute providing there is a fixed starting point and a fixed destination; and even deviation from the usual route or change in the starting and stopping place does not relieve from the requirements of the statute.

"I asked the attorney general for his decision some days ago. On Saturday, in reply, I was advised that the attorney general's office had submitted the proposition to the railroad commission. Not receiving any information from the railroad commission, I telephoned them yesterday and was advised that it was not prepared to make a definite ruling.

"I am of the opinion that persons operating automobiles on our streets for the indiscriminate carriage of persons to and from the fair grounds for hire must file an indemnity bond and procure a license as provided by the above mentioned law.

"I am authorized by Mr. Schlaebach, district attorney of La Crosse county, to say that he concurs in the foregoing ruling.

"Yours truly,
J. E. HIGBEE,
City Attorney."

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The Exchange Telegraph's Athens correspondent wired today that it has been learned positively at Athens that the Austro-Germans plan to begin their invasion of Serbia within a fortnight.

Freight shed.
Unidentified brother of Hill, perished with him.

Mrs. Robertson, killed in depot. John Collins, killed by falling wall. Four unidentified white men. Unidentified Indian.

Fifteen unidentified negroes. Witnesses were found today who declared there were two big explosions. This was borne out by the fact that there was a large quantity of dynamite stored in the demolished freight shed. A second detonation, following immediately after the first is believed to have resulted from the ignition of the dynamite.

It developed today that there was but one workman employed in repairing the tank car in the Santa Fe railroad yards, when a spark from his hammer ignited 250 barrels of gasoline and resulted in an explosion as terrific as an equal quantity of dynamite. The workman was Ira Woods, employed by a refinery company. Bits of his body were found many yards from the scene of the explosion. The workman who was supposed to have been helping Woods left the car for a few minutes and escaped injury.

Scores of girls were working in the dry goods store of Madden & Company and in the Dewitt Cigar company's plants. Several of them were injured but were hurried to their homes before their names could be learned. A systematic search is being made of the ruins of these two places, but no bodies have been found up to noon.

The effect produced by the explosion was that of a veritable earthquake. Wooden building collapsed, brick walls crumbled and telephone poles were snapped off short. The shock is said to have lasted nearly forty seconds and was probably prolonged by lesser explosions from quantities of gasoline sent flying through the air a considerable distance from the tank car.

A number of injured are quartered in nearby towns, where they were rushed after the arrival of relief trains from Gainesville, Texas, and Oklahoma City. It is probable that an accurate list of the injured will never be compiled.

MEXICANS GATHER OPPOSITE PROGRESO

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 23.—Five hundred Mexicans are massing along the Rio Grande opposite Progreso, Texas, it was reported here this afternoon. The movement is so open it is believed to be a feint to lure American soldiers to that point while others cross the river farther to the south.

Two troops of cavalry and a company of infantry are now stationed at Progreso, guarding the crossing. It is believed if the Mexicans make an attempt to cross, it will be at Galveston ranch, at which point the river is easily fordable at this time. The soldiers are being rushed to the ranch.

THREE AMERICANS DIE TO ESTABLISH ORDER ON ISLAND

Haitien Congress Expected to Ratify Proposed Treaty Establishing Protectorate for Ten Years

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Three Americans killed and a score wounded was the total casualty list up to today of United States peace efforts in Haiti. About 100 Haitians have been killed and twice as many wounded, it is estimated, since the United States landed marines and bluejackets two months ago.

Reports today from Admiral Caperton were more reassuring. Sniping is continuing, but the Cacos, or rebels, were reported to be submitting to disarmament about Cape Haitien except a few small bands under insurgent chiefs. In the north, however, a considerable force was said to be forming.

That the Cacos movement has not yet become a serious rebellion against the new Haitian government was asserted by navy officials. Admiral Caperton has 2,000 marines and bluejackets and with martial law in force at all large cities, is taking drastic steps to reopen railway lines and get supplies to famine-stricken interior cities.

The Haitian congress in session today was expected to ratify the proposed treaty establishing an American protectorate for ten years. Navy paymasters are already in charge of a dozen customs houses.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels said efforts to disarm the Cacos have been largely responsible for the clashes with the marines. Native chiefs and political leaders, some unfriendly to the new Haitian government, have been sent to the principal Caco chieftains, in an effort to prevent further fighting.

Sergeant John Platt of Detroit, Mich., was the marine killed in Haiti on Sunday.

Formal Proceedings of G. A. R. Open in Washington; Nurses of War Attend

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Friendships of fifty years were renewed today at the National Grand Army of the Republic encampment. Reunions of comrades of historic battlefields and "comrades" included women, too, the nurses of Civil war times—made the "official program". The formal proceedings of the forty-ninth encampment began today. The business meetings of the various organizations affiliated with the Grand Army developed largely into personal experience meetings.

Thrilling escapades of Andersonville and Libby prisons were recounted at the Association of Civil War Prisoners' meeting.

William T. Stokes Blows Out Brains with Shotgun in Attic of His Home

SPARTA, Wis., Sept. 23.—(Special.)—A nervous disorder which has afflicted him for several months is believed to have been the cause of the suicide here this morning of William T. Stokes, 50, a well known retired farmer. Stokes took his life with a shotgun, the trigger of which he pushed down with a fishing rod while leaning with his head over the muzzle of the gun.

The tragedy took place in the attic of the Stokes home about 7 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Stokes was preparing breakfast when she heard the shot.

A daughter, Mildred, and a son, Earl, who lives in Montana, survive besides Mrs. Stokes.

TREASURER ATTACKS MINNEAPOLIS BANK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—John Burke, treasurer of the United States, today admitted he had assailed the administration of the Minneapolis federal reserve bank, charging the bank with failure to properly acquaint the northwestern farmers with its facilities for discounting their commercial paper, thereby enabling a combination of national bankers and grain operators to depress the price of wheat from $1.40 to 79 cents a bushel by refusing reasonable discount rates.

KAISER REPORTED SOUNDING RULERS ON IDEAS OF WAR

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The Exchange Telegraph's Amsterdam correspondent this afternoon reported the Kaiser is now sounding all federated rulers in Europe to obtain their ideas on the war and the prospects of peace. This he reported explains the German chancellor's visit this week to the king of Saxony at Dresden.

LOAN PROPOSALS SUCCESSFUL SAY AGENTS OF ALLIES

Announcement of Terms Expected Tonight After Meeting with Chicago Financiers

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—The half billion dollar loan to the entente allies is settled. There remains only the working out of a few minor details. The complete terms will be announced tonight at 8 o'clock.

This was announcement made today by the Anglo-French financial commission which arrived here this morning to discuss plans with western financiers. Tonight's announcement will be a formal announcement from Baron Reading, lord chief justice of England, and chairman of the commission. It will be made public simultaneously in New York and Chicago.

Plain-clothes men literally swarmed in and about the La Salle street depot today when the four finance commissioners arrived here today. The foreign financiers arrived at 9:45 and after an impromptu greeting at the station the loan commission was escorted to their hotel. Among those who met them at the train were James B. Forgan, J. Ogden Armour, John B. Spoor, and Samuel Insull, head of the Commonwealth Edison company.

with the drag and while this afternoon it is "heavy" fast going is expected from horses who take to the mud.

The 2:09 pace this afternoon was scheduled to be one of the week's best racing numbers. The field is a brilliant one. Liberty Patch, son of the world's fastest pacer, is matched against such horses as Franklin Pierce, owned by W. S. Pike of Des Moines, and Rob Roy, the "once-was" of W. B. Dyer, Lancaster, Wis., bred out of Oh So. And there are some "also rans" that may figure in the money.

High Treasure, a La Crosse horse owned by Attorney Clark L. Hood, will scrap for honors in the 2:30 trot this afternoon with a field of ten horses. Direct Patch, another son of the famous Dan, will trot.

Best Stock Exhibit in Years
The best cattle, sheep and hog exhibit shown at the La Crosse interstate fair in years drew considerable share of notice of fair visitors today. The exhibit is one of the best shown in the state of Wisconsin this year. Many of the larger fairs of the state this year barred cattle from outside Wisconsin on account of the foot and mouth disease, prevalent some months ago. Secretary C. S. Van Auker, however, put up the bars only against districts in which the disease has shown up recently.

The exhibit of horses this year, aside from the racing type, which is outstanding years past, will be one of the big attractions of the fair. Information was given out by the fair association office on the grounds that nearly every horse stall had been reserved. The majority of horses on exhibition are situated in stalls at the southern extremity of the grounds.

Exposition Building
A saunter through the exposition building, always the haven of a goodly measure of the fair visitors, is a distinct surprise. Holders of booths there have been busy decorating for days. Local and foreign connoisseurs, vendors of articles dear to the heart of the home-maker, hold sway in the central hall, which forms a Maltese cross in the middle of the structure. Displays of cakes, pies, jellies, candies and what-not, the work of La Crosse county women, which will be judged during the week, take up various spots about the building, and a large space is reserved for the domestic department's showing of china, sewing articles, and dressmaking, and a horde of other similar things.

Not least in the exposition building is the display of the La Crosse County School of Agriculture. She will Oakes rule over by Professor T. H. Campion, head of the school. Mr. Campion is on hand, and will be all week, to show the farm lads and lassies why they ought to take a school course in farming.

A trip to the farm products display underneath the grandstand will disclose another haunt of the "ag-gie" man, who hovers over the township fair products display with eagle eye.

"Look there now," says Mr. Campion, and nods his head toward the exhibit of the town of Farmington, in which the biggest sunflower extant is shown, "that's going some. But there's Hamilton, you'd have to travel some to beat that."

Cups for Town Displays
Special prizes are being given to the best collective township displays, and La Crosse banks have donated a loving cup which will be given to the township winning the contest. The cup will be contested for annually.

Strolling out of the northern end of the farm display department, the poultry show building stares one in the face, and a brand new world of beauty is entered with the cackling of the hens and crowing of the roosters—and bantering of the bantams. Ducks of the Indian Runner variety, chickens with hair instead of feathers, and all other kinds of domestic fowls are numerous in the show. The exhibits abound with

Traveling through the poultry show, the race stables are next on the program, and few pass up the chance to visit with the high-bred animals in the paddock. The "Dan Patch" stables of W. M. Savage, owner of Dan Patch, George Gano, and Minor Heir, is one of the big centers of attraction.

"That's George Gano?" the once-a-year track fan questions, and Murray Anderson himself, takes the hand of the visitor with a brotherly air and perhaps leads the world's champion saddle pacer outside his stall for inspection. The sons and daughters of the famous Dan are looked at with awe by many. Clark L. Hood's horses come in for a great deal of "once-overing" and the Pike stables, sheltering Franklin Pierce, are never passed up.

And Here's That Midway
A swing back through the rear of the grandstand and the now paved sight-seeer is face to face with the "midway," of which he only got a glimpse on his hurried trip from the Exposition building following Professor Campion.

"Papa, I want to ride on the merry-go-round," says the youngster. His sister sees some pop-corn roasting at a near-by stand, and the family troubles have commenced.

The Baby Camp
The youngest charges have, in many instances, been entirely abolished for the hour, and many a mother's heart is made light by the thoughtfulness of Dr. Furstman's plan of caring for little Willie and his sister and their still littler brothers and sisters, while mother and father do the fair.

Miss Marie Peterson, with a corps of capable assistants, is in charge of the children's rest room, situated near the association offices. She will keep you amused, feed them carefully, even amuse them, and return them to you safe and sound.

And so with the children safely behind, the "midway" is ready for a romp over.

The Capital City Amusement company of St. Paul, a carnival company, holds the center of the "midway" stage. The company has a motor-drome, ferris wheel, merry-go-round, and an abundance of other attractions. Both sides of the entertainment space are lined with concessions, due greatly to the fact that Secretary Van Auker and Frank Maine, his assistant spent two or three weeks in visiting fairs all over the state to find the best attractions possible.

Before the first pay attraction is reached, the impromptu tent, almost as large as that occupied by the gunnery men, claims attention for several minutes. The farmers make the tent their headquarters, and scores of firms are showing their wares there. One of the chief among them is a display of the La Crosse Plow company.

Good Free Attractions
For free attractions in front of the grandstand this year the fair association is offering of the trained bull terriers, and the About Ben Hamid troupe of Arabian numbers, one of the best acts on any fair circuit. The free acts are put on between the heats of the races.

Its fame has now spread from shore to shore, and thousands of American women now well and strong claim they owe their health and happiness to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

OLDER MEN OF M ARE OPPOSED TO WIRELESS CORPS

Semi-annual Muster of the Company and of Hospital Corps Is Conducted Here

Veterans of Company M are not enthusiastically for the transformation of the familiar infantry organization into a radio corps. The professor of Adjutant General Orlando B. Holway to locate the mounted signalling corps here was discussed at a meeting of the company last night, and a difference of opinion, with a desire to go slow, developed among the men. As a general thing, the younger men of the company proved to be in favor of the shift. The older men counsel hesitation.

Dislike a Change
The veterans base their disinclination for the change on their associations with the company in its present form and the strangeness of the work to be performed under the new conditions.

The discussion had no official significance, said Captain F. H. Fowler this morning, although he intimated that if the company wants the change the transformation can be effected. He said the company felt the best course would be to learn more about the work to be done by the radio corps, and not to render a decision until some assurance could be had that suitable quarters would be provided.

At the meeting eight men expressed a desire to shoot the regular course for the merit medal, and it was tentatively decided to hold the competition from October 18 to 31. An outside officer will be brought to the city to supervise the shoot.

The annual financial reports was made, showing the company to be in excellent condition.

Semi-Annual Muster
The session was the occasion of the semi-annual muster, held for the purpose of ascertaining the condition of the company, by calling the roll. At present the company comprises seventy men and three officers.

The members of the hospital corps met last night in the corps room over the Bijou theater for muster. Following roll call, Lieut. R. H. Gray explained various passages of a pamphlet issued by the army health department, relative to the prevention of typhoid fever by vaccination in the army, the general rules of sanitation.

CLOUDBURST VISITS GALENA AND IOWA IS STORM SUFFERER

GALENA, Ill., Sept. 28.—Galena was covered with water from two to ten feet deep yesterday as the result of a cloudburst north of here Saturday.

The property damage to Galena business houses and to farm lands will reach thousands of dollars.

Not a railroad train has moved since early yesterday morning.

The Illinois Central and Northwestern railroads lost thousands of feet of track by landslides and washouts, and the Northwestern will be tied up several days.

Iowa Is Hit

DUBUQUE, Col., Sept. 28.—With dozens of landslides, numerous bridges damaged and five miles of track washed out between Dubuque and Farley, Iowa, the Great Northern is detouring all trains over the Illinois Central as far as Dyersville. The latter road had numerous landslides and a few washouts, but managed to get trains running at noon Sunday. This damage was caused by floods in the Maquoketa and Catfish Creek valleys following a fall of 4.76 inches of rain in fifteen hours ending at 7 o'clock Sunday morning. Catfish Creek rose thirty feet in four hours, but the rise in the Maquoketa was not so great.

CAPITAL EXPECTS BIG DEVELOPMENTS. INTERNATIONALLY

British Charge d'Affairs Calls to Secure Safe Conduct for Dumba

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Important developments in dispute with Germany and Austria impended today.

Arrival of the first sealed embassy mail pouch in a week from London brought several diplomatic affairs to a head. In the pouch, carried by the White Star liner Cymric, were the additional documents taken from Captain James F. J. Archibald, Austrian Ambassador Dumba's messenger, and also the evidence regarding the sinking of the Allan liner Hesperian.

The state department was also awaiting Austria's second note protesting against American munition sales, made public today at Vienna. This dispute, officials indicated would not become serious. It was believed the United States reply would be brief and point out that this government cannot agree with Austria's contentions.

After study of the additional Archibald papers, it was officially stated today that Captain Archibald will be given an opportunity to explain his action. He is expected here early this week.

Possible action against Captain Von Papen, German military attaché; Austrian Consul General Nuber of New York, and Editor William Warm of a New York Hungarian newspaper, was also considered today. The papers will be turned over to the department of justice.

Austria's response to this government's request for recall of Austrian Ambassador Dumba is awaited hourly. Postponement of Dumba's sailing on the Holland liner Rotterdam tomorrow was expected if Austria should further delay action.

British Charge d'Affaires Barclay called on the state department this afternoon to ask concerning a safe conduct for Dumba. He was informed by Acting Secretary Polk that the Austrian government had not yet recalled the ambassador, or at least, that the fact has not been communicated to the United States government, if the action has been taken.

EVERYBODY HAS HIGH HOLIDAY BUT FOOTBALLERS

Horne Takes His Warriors Out to Grovel in the Dust While Rooters Go to Fair

Today was a holiday at the high school for everyone except the football squad. School ended at 12:20 this afternoon, and all the students flocked out to help celebrate La Crosse day at the interstate fair—all except Horne's warriors. Their lot was to eat a light lunch that they might not slow themselves up for the practice which began at 2:30. The practice was slated to last until 5:30.

The full eight periods of the high school day were run off today by the expedient of starting at 8 o'clock in the morning and clipping a little off each section of the day. The policy will be continued straight through fair week.

TAKE A SHOT OF THIS AND DEFY TYPHOID ON YOUR HUNTING OUTING

Mr. Hunter, if you are planning a trip this fall which will take you into a district where you know nothing about the water-supply, read this:

Just a little squirt of serum into your arm three times, ten days apart, and Dr. J. M. Furman, city health commissioner, will guarantee that you won't have typhoid fever for the next four years at least.

The health department has on hand a number of units of the new anti-typhoid vaccine which has eliminated typhoid from the United States army. It is to be given to physicians of the city free of charge on their application, and arrangements have been made with the state health authorities to have the vaccine available from now on.

As indicative of the efficacy of the serum, Dr. Furman told a reporter that Col. Gorgas' report on the health of the United States army in 1913 showed that among the 50,792 enlisted men in all branches of the army there were but four cases of typhoid. Two of them were "book-keepers" not yet inoculated with the anti-typhoid vaccine; one had been vaccinated four years before and the vaccine of the treatment was exhausted; and the fourth had had only the first part of the treatment. The vaccine is an absolute preventive of typhoid for four years from the time of inoculation, Dr. Furman said.

The vaccine is a clear liquid. A few drops are injected under the skin of the arm with a hypodermic. Ten days later a second injection is made, and a third at the end of another ten-day period. That's all there is to the treatment. It hurts about as much as a pin-prick, Dr. Furman says, and there is no swelling or pain in the arm as in small-pox vaccination. A few hours of indisposition sometimes follows, but not enough to incapacitate one for work, the health commissioner said.

SUGAR TARIFF IS SUBJECT OF STUDY BY THE PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The advisability of retaining the present tariff on sugar is being seriously considered by President Wilson. This was definitely learned today.

While the president has not fully determined on the sugar tariff plan, it is believed to be extremely probable.

It was also reported today that the administration is considering further slight tariff changes to provide additional revenue by increasing duties on liquors, and also possibly an extension of the income tax to smaller incomes.

An investigation of the sugar importations and revenue derived during the last few years is being made by the treasury for the president, it was learned today. Facts and figures regarding the sugar schedule for 1913, 1914, and the present year are being compiled by customs officials. A statement whether retaining duty on sugar would solve the revenue situation will also be presented to the White house by Secretary McAdoo.

SOAP IS BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulitised coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), is cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulitised coconut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

GREEK AND BULGAR RESERVISTS IN U. S. CALLED TO COLORS

All Between Ages of 24 and 43 Now in This Country Are Ordered Home to Army

FIVE GREEKS HERE INCLUDED

Whether They Will Return to Fight They Have Not Decided; Call Held Part of War Bluffing

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Greece and Bulgaria called for their reservists in the United States today.

Announcement that all Greeks in the United States between the ages of 24 and 43 had been called to the colors by order of the Athens government was followed almost immediately by a similar announcement by the Bulgarian legation and the game of international bluff in the Balkans seemed to be nearing a show-down.

Nether legation had any reason to offer for the call for reservists, beyond the fact that both armies had been mobilized. The mobilization of either army, it was said, automatically called for the home going of all reservists in foreign countries.

Bulgaria, it was confidently predicted, will not enter the conflict, or will not become unduly belligerent until all Bulgarian reservists have reached their companies. The Greek and entente allies' naval forces in the Mediterranean can easily prevent Bulgarians from America reaching home. For this reason the call by Greece is considered the more important.

Five men in La Crosse are reservists affected by the call to the colors issued today by Greek diplomatic authorities. They had not decided whether or not to return when interviewed by a Tribune reporter. The five are: William Nicholas, George Zumes, Nick Athos, Thomas Palamedis and John Romes.

AUTUMNAL WEATHER DRIVES GODDESSES BACK TO GOTHAM

SOUTH WOODSTOCK, Conn., Sept. 28.—This isn't the town it used to be before the cold spell came and drove Mrs. Florence Fleming Noyes' forty chiffon-clad goddesses away.

All summer automobiles toured into town to watch the bare-legged maneuvers of Mrs. Noyes' class of classy, classic dancers, and the South Woodstock stores sold a lot of cooling drinks. Some of the tourists who didn't bring their wives along even scaled the fence and watched the classic dancers bathe in Mrs. Noyes' brook in their chiffon bathing suits.

But the September cold snap raised goose flesh on the fair limbs of the September Morns. Mrs. Noyes took 'em all back to New York.

ROCKEFELLER SEES DENVER OFFICIALS

Son of Oil King Makes It Plain That He Is at the Head of Rockefeller Interests

DENVER, Col., Sept. 28.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., arrived in Denver today for conferences with his officials and perhaps with a committee of union miners also. During the coming week Rockefeller was expected to make plain, first, that Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., and not his father, the oil king, is now the active head of the Rockefeller interests.

Second, the policies of the son are not those of the father. A new "paternalistic" era in the conduct of these interests is to be begun.

Third, this new era will not provide for union recognition, though it will conclude reforms sought through unionism.

Fourth, the new head of the Rockefeller interests will play a greater personal part in the actual conduct of affairs than his father did, a role begun by his present trip.

WOULD KILL SELF AND CHILD

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 28.—Rather than surrender her baby girl to her former husband, Mrs. Mark Crocker, divorced wife of Rev. Marvin Crocker, a Baptist minister, today administered carbolic acid to the child and herself drank a quantity of the poison. Both were rushed to a local hospital where physicians said they probably would die.

BOY BITTEN BY WOLF AT SCHOOL

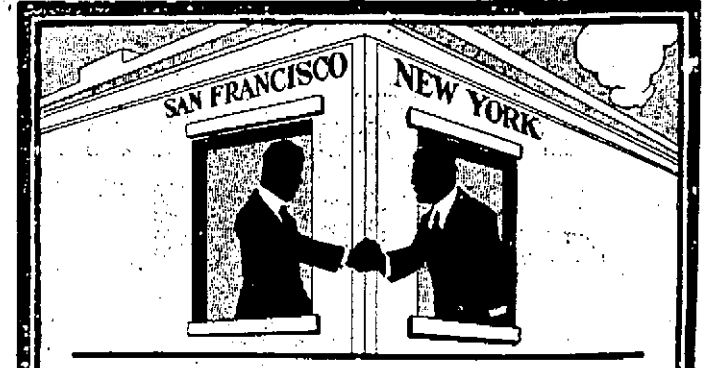

The condition of Leonard Temp, twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph P. Temp, 1305 S. South Eighth street, who was bitten by a pet coyote belonging to Patrolman Sam Johnson Saturday, is not considered dangerous, although the boy is under the care of physicians. He attended school as usual this morning. Eight or nine holes, some of them an inch deep, were pierced by the coyote's teeth.

BRITISHER SUNK IN BOMBARDMENT

BERLIN, via wireless to Tuckerton, N. J., Sept. 28.—One British warship was sunk and two others damaged by German coast batteries in the bombardment of Zeebrugge by the British fleet, according to an official statement issued here last night.

HIGH SCHEDULE IS ALTERED TO AVOID CONFLICT

There is no conflict in the schedules of the high and normal schools. The schedule of the high school has been altered, that Madison high will play here Nov. 25. Thanksgiving instead of on November 13, on which date normal plays River Falls here. Efforts were made to arrange the Sparta game for the thirteenth, in which case Madison could have changed to the sixth. Sparta declined to change their schedule.

A change with St. Paul would have done no good since Madison could not play on the twentieth. Therefore, in order to play the game Madison agreed to play on Thanksgiving day. Tomah Indians will be played at Tomah on November 13. October 9 will probably be an open date, for although several schools have been heard from, the team needs a rest before their exhaustive plunge into the big games.

The complete schedule:
October 2, Tomah at home.
October 9, open.
October 16, Winona at Winona.
October 23, Eau Claire at home.
October 30, Chippewa Falls at Chippewa Falls.

November 6, Sparta at Sparta.
November 13, Tomah Indians at Tomah.
November 20, St. Paul (Central) at home.

November 25, Madison at home.
The game on Thanksgiving will give the business men and others who are interested in the team and who are unable to attend games on Saturday an opportunity to see the high school team in action. It is possible that the game will be played in the morning in order to give the team a "chance" at their Thanksgiving dinner.

Cohn Wrenches Knee
The first accident of the season occurred last night when Marshal Cohn twisted his knee severely. The accident, while not serious, will probably keep him out of the game for the rest of the season.

GRANT BURNED

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Harry Grant, twice winner of the Vanderbilt cup, who was to drive Carl Fisher's Maxwell in the first race for the Astor cup here next Saturday, probably will be scarred for life as a result of his car catching fire on one of the high banks during the speed trials late yesterday. At the hospital today, it was said Grant will recover, although he is horribly burned.

LOSER KNOCKS OUT REFEREE

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 28.—The finish of last night's fight between Patsy Brannigan of Pittsburgh and Al Schubert, a local boy, was more exciting than the bout itself. At the end of fifteen rounds, the referee, a local man, gave the decision to Schubert, and Brannigan laid a haymaker on his jaw. Spectators had to pry him off the referee.

NORMAL TEAMS TO HOLD SCRIMMAGE AS FAIR FEATURE

Sputh Will Pick Scrubs to Oppose First Team on Normal Field Thursday

Football will vie with baseball as the chief attraction at the fair this week, for on Thursday, it was learned today, the normal warriors will furnish the amusement, two teams hooking up in an exhibition contest. Coach Sputh has been awaiting the arrival of a new supply of shoes before conducting regular scrimmages, so there is a possibility that the game Thursday will be the first real workout for Sputh's aggregation. The seconds promise Strum's men a tough fight inasmuch as neither eleven has worked together in scrimmages as yet.

Sputh's choice of a first team presents an apparently unbeatable lot if the individual stars are able to co-operate and maintain their past reputations. Strum is ready at any time at half to rip up his opponents as of yore. Grausenick will use his weight to advantage in punching the line and in him an open field runner local artists have not their match in the past. Alex Feinberg can be relied upon for his share of work-through the line and it remains to be seen whether Tom Skemp can furnish the goods in action at his new place at quarter. In the line Taylor has been given first choice at passing the ball with Marcou and La Fromboise, both experienced men, at guards. Macbiter and Jackson are there with the weight and fight at tackles to put up a strong defensive, and next to them at ends Bruha and Holthaus have been given first choice. Besides these men there are Ryan and Meinert to be used either in the backfield or at end.

The men were given a rest this afternoon to take in the fair.

Lots of men who preach charity wait for other men to practice it.

The British consul at Salina Cruz, in charge of American affairs there since the removal of the American consulate, has wired Representative John J. HOW TO HEAL SKIN-DISEASES

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes and similar itching, burning skin troubles. At any reliable drug store get a jar of resinol ointment and a cake of resinol soap. These will not cost a bit more than seventy-five cents. With the resinol soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resinol ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.

A HINT FOR SHAVERS

If you want a refreshing shave, with a thick, creamy lather, try a resinol shaving stick. It contains the soothing, healing resinol medication which makes it especially welcome to men with tender faces.

SPECIAL CARRIES VETERANS TO LAST G. A. R. GATHERING

Several Hundred on Train Which Takes Northwest Contingent to Washington

Several hundred of the thirty thousand veterans of the civil war, who will attend the last annual encampment of the G. A. R. now in session at Washington, D. C., went through the north side early Sunday morning in a special train of twelve cars. The veterans on the train were members of the G. A. R. from Minnesota and North Dakota. None of the veterans of La Crosse will attend, it was said this morning, with the exception of Rockwell E. Osborne, who, although a resident of Minneapolis, belongs to the local G. A. R. He had signified his intention of going to the encampment, and it is presumed that he was on board the special when it went through the city.

Arriving at Chicago, the special train will be attached as one section of National Commander Palmer's special train. In the party on the train was William La Due of Hastings, said to be the eldest G. A. R. man in the northwest. He is 95 years of age.

The encampment begins today and continues until October 3. President Wilson will attend the formal reception for the host of veterans.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—As the folds of a big American flag unfurled high above Camp Matthew G. Emery today, Theodore W. Noyes, president of the Oldest Inhabitants' association, spoke a welcome to 20,000 civil war veterans who have arrived for the fiftieth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

This brief ceremony attended by thousands of blue clad old men standing silent, caps off to the flag, in the chill morning air before the steps of Camp Emery's main entrance was really the informal opening of the fiftieth reunion which opens officially tomorrow.

President Wilson today signed an executive order closing all governmental departments Wednesday in order that employees might witness the big parade in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the grand peace.

"Whys" of Moves in European War

BY J. W. T. MASON
(Written for the United Press.)
NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The most important victory the allies have won along the western front since the battle of the Marne is still in process of development. Until the few days becomes known, it cannot be said, however, whether the successes are only sporadic, or whether the allies are seriously developing a major offensive.

The allies cannot know as yet themselves, how far they may be able to push back the Germans. The determining factor will be the casualties and neither the British nor the French have announced their losses in the present engagements. But, whether or not the Teutons prevent the allies from further advancing, the victories already gained must have a legitimately encouraging effect in Great Britain and France. The German line has been proven not to be impregnable and although it does not follow the Germans can be forced back into their own country, it ought to prevent the Teutons from wandering far afield in other hostile directions.

This, in all probability, will be the most important effect of the British and French victories. It is now unquestionable that the Germans have over-estimated their power of resistance in the west. They have been compelled to give ground because of the large withdrawals of men from France and Belgium for the Russian campaign. The capture of Warsaw, and other eastern successes have been worth the German losses of this end in the west, but a few more such losses will cut the German western lines of communications and no victories in Russia would pay for such an outcome as that.

It is probable, therefore, that the Teutons will be compelled to send back to the west many of the regiments now in Russia. Petrograd, in fact, may have been saved by the sudden military activity in France and Belgium. Furthermore, the Anglo-French victories must have a cautionary effect on Bulgaria. Indeed, it is possible Bulgaria will now wholly reconsider her attitude. If the allies break through the German lines in the west Bulgaria would find she must shift for herself in the Balkans and should that happen, Bulgaria's entrance into the war with the Teutons would prove to have been her death warrant.

TICK CATCHES JACK RABBIT

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 23.—Coke county's proud position as a jack rabbit center of the universe is threatened by the cattle tick. Reports reaching here state that ticks have attacked the rabbits and that the latter are dying in great numbers.

A move will be started in that county, no doubt, for tick eradication. The residents simply can't afford to have the jack rabbit crop decreased. Since there is much complaint from surrounding counties against depredations of jack rabbits on all kinds of crops, it is believed an effort will be made to obtain a supply of Coke county's rabbit ticks for distribution among these less desirable cottontails.

WALLINGFORD OF ARCADIA GETS A DELAY IN TRIAL

Case Called in Circuit Court at Whitehall Today and Smith Is Released on $5,000 Bond

The trial of E. C. Smith, "J. Rufus Wallingford" of Arcadia, Trempealeau county, was called in circuit court at Whitehall, on Monday and postponed over the term. Smith's bonds were fixed at $5,000 and he was released. He is charged with swindling the Zeller brothers, farmers of Arcadia, of $40,000, all the money they had.

Attorney R. S. Cowie, counsel for the Zeller brothers, arrived from Chicago today, where he started conspiracy cases in United States court against the owners of the American Insurance company of Illinois, alleged worthless stock of which Smith sold to the Trempealeau county men.

Although the case against the operators of the concern has been started, Attorney Cowie said today, it has as yet not been made public.

MERGER BELIEVED SHAPING
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 23.—The consolidation of independent steel companies into two separate and distinct corporations—one fostered by the Morgan-Corby-Converse interests and the other by the Schwab-Dupont group—to control the American munitions output was believed to be rapidly shaping itself today. Rumors are numerous concerning the steps taken by Schwab interests, but none can be confirmed.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—War stocks opened the stock market today with a bang. Baldwin Locomotive rose 8 1/2 points to 120, a new high record. The first order was for a thousand shares. It quickly reached 12 1/2. Distillers' Securities opened 2,500 shares from 31 1/2 to 32 1/2, an advance of 1 1/2 to 2 1/2. Steel opened 79 1/2, up 1/2, a new high for the year. Westinghouse gained 1/2, American Locomotive 1/4, and Studebaker 3/4.

The railroads were sluggish, the Coppers strong. Sales during the opening hour were 400,000 shares again today and the trading was more excited even than yesterday.

An attempt to "heavy" the market around noon failed, good buying holding prices generally firm though the pressure brought slight reactions in some shares.

Steel sold at 78 1/2, Baldwin, 125 1/2, and Colorado Fuel and Iron, 59 1/2. The market closed irregular.

CHICAGO CLOTHING WORKERS STRIKE

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Chicago's clothing makers' strike is on. Five thousand workers quit their benches at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Forty thousand additional, according to Sidney Hillman, leading the strike, will be out by 6 o'clock this evening. The first trouble came within a few moments after the walk-out, when five men were arrested, charged with loitering.

Baton Comparatively Modern.

In early days a bandmaster beat time with his foot. Not until 1820 was the baton first introduced.

Some of the "Good Turns"

"Some of the reports are amusing but none the less significant. One boy said: 'I found a squirrel with its head caught in a tin can and set it free.' Another was a hero indeed: 'I buttoned Mary's dress because mamma was busy.' A boy in the suburbs reported: 'I feed the calf nights.' Several had a common experience: 'I saw a dog that was hungry and fed him.' In a Pennsylvania town the scouts belted the cats to protect the birds from destruction. It is a common thing for scouts to restore young birds to their nests.

"If it is objected by some grouchy bachelor that these things are all play and only half useful, the answer of the scout program is that it is only by interesting the boy that you can teach him at all.

"We have had a surfeit of moral instruction that compels children to do right," urged the preacher. "Why not try in addition, the plan of liberating tons of youthful enthusiasm. Every boy is a hero-worshiper; answer the call of his soul and give him a hero who will lead him straight.

The scout program is very simple and decidedly effective. Its main requirement is a clean, wholesome leader who loves boys and is pretty much of a boy himself, and a company of lads who are naturally con-

ITALIAN EXPERT PRAISES GERMAN CONDUCT OF WAR

HAMBURG, Sept. 28.—The well known military staff writer of the Milan della Sera, General Gatti, recently published in that paper a review of Germany's achievements during the first year of war, says a dispatch to the Hamburger Fremdenblatt, which quotes him in part as follows:

"On its entrance into the war Germany introduced a new element. While its opponents at the commencement of the war had equipped only the army, in Germany the whole nation had been prepared. He makes a mistake who thinks that the military spirit of only a part of Germany has gained the upper hand over the rest of Germany that is of a different disposition and has subjected this part to the yoke. No people can be forced to any sort of slavery for the space of forty years. This is no slavery when at a single call all the millions of Germans respond as they actually have responded with one single answering cry.

"He who battles most passionately today for the fatherland is the Bavarian. All Germany is a single homogeneous army camp. Discipline and obedience have rooted themselves into the German soul, respect for order of rank, confidence in their leaders, the feeling of solidarity. The Germans are governed by the necessity of subordination in life. Their civil life is formed upon the same principle as the military. The former can therefore be submerged in the latter at a moment's notice.

"Germany could not conquer immediately. It could not because it had supposed that it would be obliged to overthrow one or two enemies. When it saw that all the nations of Europe (even Italy's neutrality at that time was at least equivalent to a very strong feeling of opposition) were enemies it acknowledged no discouragement. For a moment it took counsel with itself. It halted its advance into France, gave up the idea of a decisive battle in the west and hastened to the battlefields in the east. The Russian invasion seemed to it unbearable."

SHOOTING THOUGHT WORK OF OPPONENTS

WALSBERG, Col., Sept. 28.—A "political murder" was the cry raised today by friends of Robert Mitchell, democratic county chairman, shot dead last night when he surprised a burglar searching his house.

While the intruder escaped with a gold watch, it was claimed that the burglar probably sought evidence Mitchell was supposed to have concealed in his home. He was the main reliance of United States District Attorney Ledrow of Denver, who was conducting an investigation in alleged election frauds in Huerfano county at the instigation of the Washington government.

MILWAUKEE PAIR FOUND SLAIN IN BURNED COTTAGE

Bullet Hole in Tree and Tobacco Wrapper May Lead to Arrest of the Slayer

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 28.—Out from a mass of theories arising from the third day's investigation of the mysterious death of Capt. and Mrs. Robert W. Mueller at Puckaway lake Friday night, and whose bodies were brought to Milwaukee Sunday night, the authorities are concentrating their interest on two clues—a package of chewing tobacco and a bullet mark through the trees.

The wrapping of a 5 cent package of fine cut tobacco was found only a few feet from the spot where blood clots and Mrs. Mueller's glasses were located. Neither Capt. Mueller nor any of his recent guests used that kind of tobacco.

Capt. Mueller, who was teller in the First National bank for forty years, and his wife were found with their bodies burned to a crisp in the obscure voting booth which served them as a residence at Puckaway lake, fifteen miles from Princeton, Wis., and three miles from Marquette.

The bodies were so badly burned that it was impossible to tell whether or not there had been violence before the fire was started. But the tragedy was the result of no accident. This was the statement of District Attorney J. L. Kelley of Princeton, who conducted an exhaustive examination of the tragedy Saturday afternoon and night.

The definite facts established by Mr. Kelley in his examination, clearly establish it was murder, but the only clue is the finding of blood spots on a paper about twenty rods from the cottage. Nose glasses, of the type worn by Mrs. Mueller, were found lying on the ground close to the spot where the blood was discovered.

LATIN INTERESTS LIE WITH GERMANY

Vasquez de Mella, Celebrated Spaniard, Declares Germany Fights for Freedom of Sea

England Was Always the Invader and Lurking Enemy of Mediterranean Nations

FRANKFORT, Sept. 15.—According to a dispatch from Madrid to the Frankfurter Zeitung, the famous Spanish orator, Vasquez de Mella, recently made an address in Madrid in which he declared that only absolute neutrality could be of advantage to the Spanish government and that, moreover, the sympathies of the Spanish nation could be only for the central powers.

"There are a number of people among at least two of the Latin races who believe that the war is being fought out between France and

Germany," he said. "In point of fact, however, the war is being fought between Germany and England. If Russia should conclude peace the war against England and France would continue. If France should conclude peace the war against England and Russia would continue. If France and Russia should conclude peace the war against England would continue. But if England—which is the banker of the other two—should make peace with Germany the war would cease.

Mistakes of Italy
"On the day of reckoning it will prove to be one of the greatest mistakes of the French and Italian policy that Delcasse and Salandra did not understand what was to the interests of the Latin race. It is a mistake on the part of Italy to make a question out of the possession of land which never belonged to her. The Trentino was never Italian, for it has belonged to Austria since the fourteenth century, and, if the 800,000 Italians are used as a pretext, then the same claim could be laid to Constantinople and Algiers, which are also largely inhabited by Italians. Besides this, the Italians of the Trentino have mixed to a great extent with the Slavic race.

"Italy had the greatest interest in the existence of a great Austrian monarchy. If one day Austria were to vanish Italy would find herself face to face with a mighty Slavic empire on the Adriatic coast which would have forced the Dardanelles and settled in Constantinople and would be the foremost power in the eastern Mediterranean.

French Interests Opposed to England

"And France? France, England's enemy since the Hundred Years' war, since the Napoleonic wars, since Fashoda, has not fortified Calais and Dunkirk against Germany, but against England, and protected the coasts of Normandy against the English islands Guernsey and Jersey. Her interests are opposed to those of England. Germany will always be first of all a continental power and only secondly a naval power. And as for us, the Latins, who possess the sacred right to demand for ourselves the freedom of the sea, against whom should we direct our claim if not against a trespasser who has seized it and made it his own?"

"Did the German eagles build their nests on the rocks of Gibraltar? Was it the German eagles that settled on Malta, on Cyprus, in Alexandria and in Suez? No; it is England, the English leopards. It was for the nations which call themselves Latin to lay claim to the Latin sea. And the invader of this sea, who has made these nations vassals, oppresses them and places his foot on their brow, is not Germany. It is England.

"And a historical survey shows that England has been for centuries

the lurking enemy of the Mediterranean nations."

In concluding his speech Senor de Mella spoke of Emperor Wilhelm.

"I hail him with respect and love, not only as the personification of order, but as the executor of the will of Philip II, and of Napoleon and because he is fighting against England for the cause of the Latin race—a cause in which this race has not learned how to defend itself."

BETTER TILLAGE RESULT OF PLOWING

Developing skill of hand and eye and more perfect accord between driver and team will be featured in the two plowing matches to be held in Wisconsin this month. At North Lake, Waukesha county, on September 24-25, a plowing contest and farmers' picnic will be held under the auspices of a local committee co-operating with the department of agricultural engineering of the University of Wisconsin. On September 28, Medford, Taylor county, will hold a plowing contest, County Representative R. A. Kolk, assisting in its supervision. The fostering of community spirit and friendly competition are among the objects sought and the prizes in every case will be of secondary importance.

But his mother always has an excuse for the juvenile terror.

STATE SERUM PLANT PROTECTS HOG CROP

Wisconsin is winning in its fight against hog cholera.

The campaign first started when the legislature of 1913 provided for the erection of a small serum plant at the agricultural experiment station. Ever since its establishment the little laboratory has been running full force and, not infrequently over time to supply the demands of the farmers of the state.

All orders are now being filled as soon as received. In addition to the daily output a reserve of 20,000 doses is being kept on hand to meet a sudden demand. Since protected herds are the only dividends asked the serum is sold at cost of production.

While the outbreak that has lasted for about four years is somewhat abating, those in charge of the serum plant are urging farmers to keep close watch of their sections and to vaccinate if the disease appears in neighboring herds.

A bulletin, "Hog Cholera Questions and Answers," published by the experiment station, Madison, will aid farmers in the prevention and control of the disease.

Every time we begin to think we're against capital punishment, we suddenly remember the fellow who carries a moistly-gnawed and gone out cigar into a street car.

BRYAN SEES FORD ON PEACE PROJECT

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 15.—William Jennings Bryan made a flying trip to Detroit last night and conferred privately with Henry Ford regarding the latter's $10,000,000 peace plan, it was learned today.

The former secretary of state requested the interview yesterday by telegraph. Ford met his guest at the railroad station and the two went to the Detroit Athletic club, where they were closeted together for about an hour. Immediately after the conference Bryan departed for the east. E. G. Liebold, Ford's secretary, who was present at the conference, stated today that no definite plans were reached as to the method of conducting the $10,000,000 peace campaign. Bryan and Ford discussed the movement only in general terms, Liebold said.

PRICE DOESN'T SUIT JOHN D.

He returned a new pair of fall shoes along with a bill for $18, noting thereon he had paid $15 per pair for forty years and that he will not pay more now. He may wear his old shoes this winter.

SUFFRAGISTS WOULD FORCE AMENDMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—With the campaign for national suffrage launched at the opening session, the first woman's suffragists' political convention resumed its business meeting this afternoon in the Illinois building at the Panama-Pacific exposition. The 750 delegates from all sections of the country, unanimously approved plans to force the next congress to adopt the national woman suffrage amendment.

TO PROTECT THE MIRROR

Are you ever puzzled to know what to do with your hand mirror when you pack your bag for a trip? A very wise thing to do is to make a bag for the mirror. Use linen for outer bag, and embroider this in white or in colors. For the inside make a cotton flannel lining, and between the flannel put several layers of cotton padding. Baste this lining to the linen. Provide the top of the bag with a casing and ribbon, and you will have a convenient and very practical bag for your mirror. Remember that safety first is a necessary precaution when a mirror is to be packed for a long journey.

Acute Articular Rheumatism

The exact cause of rheumatism is unknown, though it is generally believed to be due to an excess of uric acid in the blood. It may be also said with equal truth that no remedy has been found which is a specific in all cases. In fact the literature of rheumatism shows that there are but few drugs which have not been given a trial. In the hands of one observer we find that a certain drug has been used with the utmost satisfaction; others have found the same remedy to be a great disappointment. All physicians however agree that every method of treatment is aided by the administration of some remedy to relieve the pain and quiet the nervous system and Dr. W. E. Schullz expresses the opinion of thousands of practitioners when he says that Anti-Rheumatic Tablets should be given preference over all other remedies for the relief of the pain in all forms of rheumatism. These tablets can be purchased in any quantity. They are also unsurpassed in headache, neuralgia, and all pain. Ask for A-K Tablets.

Daddy's Bedtime

The Little Mouse That Caught The Cat.

"In this same farmhouse with the little mouse lived a cruel and hungry cat named Maltie. The children had christened her that because she was a Maltese pussy and very lovely, as those cats are. And she especially loved mice for her breakfasts or lunches or dinners or any between whiles."

"Now the little mouse of which I am telling you had no name, of course, but just for the purposes of our story we will give him one. We will call him Impy, and I think you will decide that the name fits him."

"Impy just lived to torment that pussy that was so hungry for mice, and I do think that he secured revenge for a great many of his mouse relatives that Maltie caught."

"Now in that farmhouse were a number of great big rats as well as mice, and Maltie was just as hard on them as on the mice. Between the rats and the mice she killed and those which were caught in traps by the farmer's people and given to her she grew fat."

"Impy had Maltie almost crazy with rage sometimes. The cat would be dozing in the cellar or maybe up in the garret, and up Impy would come through a hole not an inch from her nose and squeak. She would open her yellow eyes, and he would make a face at her or wrinkle his little pointed nose in the most aggravating way. She would pounce at him like lightning, but, quick as thought, he would jump away."

"At last one day she thought she had him. She found him in the middle of the cellar, far away from a hole and run toward him. She could run faster than he, and he squeaked with fright. But he had no idea. He ran right toward a great big rat trap, extra size. And dodged when he reached the door. Maltie couldn't stop and ran head on into that trap and got wedged in it, while Impy laughed a mousey laugh."

"Maltie meowed and yawned, and the family came to release her. She tried very hard after that to catch the mouse that had caught her, but she never did. Impy lived a long time and never missed an opportunity to pester big fat Maltie."

TRIMLY SHOD FEET NEEDFUL WITH THE ABBREVIATED SKIRT

Many and Alluring Are the Fancies Worked Out in Leather for Milady

BUTTON SHOES HAVE CALL

Many Are Odd Freaks, Like the Shapeless Ankle Cossack Boot

The importance of nifty footwear this fall and winter will not diminish, for the short skirt will still be the thing. Good looking shoes, and high-topped ones at that, are essentials to good dress as long as the skirt swings clear of the shoe top. Shoe makers are aware of this fact and are outdoing themselves in an endeavor to give milady all she may desire in this particular.

"The slippers, shoes, and boots of all descriptions are so alluring to feminine tastes that the pennies are growing to dollars as they slip from pocketbooks in the hands of the lovers of stylish footwear. The new styles are irresistible in their appeal."

Need Many Pairs

Twenty pairs of shoes in a woman's wardrobe is not at all extraordinary and practically everyone has six or eight pairs of dainty shoes where one or two formerly sufficed. There are buttoned shoes of various shades, matching the various tailored suits and formal gowns; there are boots and slippers in combination colors, and dancing slippers in various shades. There is sport footwear and boudoir footwear. Silk stockings are being put out to match the dainty slippers and boots.

The perfectly shaped, buttoned boot is the thing nowadays, although there are many freaks in the shoe line. Chief among these is the Cossack boot, which has practically no shape around the ankle. Some laced boots are being worn, but these are never as dainty as the buttoned shoes. The taste of the buttoned shoe is never questioned, and probably its rights will never be infringed upon.

Thin Soles and Sharp Toes. Thinner soles and long, pointed toes continue to be favorites for street wear; dancing shoes have turned soles and turned French or Spanish heels. Black kid is the favorite material for dancing footwear, although patent leather is being worn to some extent.

Many distinguished dancing boots, of all black, have large white pearl buttons.

Some of the colors for buttoned shoes with gutter tops are: haze green, solid blue, field gray, forest fawn, and metal brown. Many fashion makers are placing patent leather or strips up the entire back or front of the boot this season.

Moulded to Foot. The very prettiest thing going is this year's dancing slipper. The thing seems a part of the wearer, herself, and not like something that is put on and taken off. Guiltless of ornamentation, in the way of bows, buckles or ribbons, the beauty of the slipper is greatly enhanced by its unbroken lines. The only ornament which fashion now allows the slipper is a single button, of black or pearl. This adds to the daintiness and smallness of the foot, too.

The place this year for the laced shoe—the high-topped heavy laced boot—is sporting wear, and it is taking the place of the lower oxford, which held sway some time ago. Gay stockings are being added to the high boot for sport wear—and this is for men and women alike.

Cloth Tops Again. Dress boots are being manufactured of patent leather with close fitting cloth tops. The aim is to combine slenderness with simple severity of smart lines.

ARTISTIC NOVELTY FREQUENT IN MANY HOME DECORATIONS

Lamps and Mirrors of Great Beauty Are Available, and American Vases Are Satisfying

The art displayed in novelties in the American home is an expression of the ideals of the home itself. "Art is expression," it has been said. It is the skill of handicraft, and by this skill, you can best express an ideal. One should not buy something to place in the home unless that ideal expresses in itself the ideal of that home—the sentiments of its occupants. Every novelty, no matter how small or how large, should have a definite place in the home and should express something.

Lamps Must Harmonize. The value of side illumination has come gradually into the American home. To have here and there a lamp adds to the cheerfulness of any room. One should use care in not allowing these lamps, nor the colors of their decorations, to clash. Let the shades be of varying tones of one or two neutral colors.

Fitting in with the black-and-white idea for interior decorations is an electric creation with a black and white china base canopied with a black and white silk shade. Admiring yourself in a mirror is a real delight when one possesses a circular mirror mounted in a wooden frame, which may be had in any color to carry out the decorative scheme of the room. Unless a black cord is used, the cord and tassel with which the mirror is hung should be of the same color as the frame.

American Vases Good. The style of vases in the home is undergoing somewhat of a change. American manufacturers are doing their utmost to make up for the lack of European importations, and some of their creations show that art in America can take the place, in many instances, of what was considered the inimitable art of the European, now forsaking his potter's table for the trench and the sun.

Flowered Desks. Among the unique ideas originating this season in America is the flowered writing desk and small table, which is taking the place of the pure white, unadorned table and desk. White desks with thin gold lines are very popular.

Door-stops imitating the ones used many years ago in England tempt many to buy them for use as book-ends and they are wonderfully ornamental. They may also be found as novel receptacles for flowers.

SCALLOPED INITIALS

If you have tired of embroidering Old English letters or scrip letters, you have now an opportunity to vary the monotony. The newest pillow cases are exhibiting scalloped initials. You may be inclined to think that the uneven lines are not effective, but there you are wrong. The buttonholed scalloped, when beautifully done, add materially to the general appearance. The idea can be applied to sheets, tablecloths and napkins, if one desires.

WOULD PROVIDE EDUCATION FOR ARMY AND NAVY

Hoosier Says Soldiers and Sailors Should Be Trained in Peace in Useful Lines

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 15.—This nation is in a perilous position because of the European war; we must prepare for effective defense; but a standing army of adequate proportions is un-American. After summing up the situation thus, John A. Lapp, in a statement issued today, suggested the application of vocational education to the army and navy as the solution.

Lapp, as a member of President Wilson's commission on vocational education, drew up the bill that will be presented to congress. He is the author of Indiana's vocational law, which has been a model for other states.

Vocational education and national defense should go hand in hand, said Lapp. In that way only he said, can the nation maintain an adequate standing army without tremendous waste of human energy and without providing a menace to our democratic ideals.

"We want men trained for war but whose thoughts are of peace," said Lapp. "Why not couple up the two and while making men efficient for defensive war make them also efficient productive workers? Let us have a million men in training all the time for effective defense, but let that million be trained all the time for useful employment. Let every camp and battleship become a school where a few hours each day can be spent in preparing for the arts of peace."

Lapp said the army and navy offered opportunities for vocational training in hundreds of different lines to meet the needs of the army and navy. There is no reason, he said, why the army and navy should not do a large part of the work needed for their support.

"Around every army post the government should own large tracts of land for cultivation where the sciences of agriculture, forestry and animal husbandry in all their phases would be taught and from which the troops could be supported," said Lapp.

Lapp suggested that arrangements could be made to give the carpenter, plumber or machinist who joins the army supplementary education along these lines so that he would become a better carpenter, plumber or machinist.

To get the broadest benefits from such a scheme, different periods of enlistment would be necessary, he said. Enlistments for from four years down to six months could be allowed, and vocational training in lines requiring greater or less training could be provided as the case might be.

Lapp declared that the six-month enlistment term would be an effective cure for unemployment because it would offer both a job and schooling.

"Undoubtedly this nation is in a perilous position," said the educator. "We are the only world power not engaged in conflict. As a great neutral we have become the object of envy and hate by all the warring countries, and this will increase as we wax fatter from world trade at the expense of our oldtime rivals."

Lapp called attention to the fact this nation always has had for large bodies of men with training for war and said he believed the scheme outlined would give no ground for such fear.

AMERICAN MEDICAL METHODS WORK WONDERS BATTLING TYPHUS AMONG THE SERBS

BY HENRY WOOD

(Copyright, 1915, by the United Press. Copyrighted in Great Britain)

NISIT, Serbia, Aug. 4.—(By mail.)—From 100,000 cases of typhus to 600 and from a maximum mortality of 70 per cent to one of 20, all within the space of three months is the record of the American Red Cross and Rockefeller Institute Sanitary mission sent here to save the Serbian nation from the epidemic that was threatening its actual existence.

By September 1, Serbia will be entirely free of the plague. The full story of the most remarkable humanitarian task ever undertaken by the United States was today told for the first time in an interview granted to the United Press by Dr. Richard P. Strong, professor of tropical diseases at Harvard university, and head of the American mission. The interview took place in the little third class railway car, which fitted out with beds in one part and a shower bath in the other, and with a flat car attached behind for carrying his automobile and another car in front for the members of his immediate staff, has been practically the only home Dr. Strong has known in Serbia. Almost every night of the three months' campaign has been spent by him aboard the car herring from one end of Serbia to the other in the fight against the deadly plague.

"The typhus epidemic in Serbia," stated Dr. Strong, "began last January in the vicinity of Valjevo, following the Austrian invasion of the month before, and spread with such rapidity that it became the greatest epidemic of that disease recorded in modern medical annals. The epidemic reached its height in the middle of April just as the American mission arrived. New cases then numbered 8,000 daily, but it must be remembered that these were the figures only of the victims who came to the military hospitals. Serbia had not been able even to keep statistics of the victims among the civil population and so the above figures give, as a matter of fact, no accurate idea of the extent of the epidemic.

"In fact, few figures of any kind are to be had, but presumably the total deaths from the epidemic have been about 160,000 and the number of victims down with the disease at the time we took charge was very likely of equal magnitude.

"As such an epidemic of typhus never before had occurred in the history of modern medicine, I freely confess that it was with no little concern we first arrived here. A quick survey of the situation convinced me, however, that with effective organization the plague could be wiped out in four months. I am still confident that when the four months are entirely past, the last of the 600 cases still remaining will have disappeared.

"Following the preliminary organization of a national sanitary board, something Serbia had not had, and the division of the country into sanitary districts, we at once went after the practical end of the work—namely the chasing down and extermination of the house from whose bite alone the disease is transmitted.

"As the quickest means of reaching the greatest number of the stricken population in the shortest possible time, we had two refrigerators placed at our disposal. In one of these was installed an apparatus for the disinfecting of clothing by heavy steam pressure and its immediate drying afterwards. In the second car was fitted the necessary appliances for a disinfecting bath of the victims.

"With the arrival of the car at each town, a tent was at once pitched by the side of the railroad in which the population could undress. They then entered the first car where they left their clothing for disinfection and passed immediately to the second car for the disinfection of their bodies. Only ten minutes were required for the joint operation at the end of which time each person was given back his clothing, dried and ready to put on.

with the absolute assurance that not a single louse or nit remained.

"Our average speed was 500 to 600 cases a day and in the three and a half months we have had the cars in operation we figure that a total of not less than 600,000 persons have been reached in this manner.

Railway Service Limited

"Unfortunately, railway communication in Serbia is very limited and the reacting of the population in the interior presented a different problem. Individual sanitary missions were therefore sent to each important town traveling in military automobiles or carriages, and frequently having their supplies carried in ox carts. Disinfecting and bathing plants were then established in each big center of population and the same process of extermination carried on.

"Where the Serbian government had funds at its disposal these plants were erected at its expense, but where it did not, we paid for them ourselves. A total of fifty-three plants were thus installed by us and they constitute a permanent part of Serbia's equipment for fighting a similar situation should it ever come again.

"The next most important phase of the work was our sanitary assault of the military hospitals. These from the start had been the most prolific centers for the spreading of the disease. They were at all times congested to the limit with wounded or sick soldiers, whose infected clothing quickly spread the disease to almost every inmate.

"In attacking the hospitals we took with us portable bath tubs and had at our disposal the Austrian prisoners to give the sick and wounded their disinfecting baths. While they were doing this we put their clothing and bedding through the steam process and then wound up by disinfecting the entire building with sulphur and often even whitewashing the walls. Of the 112 military hospitals in Serbia, fully 100 passed through this sanitary regeneration at our hands.

"Still another most important phase of the work was the visiting of every house almost in the entire kingdom and separating the diseased from the well. The quarantining of the infected persons was something which the local authorities had not been able to undertake, but under our direction it was quickly and thoroughly carried out.

"While we were hard at work on this extermination of typhus we also had our eyes constantly on the lookout for cholera and typhoid. None of the former was found, but the latter was abundant. Against this, and against the former too, we therefore prepared in our own laboratories which we had established in the old Turkish town of Uskub, a combined serum against cholera, typhoid and paratyphoid. This was prepared in such a manner that two injections were sufficient and thus it was possible to administer it to both the army and the civil population with a maximum of labor. For this task of vaccination we had our own vaccinating car which covered all the territory that could be reached by rail, and we also furnished the serum to the French surgeons here who undertook its administration in the army.

tory work, we started from the very first on a search for the typhus germ but up to the present moment complete success has not crowned our efforts. The organism discovered by Dr. Pleiz at Mt. Sinai hospital, New York, has not yet been found here by us, but with the aid of cultures which he has placed at our disposition, complete success may yet crown this end of the work. It is being actively pushed by Dr. Zinsner of Columbia and Dr. Sellards of Harvard.

"One of the most happy features of the whole work was the manner in which we ourselves, after the terrible experiences of the Serbian and American Red Cross units kept free from the disease. Not one of the fifty-four men comprising our mission fell a victim. But naturally we had at our disposition all of the latest possible preventives. Every doctor assigned to hard work amongst the victims wore a vermin proof suit, rubber gloves and adhesive bands above the wrists and ankles. We have not been able to demonstrate that the disease is contagious and in fact there seems no reason to believe that it is transmitted otherwise than by the bite of infected vermin.

"In Montenegro we were most fortunate in being able to check the epidemic before it could become general. Dr. Grinnell of Harvard, who was assigned to that territory, arrived when the disease had only got into the towns. These were quickly quarantined and the plague stamped out at once.

"Thus by the middle of August I think I will be able to guarantee that typhus will be a thing of the past in Serbia. Not only that, but we would be greatly disappointed if it ever came again. But still even in this latter case, Serbia now has at its disposition all of the facilities for speedily combating any outbreak.

"Naturally our success was only possible through the most hearty cooperation of every man composing the mission, and this has been one of the two bright spots of the entire task. There was not a man who ever shirked or even objected to any task assigned him no matter how disagreeable or even how dangerous it might be.

"The other bright spot which stands out most vividly was the unflinching kindness of Sir Thomas Lipp-

Young Englishman Less Than Twenty-one Years of Age Has Many Escapes

BY WILBUR S. FORREST
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
LONDON, Sept. 2.—(By mail.) The type of men that are becoming national heroes in England's greatest war is exemplified today in the story of the adventurous career of Midshipman George L. Drewry of London, who has been decorated with the Victoria Cross for valor at the Dardanelles.

Not yet of age, Drewry's brief twenty years have been packed with thrills that rival the most romantic heroes of Marryat's tales of the sea. He has sailed the world around, had thrilling rescues from watery graves and has been shipwrecked on a desert isle, but no finer story of heroism has been told during the war than his conduct while disembarking troops from the steamship River Clyde off Gallipoli peninsula.

The young midshipman was placed in charge of a flat boat at 5 a. m. on the memorable day of the landing of the British expeditionary force against the Turks. From the side of the River Clyde the vessel which was later run ashore to facilitate the landing of soldiers from a hole cut out in its plates, he steered straight toward Cape Helles in the face of a furious fire, to beach his craft where, with others, it would act as a landing stage for the soldiers. Behind him came the River Clyde. As the transport crunched its bow on the sandy shore, Drewry's lighter hit the beach at her port bow. Jumping ashore with a hauser he secured the small craft and went to the aid of Captain Unwin who by this time had jumped into the water in an effort to place another lighter. Both, despite machine gun and shrapnel, escaped death by inches, but were unable at once to accomplish their task. Drewry leaped aboard the lighter and then into the water again to assist a wounded soldier. He then threw away his revolver, coat and hat and went back to the aid of the captain. Shortly afterward a bit of shrapnel struck the youth on the head knocking him down. He was carried aboard the River Clyde, his wound dressed, and he immediately rushed back to the aid of Captain Unwin. With a rope in his teeth, he swam to other lighters and fastened them to the grounded craft. Twice he executed this feat under sniping fire until rescued completely exhausted.

The story of Drewry's gallantry at the Dardanelles drew the story of his other adventures from his father and mother in London today. He left school at the age of 16, joined the mercantile marine and was apprenticed aboard the Indian Empire, a large London sailing ship. An incident of his first year at sea was a fall from a high mast into the sea. He was rescued with difficulty. This incident was nothing compared to the adventure which befell him later.

While sailing around Cape Horn in the Indian Empire a storm arose and the vessel was wrecked on a desert island. A heavy sea literally washed the crew into a shallow bay, which was filled with seaweed. Swimming and crawling over the vegetable mass, the crew succeeded in reaching shore. For fourteen days they sustained existence on edible roots and shell fish and managed to hold out until rescued by a Chilean man-of-war.

After this in 1912, the youthful adventurer returned to England and was given an officer's berth on a merchant liner. Since then he has traveled all over the world, and happened to be in Port Said in July, 1913, when he joined the Royal Naval Reserve as a midshipman. In August, 1914, he was appointed to H. M. S. Egmont, guardship at Malta and later to the torpedo gunboat Hussar. Afterward he was transferred to the Transport River Clyde.

He will be 21 years of age in November.

SOLDIER STRIPPED

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(By mail.)—A soldier correspondent writing from the firing line in Northern France tells how a Canadian officer escaped from the enemy in his "altogether."

"I was returning from a deserted village near—," he writes, "when to my astonishment I saw, leisurely strolling along ahead, a man entirely naked."

"We exchanged greetings and he told his story. He had been captured by the Germans, stripped of his clothing and placed under guard. Blinding his guards he had regained our lines. I loaned him my waterproof and gave him a cigar that he asked for and he coolly continued his journey. I have since had the waterproof returned with a letter of thanks. He was a High Canadian officer."

ton to the members of the mission. Not only did he cheer us up with words at every moment when cheer was most needed, but his unending efforts to furnish the members of the mission with little odds and ends for their material comfort gave evidence of a kindly consideration of others such as I have never before met.

"As a result of our four months' work here, I think I can safely say that Serbia is a regenerated nation from a sanitary point of view and the effects of this I feel certain will be reflected in her national life and development for years to come."

ENGLISHMAN JOINS WAR FROM ARCTIC

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(By mail.)—How the news of the big war penetrated to the Arctic circle and rooted out an Englishman who has just now returned to fight, was told here today.

Henry James, a subaltern, was 200 miles north of Edmonton when one day an Indian passed his camp and volunteered the information that a big war was on.

"That's all right," James answered. "Mexico and the United States are at it."

The Indian, however, insisted that it was a bigger fight. James later struck camp and journeyed to the nearest trading post where he learned that England had been at war for months. He immediately returned to Canada and sailed for England.

A SCRIM BED SET

Most attractive bed sets can be fashioned from scrim, either white or cream. They add a dainty touch of color to the bedroom and are very cool in appearance. A flat piece of scrim is used for the top of the bed, and within two inches from the edge a border of cretonne is added. It is here that the color note is introduced. The combination of black and white is very stunning for these sets; but if a bedroom is inclined to be dark, it is advisable to use orange, blue or old rose for the border. A graceful ruffle of scrim having a border of cretonne near the bottom adorns each side of the bed.

To throw at the bottom of the bed, make two or three odd-shaped pillows of the bordered scrim. If desired, the same material can be used for the curtains of the room.

LANSING'S G. E. RALLY BIG SUCCESS

Presbyterian Church Decorated Gaily for Affair and Speakers Are Entertaining

LANSING, Ia., Sept. 15.—(Special)—The Christian Endeavor rally was a most delightful gathering despite rainy weather. The Presbyterian church was decorated with potted flowers, ferns and huge bouquets of autumn blossoms, and every delegate and participant on the program seemed enthused with the subjects up for discussion.

SUFFRAGISTS HAVE BOOK OF POETRY

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 15.—Mother Goose has made her appearance as a suffragist. From New York, women delegates to today's suffragists' political convention brought the latest votes-for-women volume—Mother Goose rhymes made into arguments for suffrage. The volume opens with the following slap at the antics:

"Mary, Mary, quite contrary,
How do your arguments grow?
A few facts perverted, old notions asserted,
And little fibs all in a row."

And then this:
"Little Miss Horner,
Sat in the corner
Making a suffrage speech.
"Her logic and brain,
Said the women, 'are plain.'
But the man said, 'Ain't she a peach?'"

PUBLIC DEBATE

Mr. A. M. Brayton,
Editor "Tribune,"
La Crosse, Wis.
My Dear Mr. Brayton:
Cognizant as I am of your intentions, under any and all circumstances to be absolutely fair, I beg to correct two wrong impressions which manifest themselves in your otherwise sane editorial in your issue of Sept. 11, having reference to an appropriation for account of the Shippers' association.

First, Mr. Mahoney is not an attorney for this company. For several years he has handled a number of court cases for us, which were especially assigned to him by our legal department, but he does not appear on our payroll as an employee, neither is he provided with annual or trip transportation, and is not authorized to represent this company in any matter not especially assigned to him, and I beg to assure you that he has had no instructions to take any action whatever in connection with the Shippers' association.

Second, your assumption that Mr. Mahoney was unconsciously doing what his client (the C. M. & St. P. Ry. Co.) would wish him to do, is not in accordance with the facts. It would be extremely bad policy for this company to assume to dictate to the manufacturers and jobbers of this city in relation to the formation and conduct of any sort of an organization for their own protection, and I assure you that no action whatever has been taken by this company to discourage the organization and maintenance of the Shippers' association. On the contrary, Mr. West, manager of this organization, will, I think, bear me out in the statement that I have personally been of some assistance to him, having loaned him for an indefinite period a very valuable file of cancelled tariffs, and have at different times offered suggestions bearing on the perfecting of the organization along safe and sane lines.

In closing, I wish to convey to you and the shipping public the fact that this company is always ready and willing to meet the Shippers' association, or any other association or any individual half way in the tremendous task of the equitable and fair adjustment of rates as between the various distributing points, a task which I am sure you fully realize is no small one.

Yours truly,
C. L. V. CRAFT.

PREMIER TRIES TO REAL DIFFERENCES

PETROGRAD, Sept. 15.—Premier Gorkykin conferred today with a number of cabinet members and leaders of the duma on his return from the czar's headquarters, in an effort to reconcile differences still existing between the two groups. A formal cabinet session is to follow this conference.

The prime minister, it is understood, brought to today's conference the dual word from Czar Nicholas on the duma's demands for more active participation in the conduct of the war. The czar, it is understood, is disposed to make some further slight concessions, but believes that the war office should not be hindered by interference by members of the duma unfamiliar with military affairs.

GOTHAM SWELTERS THREE DIE OF HEAT

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—New York sweltered today in the hottest September in thirty-eight years. The thermometer at 8 o'clock registered 73 degrees and the weather bureau stated the humidity was at 94— with no indications of going down. Instead, it was said, it would steadily rise until mid-afternoon.

Coming on the top end of an excessively hot summer, the heat of the last two days has all but prostrated the city. Last night fire escapas, roofs and even the streets and sidewalks were congested with thinly clad persons who fought against the heat and mosquitoes. Police records last night showed that three persons had died from heat and there had been scores of prostrations.

GERMANY DISAVOWS PLOTS ON FACTORIES

BERLIN, via Wireless to Sayville, L. I., Sept. 15.—The German government today formally disavowed the action of certain German citizens in attempting to investigate plots for the destruction of American war munitions factories.

"Such a practice is officially designated as stupid and dangerous. It is evident that hot-headed private citizens, who have been misled, have tried to agitate in this manner by inserting the pamphlets. No newspaper office is responsible."

STATE FAIR RULE TO SWELL STOCK EXHIBITS FOR US

Cattle Show at Inter-state Fair Will Eclipse Anything of Former Years Because of Milwaukee Bar

Van Auken and Main on Tour of Fairs to Get Reliable Attractions of Best Kind

As a result of the Wisconsin State Fair association having barred all cattle outside Wisconsin from exhibiting at the state fair at Milwaukee this year, the La Crosse Inter-State fair, to be held from September 28 to October 1, will probably show the largest number and greatest variety of stock in its history. The Milwaukee association is barring outside cattle from the fair to prevent any possible recurrence of the foot and mouth epidemic which swept the country several months ago and which caused federal quarantine.

Off For Midway Tour
Mr. Van Auken and his assistant, F. T. Main, left La Crosse on noon trains yesterday; Mr. Van Auken going to the Milwaukee fair and Mr. Main to the Columbia county fair at Portage. They will meet in Milwaukee and return together. The object of their trip is to secure the latest and best in midway attractions, and no pains will be spared in an endeavor to make this feature of the 1915 fair the best in the history of the association.

Although plans have not thoroughly shaped themselves as yet, said Mr. Van Auken before he left, "things look promising from all angles. We shall have several big features which are bound to draw large attendance, and with good weather during the week no fairs of the past will come up to the exposition the last of this month."

Many Popular Cattle Men Due
Concerning the prospects for one of the biggest cattle exhibits in the fair's history, Mr. Van Auken said many Minnesota exhibitors were flocking to all small Wisconsin fairs.

"Many Minnesota, Illinois, and North and South Dakota cattle men," said Mr. Van Auken, "want the marks awarded their stock at Wisconsin fairs. They prefer the big state fair, but now that that is barred to them, but are coming to the smaller fairs. The entry list is growing to large proportions."

According to Mr. Van Auken a splendid racing card will be staged here this fall.

Two races; a 2:20 trot and 2:00 pace, for purses of $500 each have been arranged for the opening day. Purses of $500 and $600 will be given the following day to winners of a pace and a trot. Thursday, September 30, one of the biggest days of the fair will bring three races; a trot, and two paces. Purses of $600, $500, and $400 will be awarded winners. Friday, October 1, the last day of the fair will bring a pace and a trot for purses of $500 and $400.

Famous Pacer Coming
A big free feature on the race track this year will be George Gano, the world-famous pacer, who can make 2:10 1-4 under saddle. George Gano lowered his record at Madison recently by one minute. To a sulky, he can travel the mile in 2:02. Murry Anderson, well known jockey will be up. The horse will be ridden under the saddle only one day, but will be driven to the "bike" each day of the fair. He will be exhibited daily before the grandstand. Two other features to be shown in front of the grandstand daily are Reeds' trained dogs, performing marvelous antics on the platform and in the air, and Abou Ben Hamid's troupe of Arabian stars of the east.

DOCK BEGUN AT MUSKOGON

MUSKOGON, Mich.—Work is now under way here on a dock 1,700 feet in length and 800 feet in width, which will be constructed with all railroad facilities, storehouses and refrigerator plants, extending out into Muskegon lake, says the Detroit Free Press.

KINDS OF RHEUMATISM

In popular language the word rheumatism is a term that covers a multitude of ills of which pain is the chief symptom.

Articular rheumatism, inflammatory rheumatism and rheumatic fever are all names for the same disease. Muscular rheumatism affects the muscles and does not spread from one spot to another like inflammatory rheumatism. Lumbago is a form of muscular rheumatism. Some people have rheumatism every winter especially those people who inherit a rheumatic tendency. They will continue to have recurring attacks until the blood is built up to a strength sufficient to overcome the rheumatic poison. External applications and drugs that simply relieve the pain are useless. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood and really correct the trouble.

With the poisons in the blood there is a continual combat between the health forces and the disease. When the rheumatic poison prevails the blood gets thin rapidly. When the blood is made rich and red by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the poisons are destroyed and expelled. The free booklet "Building Up the Blood" tells the whole story and the diet book "What to Eat" will be sent on request by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

LONDON WILL BE READY FOR THE ZEPPELINS WHEN THEY COME AGAIN

LONDON, Sept. 15.—London will be ready when the Zepelins come again. Full details have not been made public, but it was learned today that the entire system of defending the capital from sky attacks will be radically changed as the result of an important conference held last night.

"It will be a lucky Zepppelin that succeeds in passing the city outskirts," was the significant statement made by one aeronautical expert after the conference adjourned.

Several aviation experts, it is known, urged the government before the recent Zepppelin attacks to adopt the same system by which Paris has been made immune from dirigible bombardments. They advocated a nightly air patrol along the east coast to prevent the airships from reaching London or any other large city. They pointed out that a sky battle above London might result in frightful casualties should one of the huge Zepppelin dreadnoughts be brought tumbling down into a crowded street, spouting fire. The last raid on London proved that despite warnings from the newspapers people insisted on "taking in" the air spectacle, regardless of danger.

The appointment of Admiral Sir Percy Scott, England's greatest authority on naval gunnery, to take charge of the defenses of London against Zepppelin raids, is only one of the features of the new "anti-Zepppelin" program. Other measures were kept secret for the same reason the admiralty withholds information of its methods of meeting the German submarine campaign.

ATTEMPT WAS MADE TO TIE UP DOCKS SAYS LABOR HEAD

Story Confirmed That Germans Tried to Cause Strike of Longshoremen on Both Coasts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—President Gompers of the Federation of Labor today confirmed the New York World's story headed "Germans Offer $1,000,000 for Longshoremen's Strike and Riots on Docks in United States," by saying he had "known these facts for some time."

Gompers forecasted further sensational developments in the same connection, hinting that the public will be "astounded at the great temptation" American leaders "resisted."

Worked on Both Coasts

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—The intimation that German money was used in a fruitless attempt to bring about a strike of longshoremen and thus tie up all shipping on the Atlantic and Pacific, principally to prevent munition shipments reaching the allies, was made here today by John Keane, vice president of the Longshoremen's union.

In opposition to certain influences that were strongly pro-German.

"This was in evidence at Seattle, where, I am of the opinion, German money was being given to men and the members of the executive committee to prevent the signing of the new agreement, thus to cause a strike tying up the shipping on the Pacific and Atlantic."

"The men were promised big strike benefits, and unquestionably the offer came from German agents. When President O'Connor of the union was here recently he said German agents made a direct offer to him if he would aid in calling a strike. German agents worked among the men in San Francisco, but all their efforts failed."

PICK SEED NOW TO AVOID BLIGHT

Farmers wishing to avoid a recurrence of potato blight in their fields during 1916 should make it a point to select seed stock only from crops grown on land that has been free from blight and rot this year.

Such careful selection of seed stock is the only salvation in sight, according to R. E. Vaughan of the Agricultural Experiment station of the University of Wisconsin. While preventive measures, such as the application of Bordeaux mixture to plants in late summer, may often check the blight, it is far wiser and safer to begin careful seed selection at digging time.

Disease-free seed represents the "ounce of prevention" so universally recognized as superior to a "pound of cure."

Work of League

The Manchester Guardian recently published the following article on the Consumers' league of Germany:

It is fashionable to admire and even to envy German "organization," but those who confess to the envy usually save the sore by reflecting that the mass of the Germans are, after all, poor, docile beings, who merely accept the part assigned them in the admirably efficient machinery provided from above.

Not Only Official

This is all very well, but it is salutary to be reminded, too, that the organizing power and organizing will of Germany are not confined to her government, state or municipal, but are at the present moment being exhibited on the gigantic scale without any official intervention whatever and with a practical force which officialdom itself has found it advisable to conciliate.

A study of the popular movement for controlling the price of provisions and especially for securing the precious coming harvest for the consumers, tends to dissipate many illusions. The existence of this popular movement, as distinct from the energetic control exercised by the imperial government, is very imperfectly organized in England. In view both of our own steadily rising prices and of the need for appreciating the full our enemy's resources it is not without practical interest to know what this German popular organization is doing and has done.

The "consumers' defense war committee" was founded in December last and now represents no fewer than 25,000,000 members—40 per cent of the entire population. Austria has a similar committee. The secret of this vast progress is that the committee is a sort of concentration of the heads of some fifty great existing societies—trade unions, professional unions, leagues of cities, benevolent societies, women's societies, "social politics unions" and many more, all with wide ramifications over the whole country, the whole mass of the members of each becoming at a stroke members also of the central body.

Imagine a similar league in England, in which the engineers' and the plumbers' unions, the Inns of court, the army of registered physicians, surveyors, architects and the town clerks of all the cities and towns of England took strenuous and harmonious part. Perhaps only one cause could, even in Germany, "organize" ingredients so disparate, the solitary cause for which they are all alike concerned—that of keeping food prices down.

Two Classes Protest

The league, however, though vast, naturally does not embrace the whole population. Two classes interested as consumers, like the rest, in cheap food are still more interested as producers or distributors in seeing that it is not too cheap, and both the "agrarians" and the food merchants raised indignant protests, for the consumers' committee has during the last six months been displaying formidable powers both of argument and of action.

Leaders in Movement

It has in its ranks economists, statisticians, physiologists of the highest status, for these German professors are not content to give a lecture here or write a pamphlet there; they act as generals in chief to this army of embattled consumers, taking the leading part, more particularly in drawing up the reports, of which seventeen have been issued since January.

It was the famous physiologist Zuntz, for instance, who, at the first general congress, brought forward the decisive motion on the central subject of the whole movement—the means of securing the coming harvest to the consumer.

During the same month the German conference of commerce met and passed forcible resolutions against the attempts of the Consumers' league to interfere with the hallowed freedom of trade by maximal prices and the like. The Consumers' league regarded the proffered freedom in a time of scarcity with disdain. In the same month again met the imperial German agrarian council, a more redoubtable body.

Popular demonstrations, mass meetings and resolute threats in the press had compelled them to withdraw early in the year their open opposition to the measures of the Consumers' league. They now sought to get the machine devised for the consumers' benefit into their own control.

We cannot here follow the struggle further. Enough that the League of German Cities issued an energetic protest and with the majority of the reichstag, together with the chancellor, supports the Consumers' league's policy of regulated consumption and maximal prices. This success is largely the result of the energetic educative activity of the league.

MANY TOURISTS STOP TO SEE NEW CAPITOL

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 15.—Over 3,000 visitors toured the new state capitol last month, according to the visitors' register. Two guides, C. A. Holst and Stanley E. Lathrop, are on duty all day conducting parties of visitors, usually about a dozen at a time, throughout the great building. The places visited are the supreme court room, executive reception room, senate and assembly chambers. When the north wing is completed, the large chamber to be used for commission hearings will be included in the itinerary. It will contain a painting by one of America's celebrated artists.

MILWAUKEE CAR RATE CASE TO BE OPENED UP AGAIN?

U. S. Supreme Court Order Backing State Board Is Filed but State Board
Has Changed Mind

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 15.—(Special.)—The Milwaukee lower fare case, looking to the sale of thirteen street car tickets for fifty cents, which the supreme court of the United States recently decided against the company, may be fought all over again in an effort by the company to rescind the order.

Deputy Attorney General Walter Drew today filed in the state supreme court the mandate of the United States supreme court in this case, that tribunal having affirmed the state court's decision, which in turn affirmed the decision of Judge E. Ray Stevens of the Dane county circuit court, who upheld the order of the railroad commission commanding the company to sell thirteen tickets for fifty cents. Since that time the commission rescinded the order on the ground of inadequate revenues upon which to earn a reasonable return.

This is one of numerous strong arguments the company will present in case it sees fit to reopen the case. It is predicted here that when the records are sent back to the Dane county court for further action, the company will file a new complaint attacking the order on the merits.

SOILS OF COUNTIES ARE EXAMINED

Final detailed soil surveys of six counties in north central Wisconsin are being made this summer by the soil department of the University of Wisconsin in co-operation with the state geological and natural history survey. Eight men have been working during the past season under the direction of A. R. Whitson and W. J. Geib.

A report of the finding, together with certain recommendations will be published some time during the coming year. The counties included in the survey, which supplements a less detailed survey made about ten years ago, are Clark, Marathon, Taylor, Lincoln, Wood and Portage.

Darnell is now serving a term in the federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., for violation of the Mann white slave act. He was convicted at Milwaukee.

THE NEWEST IN DRESS AND ACCESSORIES

The dance frock is an important item in the fall wardrobe of either the young girl or the dancing matron. This year they will be, at least at the beginning of the season, of comparative simplicity, for the smartest of dance garb will be in the form of severely made taffeta frocks, having shoulders and arms softened by tulle or mousseline de soie, but otherwise absolutely devoid of ornament. There is, however, a trend toward the panther, always a charming fashion when interpreted in the bouffant taffeta.

Checks are to be worn during the cool seasons. The checkerboard pattern has assumed a new name for the new season, that of "chessboard" design. Subdued plaids in various color combinations will be combined with plain materials for frocks.

The high collar is becoming insistent. High, boned collars are prominent or threatened, depending upon the point of view; but at the present moment the intruded styles are high and snug-fitting but boneless. Fortunately, there is also a good and smart assortment of flat collars, and some, but very few, separate convertible collars. There are, however, quite a few collars which open at the center front collar line, resembling the bathing collar which was launched in the spring.

Though the days for muffs have not arrived, the days for thinking of them (if one intends to invest in a new set) are at hand. It is to be a fur season of animal effects, that is, fur pieces with accompanying tails and heads to make them appear as realistic as possible. Many of the new neckpieces show double fur, that is, fur on the under side instead of a satin lining, so that the neckwear will, as near as possible, have the effect of real animal skins. Snake scarfs, those that follow the curve of the neck, are the exception to this fashion, being lined with satin or silk.

Fox furs of various kinds are in excellent standing. For girls and young women red and white foxes

will be in great demand. A lovely conservative fox is dyed to a shade of battleship gray. White fox pointed with black is one of the season's novelties that will be much worn by young girls and the younger women. Furriers say that this fed for black and white in furs is an outgrowth of the popularity of that combination during the last two or three seasons. Lynx will also be excellent, and, wonder of wonders, despite its popularity, lynx will be cheaper than for some seasons past.

Beaver, too, is fashionable, and gray krimmer is quite the smartest thing by way of trimming for frocks, suits and coats.

A new veil has about the edges tiny chenille drops in the form of balls.

The sailor is the basic idea for many of the new hats of both large and small sizes. In the shapes which may be termed as "close-fitting," the oblong, boat-shaped turbans and the tricorn are in order. All of these shapes are subject to much modification, depending upon the twitch or turn most becoming to the wearer.

PLUTOGRATS BRED FROM WORLD WAR

Chicago Tribune Shows the Market Value of Thirteen Firms Has Grown by $492,000,000

SCHWAB INTERESTS SKYROCKET

War Orders Have Caused Big Steel Business to Grow 624 Per Cent Since War Started

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—A crop of millionaires is brooding in the United States, according to a table of stock advances since the European war began, prepared by the Tribune. According to the tabulation, the market value of listed stocks of thirteen representative companies directly benefited by war orders has increased $492,000,000 since January 1 last.

"This vast increase," the Tribune says, "includes by no means all the important concerns that have benefited by war orders. Scores of larger organizations like Dupont Powder properties are ignored. Hundreds of smaller firms now wallowing in the war prosperity are not incorporated into the tabulation."

The table shows that the Schwab properties, which had a market value of $7,000,000 before the war orders began to pile in, today are given a market value of $49,000,000—an increase of 624 per cent. More millionaires are being bred, it is said, than were bred following the "stepped age" after McKinley's 1896 election.

And over all, the Tribune's amplification of the table continues, "astride the states like a colossus, shunting a golden stream into his coffers that is poured out from every corner of the land, looms the figure of J. Pierpont Morgan. Not millions, but hundreds of millions, it is estimated by stock exchange insiders, will have come to the house of Morgan by the time the last month-dealing shell explodes in hell-entangled Europe. The Rockefeller will be out-distanced."

The Tribune points out that it is not spy plots that cause fear to the captains of industry, but the growing insistence of the workers in the properties that are making such rich profits for a more equal share in those profits.

"How much money," the article says, "Morgan is making out of his job as American minister of munitions to the court of St. James, is the merest conjecture. Some say the amount is so stupendous as to be almost inconceivable."

BRANCH LAB IN NORTH?

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 15.—Within two weeks a member of the state board of health will be sent to northern Wisconsin to investigate the feasibility of establishing the branch laboratory of the state hygienic laboratory, which the last legislature authorized. Superior, Ashland, Eau Claire and Rhinelander are after the institution. Railroad connections and facilities for conducting the laboratory and serving the territory will enter largely into the final location of the plant.

FROM WORKS OF
PARIS TAILLEURS
Seriousness and Dignity of French at War Is Expressed in Quiet
Frocks

Dancing and Evening Gowns
Are Made by Couturiers
Only for Americans

Paris tailors, once the creators
of the world's gayest gowns and suits for mllady, are today thinking of more than mere style in the making
of their product.
There is sentiment in the costumes
of the Parisian maker of women's wardrobe this year—style mellowed by sentiment for half of the nation—the half which is defending the nation against the enemy. In the absence of colors gay, and frivolous lines, which have in the past brought
the fame of Paris to the farthest
ends of the world, the serious spirit
of the whole people is expressed in quiet lines with which garments are being fashioned.

Dignity in Clothes
The present dignity and seriousness of the French are being expressed in fashions which are far removed from the flippant and the gay. Since
the joyful in clothes making has been removed, the strictly tailored
gown and suit has come into its own.
The fall fashions tend towards the pure tailor made—as far as Paris is concerned at least.
Great French dressmakers are creating lovely frocks, gaudy costumes, theater dresses and rich wraps, but these are being made for American. Importing retailers who are not being made to feel the sadness of the Frenchwoman.

While the American woman can still revel in her Paris gown, on the street, at the theater, or wherever
she may have occasion to wear it,
only the tailored costume may be seen in the French capital. The gowns there may still be called "chic," but they express quiet decision.
Expressing this new ideal of quiet-
ness is a new redingote, a new creation of Bernard; and Cheruit comes in with a new full-length coat over a skirt to match. Notable are the long lines and the austere grace of
the garments. Strange though it may be, Paris is still clinging to the saucy skirt, the fashion which took America by storm about a year ago,
which includes the style of high-topped boots from which the high
skirt swings clear.

Military Is Hinted
A military suggestion is given with
the wearing of the redingote and the long coat, and again the Paris taillor tends towards the seriousness of his country.
However, the military suggestion
which might easily pervade the gowns
of French dressmakers is being kept within bounds, and from the stage of picturesqueness. The military is evident, though, in the shape of revers,
in pockets and belts, and other parts of the coats. Grouped buttons and braid bound coats also suggest the martial.

Deep yokes on skirts of moderate
fullness are being emphasized by Baller and Beer. This fullness is gracefully restrained in grouped pleats or in gathers emanating from pocket motifs, at least in tailored costumes. The favorite materials for such costumes are serges, gabard-ines and red suitings of mohair, and worsted weave. A graceful half yoke running across the front of the skirt has been introduced by Doucet.
Pleats and gathers are being used by Cheruit and others are using an original skirt pattern with flaring poes at the sides and panels at back and front.

Tall Collars on Separate Coat Tall straight collars adorn the new separate coat, which is being usually buttoned at one side, beyond
the line of the double breasted coat.
Again the tall collar brings the military atmosphere. Coverlets and dark wool mixtures are being used
in their making. Quaker wraps, again
in sympathy with the hour, are be-

GERMAN TROOPS ENTERING WARSAW; RUSSIANS LEAVING HASTILY

ing manufactured in Paris by one of the leading tailors. Most coats have the waistline, now in favor. Many of the new coats will have close lines over the shoulder, bust and arms and will flare out to good width below
the knee. Large buttons are being used on many of the newest coats.

German forces in France reported strongly reinforced and have taken up favorable defensive positions. Severe fighting for several days around Soissons.

Mauveuge, reported captured by Germans some days ago, still in Allies' hands.

Russian official sources give Austrian losses since fall of Lemberg as 250,000 killed and wounded, 100,
000 prisoners and 400 guns.

Emperor William reported at East
Prussian front.

John Redmond calls on all Irish
to support England's cause.

President Wilson, answering the kaiser's note alleging use of dummies by English and French troops, says it would be unwise, premature and inconsistent for a neutral
government to pass judgment now.

TRIMMED SKIRTS

It is predicted that trimmed skirts
will be very much in evidence during the coming season. Heretofore pockets have held the honors, but
now ruffles of silk, bands of braid,
strips of fringe and pieces of fur are strong rivals of the pockets. But pockets still hang on and are twisting themselves into all sorts of shapes in order that they may be acceptable to a fastidious woman.
"Splashy" designs, embroidered in wool or heavy silk, are also used
with good effect to elaborate the skirts of afternoon and evening
gowns.

FEED FOR STOCK

Department of Agriculture
Finds Feeding Value Is Ninety Per Cent That
of Corn

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The grain sorghum specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture have found that the feeding
value of these sorghums is within 10 per cent of that of corn. If the price of sorghum grains, therefore,
is less than 90 per cent of the price
of corn it is profitable to feed them.
In a large portion of the country the price for sorghum grain is usually much less than this and the grain
sorghums, should, therefore, be used far more than at present as a feed
for live stock.

Chemical analysis of sorghum grains compared with dent corn show that the sorghums are distinctly higher in protein content than corn. The carbohydrate content is practically the same. On the other hand, the fat content is much lower than in corn and the fiber content is also somewhat less. The sorghums
are eaten readily by stock and poultry of all kinds. Moldy heads or mushy and weevil grain will not be relished any more than corn, oats
or barley in the same condition.
Since the kernels are hard it is desirable to grind or chop them before feeding.

Another use to which sorghum
grains can be profitably put is in the feeding of poultry. At the present time it is probably safe to say that some form of grain sorghum seed constitutes fully 25 per cent of the prepared poultry feed sold in this country, and it is probable that the proportion would be still larger if a supply were always available at satisfactory prices. As the poultry industry is steadily increasing it seems probable that this outlet for the sorghum will be even greater in the future than it is now.

BOX FOR COLLARS

A very good-looking collar box can be made from a pasteboard box
measuring nine inches or more square. The lid of the top can be discarded, for it will not be needed.
Cover the bottom of the box with brown linen. Use a piece of brown linen twelve inches wide and one yard long for the rest of the box. Tack one end of this to a corner of the box and wrap the rest of it smoothly around the four sides, joining the ends neatly and overcasting the upper to the lower piece of material.
Make a neat hem at the top of the box and at opposite positions on the four sides attach snap fasteners.
A stenciled or embroidered design
should be added to the four sides of the box if one has the time to do
the work, especially if the box is to be a gift to some dear friend or relative.

Vagaries and Superstitions
Regarding Rearing of Child Assail the Workers

BY WILBUR S. FORREST
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
LONDON, Sept. 2.—(By mail)—
The war is sapping the manhood of the nation; save the babies.

This cry is invading England today and almost for the first time in history the government and municipal authorities are giving the subject earnest attention. The terrible toll of the battlefields, which the newspapers emphasize each day, has begun to make England think about
the future of the race.

Medical authorities are giving
"Hints to Mothers" through the press, and systematic investigations
of infant life in the slums are bringing forth remarkable revelations.
England's slums are the worst in the world and England's now "baby campaign" has brought this fact home to the government and people.

The medical authorities have just discovered that in Finsbury, the great slum district of London, the birth rate is greater than the average for England and Wales. But why infants
here die at the rate of 118 in 1,000
has also been brought to light
and corrective measures are being taken.

Among the many obsessions prevailing in this section, as reported by Dr. E. A. Thomas, a municipal investigator, are:

That just before and after childbirth a mother should drink gin;
that maternity nurses are not necessary in case of childbirth; that a baby cannot make enough heat to sleep in a cot by itself; that a baby
must not be subjected to fresh air
because it will get sore eyes; that it is unlucky to weigh a baby and dangerous to cut its fingernails; that boiled bread is proper food for infants; that milk bottles should be cleaned with kerosene because "kerosene will clean anything."

These, according to the investigator, are some of the contributing causes of the excessive infant mortality in England's slums, and all of these half-superstitions are kindred
to appalling conditions of filth and ignorance. London's slums are dirtier than any others, it is stated, and if an infant lives through the first six months it can live through anything. The fathers of these slum families are laborers, hawkers, beggars, cripples, porters, odd-work men, old men, thieves and the usual ruff. The mothers are charwomen or engaged in like occupations.

But the fathers have largely disappeared from the slums.
They have gone to war. The wives have encouraged them to enlist. In many cases because the government's separation allowance comes to more than the husbands can normally earn. With the money, the majority of the women drink, raise babies to die, or be neglected. Moreover they often pawn the scant few
household things for drink.

"The notification of births often comes to the authorities in the handwriting of children, apparently dictated by the mother and a committee of relatives. Here is a portion of one of these notifications:

"Present at birth mother and the lady what makes the tea we don't know her address. Say father wasn't present so he don't know about it
so please excuse him, but mother
knows it was a still born and not in the according to the regulations
please to say if it was not I don't think."

The war is going to make these conditions in the slums of the past,
the authorities say. The race even in the slums must be preserved.

Worth While Quotation.
"The art of being lovely at home is the finest, hardest, highest art I knew of."—Selected.

CURIOSITY RATHER THAN TERROR FILLS BRITAINS WHEN ZEPPELINS ATTACK

The British censor has passed for publication the following personal experience of the latest Zeppelin raid over London by William G. Shepherd, United Press Staff correspondent. It is the first story that has yet been thus approved. It is the first story which gives a complete insight into the British public's behavior "under fire." It confirms the announcement by the United Press on Thursday that Wednesday night's air raid was over the heart of London although Shepherd is not permitted to state what theater he attended, nor to identify the section of the city.

—EDITOR'S NOTE.

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1915, by United Press.
Copyright in Great Britain.)

LONDON, Sept. 15.—It is Wednesday night, September the eighth. Above the din of the orchestra there sweeps over the theater a cavernous, bass "boom."

"Zeppelin!" whispers a pretty girl sitting next to a Scotch officer.

"No," you hear him whisper. "It's a door banging."

He's lying and knows it.

"Zeppelin! Zeppelin!" The whisper runs through the audience.

If you knew what was transpiring in the street you'd be out there instead of waiting for the last act to end. Such a scene is being enacted out there as the old town of London in all its rich thousand year history never before beheld.

The curtain goes down. You file out of the theater into a crowded street. Traffic is at a standstill. A million quiet cries make a subdued roar. Seven million people of the biggest city in the world stand gazing into the sky in the darkened streets.

Here is the climax to the Twentieth century!

Zeppelin Floats Above

Among the autumn stars floats a long, gaunt Zeppelin. It is dull yellow—the color of the harvest moon.

The long fingers of searchlights, reaching up from the roofs of the city, are touching all sides of the death messenger with their white tips. Great booming sounds shake the city. They are Zeppelin bombs—falling—killing—burning.

Lesser noises—of shooting—are nearer at hand, the noise of aerial guns sending shrapnel into the sky.

"For God's sake! Don't do that!" says one man to another who has just struck a match to light a cigarette.

Whispers, low voices, run all through the streets.

"There's a red light in the sky over there; our house may be burning," exclaims a woman, clutching at a man's coat.

"There are a million houses in London; why ours particularly?" he responds.

A group of men talking French stand gazing up from the street. They are in waiter's clothes and have rushed out from the upper room of one of the most luxurious hotels in the world.

"The devil!" exclaims one, and then—

"We've got it! It can't get away! There's shrapnel all around it!"

"Oh! My Neck!"

"Oh! my neck!" says a pretty girl in evening wraps. "I can't look up a minute more."

But she does.

All about you are beautifully garbed women and men in evening clothes. "Oh's" and "ah's" long drawn out—exclamations of admiration like the sounds of American crowds watching fire works—greet the brilliantly white flashes of shrapnel.

Suddenly you realize that the biggest city in the world has become the night battlefield on which seven million harmless men, women and children live.

There are more cries.

"Good God! It's staggering!" Shrapnel flashes break near the great airship. But the airship moves on.

What a roar of joy would go up from the millions of this great city if they could suddenly see the yellow object transformed into the flash of one gigantic gas explosion! Little white-gloved hands clap their approval at the Zeppelins' near approach to death: white teeth sparkle in smiles; men roar with delight.

These men and women, flowers of the twentieth century culture, have become elemental. Dirty, bloody, hat-mad soldiers feel this same way in battle. Killing has been put into the hearts of these crowds. If the men up there in the sky think they are terrifying London they are wrong. They are only making England white-hot mad.

Cathedral Outlined

The redness of a burning building fills the sky. The dome of historic St. Paul's Cathedral looms up against the redness.

We are all brothers and sisters in the streets of London tonight; neither man nor woman, neither good nor bad—just humans, outraged, mad, unwilling to die. It is a miracle the great gas bag in the air brings about.

On the Plinth of Chinese, Gordon's monument, sit a soldier and a girl. She is tracing invisible figures on the stone pavement. His arm is about her; her face is bent to his. Maybe they've seen this Zeppelin tonight, but just now she's listening to the other story that will be new when the books telling the story of tonight's Zeppelin raid have crumbled into dust.

They typify London and England—unchanged one iota by this Zeppelin raid that only ended in the loss of twenty harmless lives.

The next day recruiting tripled.

TREAT RYE NOW TO PREVENT SMUT

Smut disease caused much injury to Wisconsin rye this year.

Smut can be largely controlled by treating the seed grain with formaldehyde. This simple and effective way to use formaldehyde is suggested by A. G. Johnson of the University of Wisconsin.

"After cleaning and grading carefully pile the seed on a clean floor or canvas and sprinkle with a solution of formaldehyde, one pint of the commercial 40 per cent formaldehyde to 40 gallons of water, using a gallon to a bushel of seed.

"While sprinkling, shovel over the seed to insure thorough wetting of all the grain. Then cover with canvas or several thicknesses of bags and leave covered for at least two hours. Up to four hours is all right.

"When treatment is completed, the seed should be spread out to dry and raked occasionally to hasten the process. It will then be ready to sow at any convenient time.

It is important (1) that the treated seed should be handled in sacks which have not previously been used for rye or have been soaked two hours in the above formaldehyde solution; and (2) that the seeder, if previously used for rye, should be washed out with formaldehyde solution before using in order to prevent any chance of the smut getting on the seed."

When a man flatters a woman she should appoint herself an investigation committee to discover what he has up his sleeve.
